GOP Is Hit By Brannan On Supports For Prices

Agriculture Chief, In Farm Vote Drive, Charges Failure to Modernize System

Stassen Asks Facts

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan yesterday opened the Administration's drive for votes in the farm areas with a news conference on the subject of price supports.

He blamed the Republican Congress for using the high cost of living as a weapon with which to attack price supports for farm products.

He blamed Republican leadership in Congress for failing to modernize the farm price support law as urged "repeatedly" by the Administration.

He said that had they done so, the present expensive program of price support for potatoes would have been averted.

While Brannan was talking, Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers, was reporting at the White House that inflation "is creeping" but not "running away."

Nourse termed the price situation "moderately reassuring."

"It is very encouraging," he said, "that they have not broken loose."

Again Opens Up on Stassen

Brannan, under questioning, once more opened up on Harold E. Stassen, with whom he had a battle of statements Thursday.

He remarked that "Stassen talks more like a sophomore than like a college president." He added, in response to another statement, that "I couldn't make out from Stassen's statement what he was saying. I don't think he was accusing me of doing anything unlawful. I think he was trying to strike at the farm price support program."

Shortly afterwards the United Press carried a new statement from Stassen at Philadelphia. In it Stassen called upon President Truman to make public up-to-date facts on Government food purchasing. He asked that the President:

1. Promptly publish total Government food purchases in August, and the amount of food on hand.

2. Announce the Government's purchase plan for September and October, and regularly publish the weekly purchases.

Published for Months

[All the reports he called for have been published at regular intervals for months—Editor's note.]

Stassen added that it "was not true" that the Republicans were trying to destroy the farm support program, as Brannan had charged.

Brannan declared during the Republican-controlled "Eightieth Congress, the Republican Party made frontal attacks on farmer cooperatives, on the Rural Elec-

Man Shot 7 Times In Stomach, Gun Found by His Body

The homicide squad and coroner's office yesterday were investigating the death of a man tentatively identified as James Tang, about 35, whose bullet-riddled body was found fully clothed in his bed Thursday.

Tang's body was discovered by Pearl Gafford, 3016 Georgia ave. nw., a maid at 518 H st. nw., where he roomed.

Lying beside Tang's fully clothed body was a .32-caliber automatic pistol with all seven bullets fired, police said. All seven bullets had entered the man's stomach.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, termed the case "one of the most unusual" he had experienced.

It was possible, Dr. MacDonald said, for the man to have shot himself because the shots through his stomach may not have affected his brain enough to cause him to release the pressure on the trigger before the weapon was emptied.

Party Calls For Dixiecrat Resignations

Bolters Asked to Quit Democratic Committee; First One Is Thurmond

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Democratic National Headquarters yesterday called for the resignation of all Dixiecrat members of the Democratic National Committee.

Resuming its drive to clear out of the party organization supporters of the Thurmond-Wright ticket, the committee began with the Dixiecrat nominee himself—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

It next opened fire at Col. Marion Rushton, Alabama Dixiecrat leader, and "any and all national committeemen and national committeewomen who are supporting candidates other than President Truman and Senator Barkley."

The statement was issued by William J. Primm, jr., executive assistant to Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

Acting for Chairman McGrath, Primm, himself an Alabaman, opened the Dixiecrat purge offensive Thursday by offering party recognition to "loyal" South Carolina Democrats who refused to vote for eight States' Rights electors.

"In all honesty, Governor Thurmond, the presidential nominee of the States' Rights Party, should resign his position as Democratic national committeeman from South Carolina immediately," Primm said.

New Demands Submitted by Truck Drivers

Little Likelihood Seen of Settlement Before Tuesday

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—AFL truck drivers today handed employers a new set of contract demands as the basis for settling a widespread walkout in the metropolitan area.

But there was little likelihood that the dispute, which threatens to affect some 1,800,000 workers employed in local industries, would end before Tuesday—the next date set for a joint meeting of employers and union representatives.

Meanwhile, squads of nonworking members of Local 807, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, were reported roaming the city stopping trucks driven by members of Locals 816 and 282, who were not affected by the 807 dispute.

Johnson Regains Lead in Runoff By Mere 17 Votes

Dallas, Sept. 3 (AP).—Lyndon Johnson held a slim lead of 17 votes over Coke Stevenson in the Texas Election Bureau's latest revision of totals from last Saturday's Democratic runoff primary for the United States Senate.

The count in the bureau's only report for tonight was Johnson 494,140, and Stevenson 494,123.

Johnson jumped into the lead by 44 votes today in a 12:30 p. m. count. Stevenson had been leading by 255 votes on the basis of the bureau's count last night.

Changes made by 13 of 16 counties reporting official totals during this afternoon cost Johnson one vote and added 26 for Stevenson. These were recorded in a 6:30 p. m. count by the bureau.

Nude Sun Bath on Capitol Roof Sends Woman to Gallinger

The dome of the Capitol held more than usual interest for sightseers yesterday as a 32-year-old brunette, curvesome and nude, sunned herself on a roof directly under the edifice on the Senate wing.

The woman, identified as Dorothy Smith of Malone, N. Y., objected vigorously as two red-faced and perspiring Capitol policemen, struggled to get her dress back on over her head. She had been employed at radio station WQQW here for about a week.

The trick finally accomplished, with no effort made to fasten on other and more complex items of feminine apparel, the woman was escorted to the guard room in the Capitol building and then removed to Gallinger Hospital where physicians described her as "disturbed mentally."

Also disturbed for a while was Walter Linscott, 66-year-old bookbinder for the Senate library, who first spotted the woman shedding her clothes on the roof directly outside the window of his office on the top floor of the wing.

"I heard someone outside my window," Linscott related, "and then I saw a young woman walking around the roof. I asked her what she was doing and she said 'just looking around.'

"I said 'better be careful or the police will get you,'" Linscott related.

Hurricane Sweeps on Gulf Coast

Louisiana Blow Expected in Area Between Morgan City and Grand Isle

New Orleans, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Gulf of Mexico hurricane was expected to hit the Louisiana coast between Morgan City and Grand Isle shortly after midnight tonight.

The Weather Bureau at 8:30 p. m. (Central Standard Time) reported the twister had moved 120 miles nearer the coast since the afternoon advisory and that its forward speed had increased from 10 to 15 miles an hour.

The advisory said that at 8:30 p. m. (CST) the storm was centered about 130 miles southwest of the mouth of the Mississippi River. It said the hurricane was attended by winds of 75 miles an hour velocity over a small area near the center. Gales extended outward 250 miles to the east and northeast of the center.

At 3:45 p. m. (CST) the forecaster located the center of the storm about 210 miles southwest of the mouth of the Mississippi River. It was moving toward the coast at 10 miles per hour.

Winds up to 45 miles per hour were reported extending 250 miles from the center to the east and northeast.

The 3:45 advisory was issued immediately after a Navy "hurricane hunter" plane from Miami had radioed information from the dead center of the hurricane.

Warning of the storm came suddenly to coastal residents. The disturbance was reported in the Gulf Tuesday, but Wednesday appeared to be flattening into rain squalls. Then this morning an Air Force plane discovered the squalls turning into a tropical storm.

Hurricane warnings were ordered for the coast between the mouth of the Mississippi and Vermilion Bay. Storm warnings were displayed eastward to Mobile and westward to Galveston.

Some 200 trawlers of the shrimping fleet based at Morgan City, La., where in the gulf when they received radio warnings. About 50 oil company boats also were at work servicing offshore drilling operations.

Forecaster Stevens said the hurricane was not likely to cause much property damage, except to light structures. The Louisiana coast country, with thousands of bayous interlacing the swamps, is sparsely populated. Larger towns such as Morgan City and New Iberia are miles inland, up the waterways.

However, the hurricane was reported accompanied by high tides, and an unusual tide is always a potential flood danger to the low-lying coast.

Burmese Rebels Take Two Towns; Officials Seized

Rangoon, Sept. 3 (AP).—Karen tribesmen living on the southern coastal strip to Tenasserim have rebelled and seized the towns of Moulmein and Thaton, it was announced tonight. Both are across the Gulf of Martaban from Rangoon and less than 100 miles from the Burmese capital.

The towns were seized during an uprising Wednesday, the day the Burmese government named a commission to inquire into the possibility of establishing a separate Karen state. Karen tribesmen are a subdivision of the Burmese race, chiefly mountaineers of the Pegu district and southern Burma.

The announcement said the rebels were aided by Karen members of the military police.

Island Off Mindanao Thrown Into Panic As Crater Spews Fire, Molten Lava

Cagayan, Mindanao, Philippines, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Seventy thousand residents of Camiguin in the Mindanao Sea tried to flee the island in panic today as Mount Hibok spewed fire and molten lava over the countryside, setting off earthquakes and landslides.

(The Philippines Consulate in New York said Camiguin's population in the 1914 census, the last of which it had a record, was 40,805, but added it probably had increased since then. The area is 5 to 10 miles from the Island of Mindanao.)

Government and private ships, Red Cross vessels and even small sailboats removed inhabitants as rapidly as possible. Refugees estimated that 3000 people were living on the beaches between the volcano and the sea.

The island was shrouded in dark volcanic dust and smoke. Refugees said there was a continual rain of hot ashes. Periodically the island was rocked by quakes and shaken by sliding rock.

The violent convulsions of Mount Hibok coincided with an earthquake in Surigao Province, in northeastern Mindanao, across the sea from Camiguin. The Red Cross reported more than 20 persons were injured and 50 houses were partly destroyed there.

The volcano, quakes and landslides were but a part of the series of natural disasters that struck the new Philippines Republic this week.

Officials said the typhoon that battered north central Luzon and sideswiped Manila as it ripped across the island from the Pacific Ocean to the China Sea left behind an estimated eight dead and damage estimated at $12,500,000.

Mount Hibok, which last erupted 77 years ago, began to throw out fire, smoke and lava Wednesday. The eruption has continued unabated for three days.

Eighteen ships, including a Philippine naval patrol ship laden with food and medical supplies, were rushed to the island.

The Red Cross said 90 persons had been removed from Camiguin Island to Bohol Province, another island, to the north. Private ships, including small boats, brought an undetermined number to Mindanao, the Red Cross said.

Officials at Cagayan, capital of Misamis Oriental Province on Mindanao, estimated that 7000 Camiguinians had managed to cross the Mindanao Sea.

Kentucky Bride Is Drowned in Serenade Prank

Hartford, Ky., Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Police today recovered the body of a pretty, 17-year-old bride, drowned last night during a charivari, a boisterous mountain custom of heckling newlyweds.

First a party gathers at the home of the newlyweds and "serenades" them by beating on tin cans and blowing horns. Then the group demands the groom "treat the party."

Last night about 20 boys serenaded Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Willis House in nearby McHenry. House refused to treat, and the group "ducked" the couple in a pond.

The pretty grey-eyed bride, the former Lela Mae Davis, disappeared.

Ex-Czech President Benes, 64, Dies After Year's Illness

Prague, Sept. 3 (AP).—Eduard Benes, who fought a lifetime to keep his beloved Czechslovakia free from totalitarian rule, died today, a disheartened man.

Twice president of a nation racked and squeezed by two great wars and their turbulent aftermaths, he died in a coma in his country home at Sezimovo Usti. Coughing spasms weakened his tired old heart and the end came at 6:10 p. m. He was 64, and died on the ninth anniversary of the beginning of the second World War.

Benes had a stroke a year ago. His arteries hardened. Last Tuesday he became unconscious and only drug injections kept him alive.

Mrs. Benes was with him when he died. A special cabinet meeting was summoned for tomorrow to arrange the funeral. Communist Premier Antonin Zapotocky arranged a broadcast to the nation.

The death of the plucky statesman who rose from ranks of the peasants to world acclaim was announced to the people by the Czechoslovak radio just before the regular evening news broadcast.

The radio then began playing recorded hymns and dirges.

Although his death was expected, it carried no less a sense of shock and tragedy. Members of the staff of the Czechoslovak press agency who first advised the Associated Press of his death were weeping.

Marie May Be Asked To Try Cabinet Again; Election Call Likely

Hard Bargaining Indicated

Four Governors May Be Ready For Berlin Recommendations

Berlin, Sept. 3 (AP).—The four military governors of Germany held their longest session of the week tonight amid speculation they were completing recommendations on settling the East-West Berlin crisis.

Responsible Allied officials still declined to give a clew to the progress of the talks, now in their fourth day. This indicated to some observers that considerable hard bargaining was going on.

Reports from Moscow said the Western envoys—waiting there to resume negotiations on a higher level—were "satisfied" with the progress being made in Berlin. These reports spoke of "guarded optimism" on the part of the Americans, British and French envoys to the Kremlin.

The length of today's sessions—4½ hours—seemed to lend support to speculation in the French-licensed German press that political quarters expected the military governors' report to be "prepared today and transmitted to their governments and the envoys assigned to negotiate with the Kremlin."

German reports said the director of railways in the Soviet zone had been summoned by Russian transport authorities and given instructions on the technical arrangements for restoring normal railway traffic from the western zones to Berlin.

Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, meantime, said food rations in the Soviet zone would be raised on October 1.

Reds Again Seize Berlin's City Hall

Berlin, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Communists and fellow travelers seized Berlin's City Hall again today.

The Communist-dominated Socialist Unity Party and Communist-controlled factions of three other parties formed a "democratic bloc" apparently intended to usurp the powers of the non-Communist city council.

The new organization held its first meeting at the City Hall late today, after a Soviet refusal to cooperate had forced the city's legal government to cancel a scheduled meeting. Communist riots forced cancellation of two council meetings last week.

Schuman Gives Up After Socialists Cause Stalemate; De Gaulle Bid Seen

Background of Crisis

FRANCE HAS shackled herself with the constitution of 1946, says Ferdinand Kuhn, telling the story behind the Paris crisis. Page 2.

Assembly May Fall

Paris, Sept. 3 (AP).—Radical Socialist Leader Andre Marie, whose French cabinet collapsed a week ago, may be asked to form a new one, it appeared tonight. In any case, no candidate for the premiership will be chosen until Saturday.

Premier-Designate Robert Schuman gave up trying to form a new government today and the prospects grew that France would have to hold new national elections to work herself out of the current political deadlock. That is what Gen. Charles de Gaulle and his rightist Rally of the French People (RPF) have been urging for months as a step toward De Gaulle's return to power.

After calling on President Vincent Auriol, Marie made it clear no candidate for the premiership would be selected until Saturday.

Must Please Socialists

Informed sources who forecast Marie's nomination did so on the assumption that the Socialists now had proved that no government could be organized without them. Consequently, they reportedly were in a position to name their own terms to anyone seeking to form a cabinet.

It was predicted they would be willing to enter a cabinet formed by Marie provided they receive beforehand a promise that he will give labor the wage increase the Socialists want it to get.

The Popular Republican (MRP) Robert Le Court was said to have worked out a deal along those lines. LeCourt, a colleague of Schuman's in the Catholic middle-of-the-road party, was chosen by Auriol to conduct an "information mission" and compile an inventory on what the various party leaders propose to do. Auriol gave him the assignment after Schuman gave up trying to form a cabinet.

[Jacques Soustelle, De Gaulle's principal aide, was quoted by the United Press as predicting that France is heading for "the horrors of civil war" and could be saved only by the general. He believed De Gaulle will take power soon, but by the legal means of a national election.

["We are certain we are coming to power, but only by the will of the voters, once the present chambers understand they can only lead the country to ruin," Soustelle said.

["It is still possible to spare France the horrors of a civil war.

U. S. to Keep Korean Army Reins for Year

Officers Signed Up Are Given Permission To Bring Families

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—The United States indicated today it plans to keep control of South Korean armed forces for at least a year, although the American military occupation of Korea may end before that time.

Informed sources reported the United States Army is signing up officers to work with the Korean constabulary for the next year.

In addition, other American officers already have been assigned to the constabulary for an indefinite period of time, the sources added.

Reliable sources said President Syngham Rhee already has signed a pact by which the United States Army will "progressively" yield to the constabulary. However, the text is still unpublished. No official is willing to discuss how long the Americans actually will retain command.

The United States, it is believed, wants to remain in control in order to train the Korean constabulary to defend the new-born government against any attack from the Soviet-dominated north. It also wants to make sure Koreans themselves do not start a civil war.

Growing Army Calls Up 700 New Officers

All Are Nonveterans Of Draft Age, Recent ROTC Graduates

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday called up 700 newly commissioned reserve officers, all recent college ROTC graduates, for duty with the Nation's expanding forces.

Officials said the action was taken under a special proviso of the Selective Service Act of 1948, and does not foreshadow a general call of Reserve officers. Older reservists will continue to be ordered to active duty only on a voluntary basis, it was said.

All of those affected by yesterday's order are of draft age and are nonveterans, a spokesman said. They will serve 21 months—the period of service under the Selective Service Act.

The Army said the 700 young second lieutenants affected by the order will be alerted by letters of instruction within the near future. Most of them will receive orders to report about October 15.

A spokesman said the group comprises all or most of the June, 1948, graduates from ROTC courses who are not considered war veterans—i.e. men with less

Hospital Heads, Doctors Rush To Attack Health Program

Organized medicine, hospital administrators and others yesterday attacked national compulsory health insurance and other phases of the President's 10-year national health plan.

The program, outlined in a report of Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing and indorsed by President Truman, was made public by the President on Thursday.

To improve the national health level, it would cost more than four billion dollars annually, exclusive of health insurance which would be financed by special taxes on earnings, just as social security is financed now, according to Ewing's report.

Goals of the 10-year health program include doubling the present number of hospitals, increasing professional manpower and training schools by 40 to 50 per cent, providing rehabilitation for 250,000 handicapped civilians, increasing and improving medical and psychiatric research, and aiding dental care expansion.

First group to register public protest was the National Physicians Committee, long outspoken foe of socialized medicine. From its Chicago headquarters, the committee charged that the plan's compulsory insurance features would mean "political distribution" of health care.

The organization of physicians and dentists charged that the insurance would cost upwards of six billion dollars a year and would re-

France Handcuffed By '46 Constitution

ANDRE MARIE
Nomination forecast

French Face New Crisis

The French fear such conflict and they understand it will settle nothing. Moreover, they know they have General de Gaulle who is capable of leading them from the impasse in which this regime of parties has plunged them."]

France has been without a government for a week since radical Socialist Andre Marie's month-old cabinet—the ninth since the liberation—fell Saturday.

Most observers thought Auriol eventually would ask a Radical Socialist, either Marie or former Finance Minister Rene Mayer, to try to form a government.

LeCourt, however, has been the Popular Republican Party's whip in the National Assembly and as a working politician gets along well with all parties. It was conceivable he might succeed where Schuman failed.

An informed Popular Republican deputy said, however, there was growing sentiment within the party for a washing of hands of the present stalemate, and the holding of new elections.

Small moderate and rightist parties are all in favor of new elections.

There is but one way, however, for the National Assembly to be dissolved and for new elections to be held. The deputies who were chosen at elections in November, 1946, would have to pass a law ending their present terms which normally would not expire until 1951.

Healing of Breach Sought

Many observers believed they would refuse to do this and said this was the chief reason why they believed a compromise will yet be reached among the chief parties of the center—the Socialists, Popular Republicans and Radical Socialists.

LeCourt's job, it was believed, was primarily to heal the breach between Popular Republicans and Socialists who brought the toppling of the Marie cabinet and the failure of Schuman to form another. Socialist and Popular Republican groups set meetings for tonight.

Even though the parties eventually patched up a cabinet, most observers believed the solution would prove only temporary. More than any other previous cabinet crisis, the present one had raised the question of whether the present Assembly, in which the Communists are the largest single party, is any longer representative of the temper of the country.

Last fall De Gaulle's rightist followers scored a sweeping victory in municipal elections.

Socialists Block Efforts

Schuman, Premier for eight months before the Marie ministry, abandoned his efforts to form a government after four days. He failed yesterday t oget Socialist consent to enter his cabinet because of his stand against a general wage increase for labor to meet the increased cost of living.

He went ahead with plans to form what would have been a minority government. However, his effort was wrecked on the reluctance of other parties to take the Ministry of the Interior which would be responsible for maintaining order in the event of widespread strikes.

Already there were numerous token strikes throughout France in protest against high prices.

Bakers in the Paris region went out on strike tonight and said there would be no bread until next week, if then.

(This is the seventh of a series by a reporter for The Washington Post who recently returned from western Europe.)

Post Reporter

The crisis in France today will not be solved when some other old-line politician succeeds in forming a government. The constitutional system itself is impossible to work, and a growing proportion of Frenchmen know it.

A visitor to Paris soon discovers that France has handcuffed and shackled herself by her 1946 constitution and electoral law. She can neither govern herself, nor regain her strength, nor offer leadership to Europe, until the constitution is revised.

It is a tragic situation, because France inherently has so much that is sound and good. No country in western Europe has done more to repair the devastation of the war; none has such well-balanced resources of its own; none has so much of the intellectual drive that might lead the nations of western Europe toward closer union.

Only French Can Do It

The present semiparalysis in France is another reminder that the European Recovery Program cannot bring Europe all the way to salvation, no matter how many billions may be spent in the next four years. The French themselves are the only ones who can end the game of musical chairs, in which Schuman succeeds Ramadier, and Marie succeeds Schuman, and Schuman succeeds Marie, only to fail once more.

While this dreary game goes on, the whole course of European recovery is slowed down, and the French are unable to play the part they should in world affairs. This is precisely what the Communists wanted when they were members of the early postliberation government and influenced the making of the constitution.

For almost 80 years, ever since the downfall of Napoleon III, France has dreaded a strong executive. The Communists shrewdly played up to this popular fear after the 1945 liberation, for they saw their best hope in making the legislature (the National Assembly) all powerful and the executive weak.

A Few Weak Brakes

An earlier draft constitution, partly dictated by the Communists, was rejected by the voters. The present constitution, approved by an apathetic electorate in October of 1946, put a few weak brakes on the Assembly in the form of a second chamber with delaying and advisory powers. But the dominance of the Assembly remained.

If the American Congress were elected for a five-year term, and could make and unmake administrations without ever having to go to the voters during this period, the resulting chaos would not be unlike what is happening in France today.

The French Assembly is virtually secure against having to go to the voters during its five-year term. It can be dissolved, and a general election held, only if it has voted its lack of confidence in the government twice in 18 months. Even then a dissolution and an election is something the cabinet "may" order. There is nothing mandatory about it.

Cabinet Can Reshuffle

In practice a French cabinet can always resign and reshuffle itself before having a vote of censure passed upon it.

The electoral law, which is separate from the constitution, simply strengthens this immunity of the legislature. It fixes the Assembly's five-year term. It also sets forth a complex system of proportional representation which encourages "splinter" parties, and virtually prevents any single party from getting enough Assembly seats to govern.

It is possible, of course, for the present French non-Communist parties to revise the constitution and the electoral law. But the process was deliberately made difficult by the authors of the French constitution, just as it was in the United States. It would take more than three months even if all the non-Communist parties, including the Socialists and the Gaullists, made up their minds to push a revision through.

The constitution provides at least three and perhaps four stages for any constitutional revision, however slight. First, a majority of the Assembly must vote for a resolution to revise; next, after three months, a majority must give the resolution a second reading.

Complicated Procedure

Next, a bill embodying the revision must be voted by an absolute majority; and finally, unless the bill has passed by a two-thirds vote of the Assembly (the lower house) or a three-fifths vote of the entire Parliament, it must go to the people in a referendum.

Up to now the driving force for constitutional change has come from Gen. Charles de Gaulle, whose new party is not represented in the Assembly at all, although it won sweeping successes in the municipal elections. De Gaulle not only wants the dissolution of the Assembly made easier, but also insists on greater powers for the President of the Republic, especially in time of war.

It remains to be seen whether the non-Gaullist politicians will now see the need of revision. It is hard for them to summon up their courage now, because they are caught in an inflationary crisis-within-a-crisis. French workers are not thinking so much of constitutional reform as of the mounting prices they have to pay with inadequate wages.

If the new government permits a rise in wages, it throws the budget further out of balance and adds to the inflationary spiral. If it resists a rise in wages, it faces almost certain overthrow by Communist and Socialist votes in the Assembly.

Meantime, the necessary measures of internal housecleaning must wait; the drain on French foreign exchange resources goes on; the rest of the world loses confidence in what any French government may propose. And the British, listening to French calls for closer economic and political integration with western Europe, ask with some justice, "What are we supposed to integrate with?"

Red Troops EnterSinkiang, Nanking Hears

Nanking (Saturday), Sept. 4 (AP).—The small Chen Li news agency reported today that a brigade of "Soviet Red Army" troops had crossed the Soviet border and reached the vicinity of Aqsu, 100 miles inside China's far western Province of Sinkiang.

The agency did not give any source for its report, and no confirmation was available.

Soviet influence long has been strong in that area, and the large non-Chinese population has been at odds with Nanking for years.

While there was no confirmation of this report, all evidence pointed to developments in Sinkiang.

Tito's Troops Get Chummy, Greeks Report

Athens, Sept. 3 (AP). — Greek newspapers said today that Yugoslav and Greek troops have been getting chummy along the once-troubled border between the two countries.

As evidence that Permier Marshal Tito is cooling off toward Greek Communists, the press said on one section of the front Yugoslav soldiers danced with Greek troops to music blaring from a Greek sound truck.

On another occasion, the newspapers said, a Yugoslav border post officer visited a Greek frontier station and invited the Greek commander over the line for a chat on better relations.

Moscow Wants Early Big 4 Parley on Italian Colonies

London, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow reported today that Russia favors a meeting of the Big Four Foreign Ministers within the next two weeks to rule on the future of Italy's prewar colonies.

The broadcast did not mention the fact that a Big Four meeting on the problems of Berlin and all Germany had been proposed to East-West negotiators in Moscow.

Deputy foreign ministers of Europe's four victorious allies submitted a divided report on the Italian question last Tuesday. Unless the Big Four can agree by September 15, the Italian peace treaty requires that the question be referred to the United Nations General Assembly.

The Moscow broadcast, quoting a dispatch by the London correspondent of the Soviet official Tass News Agency, said that Soviet Deputy Georgi N. Zarubin proposed a Big Four session at the last meeting of the deputies here August 31.

Other sources confirmed that Zarubin had made such a remark at the deputies' meeting, but said that it was not considered a formal proposal. The Soviet deputy said that his government must decide whether a call for a meeting of the "first team" would be made through official diplomatic channels.

So far, no formal approach has been made by the Soviet government.

U. S., British Officials Discuss Colonies Here

By the United Press

American and British officials conferred on the future of Italy's prewar African empire here yesterday in an apparent effort to reach agreement before the issue is raised at the forthcoming Paris meeting of the United Nations General Assembly.

Officially, the State Department refused even to confirm or deny that the colonial question was under discussion.

But it was learned that top-level negotiations are in progress that may go a long way toward settling the future control of the Italian colonies, including the strategic Mediterranean colony of Libya.

The issue has been futher complicated by American presidential campaign politics. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate, has called for return of the colonies to Italy under trusteeship. President Truman retorted that he didn't think the matter was one for domestic political discussion.

Under terms of the Italian peace treaty, the United States, Britain, France and Russia have until September 15 to agree on the disposition of Italy's conquered colonies. If that deadline passes without agreement, as now seems almost certain, the issue then goes to the U. N. General Assembly, which convenes in Paris on September 21.

Shakeup in Italian Economy Held Need

Rome, Sept. 3 (NYHT).—James D. Zellerbach, the United States representative in the administration of the European Recovery Program in Italy, indicated today that a drastic and "painful" rearrangement of Italy's economy will be necessary if the Marshall Plan is to succeed in the country.

Zellerbach addressed the American Chamber of Commerce at Milan. It was his first major statement of policy since coming to Italy early this year.

The American administrator told the members of the Chamber of Commerce that large-scale firings of useless employes will be necessary throughout Italy and that many businesses that have survived from the Fascist "self-sufficiency" days will have to shut down.

The program will mean "an ordeal" for Italy, but there is little other hope of giving prosperity to this country's 46 million inhabitants, Zellerbach said.

2 Soldiers, 5 Civilians Hurt in Philippine Raid

Manila, Sept. 3 (AP).—Constabulary headquarters revealed today that two Filipino soldiers in the United States Army and five civilians were wounded yesterday in a daring raid by 150 Communist-directed Hukbalahaps on an outpost 3 miles from Clark Field.

Another group raided the business section of the town, looting, robbing and shooting merchants and residents.

Queen Bows Out

Dutch Hail Juliana as Ruler Today

Amsterdam, Sept. 3 (AP).—Queen Wilhelmina, in a quiet ceremony surrounded by flowers and grandeur, will abdicate Saturday after 50 years on the Dutch throne.

At the moment the 68-year-old monarch puts her signature to the instrument of abdication at about 12:30 p. m. (6:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time) she will be succeeded by her 39-year-old daughter, Princess Juliana, as the climax to the old Queen's golden jubilee celebration.

Juliana will be installed formally as Queen of the Netherlands on Monday in a ceremony at the Nieuwe Kerk, near the palace. But at noontime tomorrow she actually will take over officially an empire of 65 million, including nine million homelanders.

German-born Bernhard, 37-year-old sportsman and father of the princesses, already has been named Prince of the Netherlands.

In contrast to the high tiara Wilhelmina wore 50 years ago in the same church Juliana will wear a tiny stringed cap crowned with a huge diamond, and decorated with some smaller diamonds, pearls and rubbies. She will wear a blue sapphire gown under the same investiture robe that was worn by Wilhelmina in 1898.

Diplomats from over the world and royal families of Europe will be represented at the investiture. Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, Thomas J. Watson and Ambassador Herman Baruch will represent President Truman.

Chilean Envoy Tells of Long 'House Arrest' in Moscow

Stockholm, Sweden, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Luis Cruz Ocampo, former Chilean Ambassador to Russia, told reporters today that he had been kept in virtual house arrest in Moscow for nearly 11 months.

Cruz Ocampo remained in Moscow after his government severed diplomatic relations with Russia last October. He stayed in an effort to obtain permission for his Soviet daughter-in-law to leave the country. When permission was denitely refused, he left late last week.

The former ambassador arrived here yesterday en route to Paris, where he will represent his country at the United Nations General Assembly meeting beginning September 21.

"I had to identify myself every time I left my hotel room or returned," Cruz Ocampo told reporters. "One day I had to produce my identification documents 72 times. As time passed, I got used to it, however."

He refused to give any further details of his enforced stay in Moscow. His son chose to remain in the Russian capital with his "captive" wife.

Members of the Russian Embassy staff in Santiago, Chile, had been held as hostages for the safe return of the Chilean diplomats. The Russians were permitted to leave Santiago on the same day that Cruz Ocampo and members of his staff and family cleared the Soviet capital.

of high grain imports and a good harvest.

Responsible reports from the Soviet zone in recent weeks have given a picture of widespread food shortages. This condition was said to be due at least partly to requisitioning for the highly publicized Soviet plan to feed all of blockaded Berlin if western Berliners registered in the eastern sector of the capital.

Meanwhile, the Soviet-controlled press exploited four-power efforts to break the German deadlock as turning into a diplomatic triumph for Russia. The papers glowed with satisfaction at reports that the Western powers had agreed to adopt Russian-sponsored currency as the only legal tender in Berlin.

Convention Door Shut To Red-Backed Germans

Bonn, Genrmany, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Konrad Adenauer, president of the three-zone convention seeking to draft a constitution for a west German state, closed the door yesterday to participation by Soviet-sponsored Germans.

In an interview before leaving for the European Parliamentary Union Congress at Interlaken, Switzerland, Adenauer, Christian Democratic leader, said "the door can be opened again to participation by eastern Germans, but only when that area is again free and democratic"

Planes for Dutch

$29,685,874 Aid Approved To 7 Nations

The Economic Cooperation Administration yesterday approved $29,685,874 in foreign aid for seven countries, including five million for the purchase of seven Douglas DC-6 Air Transport for the Netherlands.

The amount brought the total of approved foreign assistance to $1,409,542,562 in the first five months of ECA's existence.

About 60 per cent of today's authorizations will be spent for recovery goods in countries other than the United States, despite the heavy outlay for the big transport planes.

Among the largest of these so-called "offshore" purchases with United States dollars will be $3,019,700 worth of frozen beef from Brazil, and another $1,067,400 worth of the same product from Uruguay. The beef will go to the Netherlands.

Chile will supply $2,900,000 worth of copper to Italy; Burma $1,156,425 worth of rice to China; Chile $1,420,000 worth of copper to France, and Canada $825,000 worth of copper to France.

The authorizations included:

Netherlands: $11,063,100, including the seven aircraft, chemicals, coal tar products, fertilizer and beef.

France: $7,383,948, including machinery, tungsten ore, nickel, lead, copper, rubber products, zinc and steel mill equipment.

China: $1,156,425, for Burmese rice.

French zone of Germany: $1,701,900, including copper, zinc, tin, lead and aluminum.

Italy: $4,146,150, including copra, copper, chemicals and costs of ocean freight.

Austria: $4,120,600, including cattle hides, zinc, tractors, super phosphate; linseed meal and peanuts.

Trieste: $113,751, including soy bean oil and crude coconut oil.

Meat eaters can expect little betterment this winter in the supply of beefsteaks, lamb chops and pork, the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

This is despite banner livestock feed supplies and a recordbreaking corn crop.

In fact, the department said, "meat production' per capita for the rest of 1948 will run around 10 per cent less than the rate at the same time last year."

Price? The department does not hazard a guess.

The monthly "Livestock and Meat Situation" bulletin said meat consumption in all of 1948 will total approximately 145 pounds per capita compared with 155 pounds in 1947.

Far Ahead of Prewar

But even the 145 pounds for each person is away ahead of prewar consumption. From 1935 to 1939 meat consumed per person per year averaged only 126.2 pounds. More people eat more meat now because they have more money—and that pushes up the price of steaks, chops and hams.

The department summarized the meat outlook this way:

"The banner feed supplies will allow heavier feeding and will be of slight benefit to the winter's meat supplies. They will delay the seasonal increase in supplies, as cattle and lambs are held back for grain feeding and hogs are fed to heavier weights.

"On the whole, the immediate effect of big feed crops on meat output will be small, since meat animal numbers can be increased only after a considerable lapse of time.

"First chance for a large improvement in meat supplies is from the larger spring pig crop that can be expected in 1949, but hogs from that crop may not reach market until late next year."

Not to Suffer Much

But the department indicated pork eaters won't suffer much this winter, if they have cash to lay on the butcher's counter. While fall production will be smaller than last, the department looked at the situation beginning about Christmas time like this:

"Total pork supplies this winter may be nearly as large as last, even though 3 per cent fewer pigs were raised in the spring of 1948 than a year earlier. Added slaughter caused by withholding of more gilts for breeding."

Cattle slaughter will be down the rest of 1948, the department said, due to the smaller national cattle herd, and to a larger prospective movement of stock to feed lots instead of slaughter.

But the department said more cattle probably will be on feed this winter than last, adding too fed-beef supplies in the winter and spring.

The lamb crop this year, the department said, was 8 per cent smaller than 1947 and "less than any crop on records going back to 1924."

Farmer Vote Drive Opens

trification Administration, on soil conservation and the farmer-committee system, and on the programs designed to stabilize and maintain farm prices at reasonable levels."

"First," he said, "they were successful in defeating the International Wheat Agreement.

"Second, they deprived the Commodity Credit Corporation of its power to help farmers by storing large grain crops which our lands have yielded this year.

Reaping Many Millions

"The special-interest group, the grain dealers," he said, "for whom this second crippling action was performed is now in the process of reaping many millions of dollars at the expense of the producers of wheat and other cereal grain. They stand to reap further profits when the big corn crop is harvested."

Brannan pointed out the effect of lack of effect of price supports on many items.

"There is no support of bread," he declared. "Wheat prices have come down almost a dollar a bushel in recent months, but bread prices have not come down. The 1948 support price for wheat is $2 a bushel compared with the 1947 season average price received by farmers of $2.31."

He pointed out that "certainly" the Agriculture Department doesn't support fish and coffee prices. Yet, he said, "retail prices for coffee in July were more than double and fish three times the prewar average." Both, he said, were higher than the average increase shown by retail foods.

$1.65 Bushel Support

He admitted that the Government is supporting potato prices. But, he said, "the support price for U. S. No. 1 potatoes is about 2¾ cents a pound, ($1.65 a bushel) retail prices about double that amount.

He recalled that the Administration urged a change in the price support formula for potatoes two years ago.

"Congress ignored them," he said.

He said the Government is not supporting the price of a single meat item, "nor the animal from which it comes." All are selling well above the support level.

"The Government is not supporting the price of chickens," he said. "The Government is not supporting the price of dairy products.

The Government has been buying some Midwestern eggs on and off during the summer at 35 cents a dozen. The average retail price has been running 70 cents or more in city markets."

Tavern Owner Held Liable in Hot Foot Case

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 3 (U.P.).—The New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals handed down a decision on the subject of "hot foots" today.

It ruled in the case of Richard Kiener, victim of a hot foot prank in a Paterson, N. J., tavern during a Christmas party last year. A playful friend Richard Grimes, inserted a match in Kiener's shoe and lighted it. Kiener's trousers caught fire and he suffered severs leg burns. The court ruled that the tavern owner, as well as Grimes was liable for damages suffered by Kiener.

Cripps Claims Agreement on Output Boost

London, Sept. 3 (NYHT).—British management and labor have agreed to "parallel and coordinated action" to bring about speedy improvement in Britain's industrial productivity, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps announced today.

Obviously designed for the consumption of British trade unionists, who are holding their annual conference next week at Margate, the statement said Britain can only attain economic independence by achieving a higher rate of output per man per year. Sir Stafford said that "a further growth in our labor force cannot be looked for."

Sir Stafford said he had consulted the Federation of British Industries and the Trades Union Congress, who represent "the two industrial partners."

As a result, he said, both organizations "are now taking in hand the question of organizing parallel and coordinated action to bring about as speedily as possible the widest practicable improvement of productivity."

It is understood that the chancellor, who is Britain's chief economic planner, holds that a general increase in over-all production of 2½ to 3 per cent can be the only solution to Britain's precarious balance of payments position.

The Gallup Poll

66 Pct. of Public Expects Another Year of Prosperity

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 3.—Comparatively few Americans expect a depression during the next year or even within the next four years.

If it is true that business fluctuations depend in part on the relative optimism or pessimism of the consumer, the mood today is certainly not one of gloom, at least not for the immediate future.

Interviewers for the Institute asked:

"Do you think there will be a serious business depression in the United States during the next year?"

The vote:

Yes	16%
No	66
No opinion	18

A somewhat higher percentage think a depression is likely in four years, as the following vote shows.

"Do you think there will be a serious business depression in the United States during the next four years—that is, between now and 1952?"

The vote:

Yes	37%
No	40
No opinion	23

The preponderant opinion is that if a collapse comes within the next few years, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey could deal with it better as President than Harry S. Truman or Henry A. Wallace.

This is shown in the following vote:

"If we should have a serious business depression in the next four years, which candidate, Dewey, Truman or Wallace, do you think could deal with it best?"

Dewey	39%
Truman	28
Wallace	4
No difference	12
No opinion	17

Europe Can't Agree on Own Help to ERP

Paris, Sept. 3 (NYHT).—For the second day in a row, the organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC) failed to agree on a recovery program for the first year of the Marshall Plan, ending next June 30. The annual plan already is three days overdue in the office of Economic Cooperation Administration Paul G. Hoffman in Washington.

Because the basic differences that caused the adjournment of yesterday's four-hour session had not been reconciled overnight, OEEC President Baron Snoy of Belgium, suggested today that the council adjourn once again until tomorrow to give individual delegations still another chance to smooth out their disagreements in private.

The chief stumbling block is Europe's inability to decide just how much aid can be provided for the first year of ERP from within Europe to supplement help from America. Because they do not know what they can expect to obtain inside Europe, several of the 17 ERP countries are unwilling to agree to the share of American dollars the OEEC wants to allot them.

Back of all the trouble there is a growing conviction in Europe that $4,857,000,000 in ECA assistance is not enough to satisfy even the minimum needs of all ERP countries for the year ending next June 30, and that the gap just cannot be filled by European products.

This leaves three alternatives: (1) give each country an inadequate amount of help, (2) give certain key countries enough and forget about others; or, (3) allow Europe to spend the $4,875,000,000 in nine months instead of 12 and go to Congress for a deficiency appropriation for the last quarter.

Argentine Institute of Trade Claims 250 Millions Profit

Buenos Aires, Sept. 3 (NYHT).—The Argentine Institute for the Promotion of Trade (IAPI) claimed a profit of 1,238,000,000 pesos, about $250,000,000, on its 1947 operations, according to a balance sheet distributed last night by the official government information office.

It was the first public financial statement by the government trading agency since it was created in 1946. Its trading policy has been to buy as cheaply as possible from Argentine producers, at fixed prices, and to sell on the international market at the highest price the traffic could bear, with the government pocketing the difference. It further trampled on private enterprise by entering the import field, bringing in everything from trucks to typewriters, or by taking a cut from businessmen on what they were permitted to export or import.

Bankers, economists and foreign diplomats have long been interested in finding out about the financial operations and machinations of IAPI, as its dealings, prices, profits and expenditures have been closely guarded official secrets.

Now the balance sheet is available, but it is so abbreviated as to be virtually useless. General financial terms are used, but they are neither explained nor broken down. One economist said, "It's not a balance sheet, it's eye wash for the public."

It covers the period through December 31, 1947. The balance the two weeks before the issuance shee is not signed by any IAPI or Central Bank Official. It is interesting to note that in the two weeks before the issuance of the statement two directors, Paschal Culotta, jr., and Enrique F. P. Genzano, resigned.

Army Officer Call Affects 3 to 5 Here

At least three, and perhaps five, brand-new Reserve second lieutenants in Greater Washington will be affected by the Army's order yesterday calling recent ROTC graduates to active duty.

One of new officers is a graduate of the University of Maryland and four finished their undergraduate studies during the summer at Georgetown University.

One of the Georgetown students, Herbert L. Tanenbaum, 20, of 1922 1st st. nw., expects to enter medical school in two weeks, so he expects to be exempt from the provisions of the new order.

Another Georgetown graduate who feels he will be out of reach of the law, part of the Selective Service Act of 1948, is John T. Frawley, of 1324 35th st. nw. He is a chemist with the Department of Agriculture, now studying biochemistry for his doctor's degree at eGorgetown.

But Alfred Burka, 20, of 1705 Allison st. nw., and Eugene A. Jenkins, jr., also 20 of 30 Strauss ave. Indian Head, Md., can feel the Army breathing on their necks.

Burke received his Reserve commission in the Infantry last June from Georgetown, while Jenkins became a Reserve officer in the Air Corps.

Both of them had planned to enter Georgetown's Law School this fall, but the Army's order makes no mention of exempting future jurists from its new roster.

"It was rather sudden," young Burka said last night after he was "given the word" in a letter from the Army, "and I didn't know quite what to think at first."

He said he'd received several Army communications in the past addressed to all second lieutenants in his graduating class.

"But when this one came to me personally, I know there must be something in it."

Burka says he won't mind serving, however, even if it does temporarily thwart his plans for studying law. If he goes, he'll merely pick up where he left off two years from now.

"After all," he reflected, philosophically, "there are plenty of men who lost four and five years from their normal occupation."

In much the same boat is Gene Jenkins. He, too, planned to enter law school this fall, having taken his B. S. in economics at Georgetown along with his military training.

Mother Doesn't Know

His mother said lastnight, while Jenkins was on vacation, that she didn't know what effect it would have on his plans, although he hadn't decided definitely where he would practice law when he finishes.

The Maryland graduate from the Washington area who may be affected by the call is Charles M. Marstellar, jr., of 8801 Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring.

His ROTC commanding officer said he was one of possibly five graduates of last summer who would probably come under the new order. Martellar could not be reached for comment.

Wife Stanch to Mitchum

"I LOVE MY HUSBAND"—So said Mrs. Robert Mitchum in Hollywood yesterday when she was reunited with her actor-husband for the first time since his arrest two days before in a marijuana raid. She was driving east with their two young boys when Mitchum was seized with a man friend and two blondes in one of the women's homes. Mrs. Mitchum said they had made up their differences and that she was "back home to stay with him"

Army to Call 55 D. C. Men In November

The Army will induct 55 District of Columbia men in November, the first month of the peacetime draft, it was announced yesterday by Frank D. Norton, deputy Selective Service director for the District.

"We'll have no trouble filling that call," said Norton last night. "We have a tallied registration of 21,075 men as of tonight."

Draft officials had expected the local draft call to be nearer the 100 figure, basing estimates on experience during the wartime draft, when the District usually supplied about 1 per cent of the national total. The November figure for the Nation is 10,000.

610 Men in 1924 Group Signed

As those born in 1924 completed their registration yesterday, 610 were signed up in the four city-wide centers. Municipal Center registered 180, the District Building 178, Dunbar High School 148 and the National Guard Armory 103.

Men born in 1925, who sign up today and next Tuesday, will find five police stations added to the list of registration places. These are in addition to the four city-wide centers, any of the city's 34 firehouses and American University's Leonard Student Center at Massachusetts and Nebraska aves. nw., or the School of Public Affairs Building, 19th and F sts. nw.

The police stations where draft-eligibles may register are No. 6 Precinct, 13th and Nicholson sts. nw.; No. 8, 42d and Albemarle sts. nw.; No. 9, 525 9th st. ne.; No. 11, Chicago st. and Nichols ave. se., and No. 13, 9th and U sts. nw.

Registration hourrs are from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Norton announced a meeting of all members of local boards, appeal boards and all Government appeal agents, who have not been sworn in, for 8 p. m. on Wednesday at the Department of the Interior auditorium. All local boards not yet organized will be asked to get going as soon as possible.

800 in Hyattsville

The Hyattsville (Md.) board, which serves upper Prince Georges County, registered more than 800 in the four days from Monday through Thursday, it was reported yesterday.

During the same period, Board 56 signed up 304 at the schools in Marlboro, Bladensburg and Laurel, and Board 57 signed up 305 in the schools of Surrattsville, District Heights Brandywine, Capitol Heights and Oxon Hill. Both boards have headquarters in Upper Marlboro.

In Montgomery County, Md., the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Board, located at the Community Center, yesterday signed up 87. The Silver Spring board received about 170 registrants at Jesup Blair House, Georgia ave. and Blair rd., while the Rockville board registered 98 at the postoffice building. Alexandria (Va.), registered 240 yesterday at Maury, Jefferson, Mount Vernon, George Mason, Lee and Parker-Gray schools and at the draft board office, Room 309, postoffice building.

Fairfax County (Va.) Selective Service headquarters signed up about 200 yesterday.

Fire Near Pittsburgh Destroys Trade Center

Pittsburgh, Sept. 3 (AP).—A spectacular, fast spreading fire today destroyed most of the business center in suburban Allison Park. Twelve persons were forced to flee to safety. Five business establishments and five apartments were destroyed. Damage was estimated at more than $100,000.

Charles Ralls, War II Veteran, Named VFW Jr. Commander

St. Louis, Sept. 3 (AP).—Charles C. Ralls, a lawyer of Seattle, Wash., was elected junior vice commander today by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the closing session of the VFW's forty-ninth annual national encampment.

Thus, the 44-year-old former Marine Corps major became the second World War II veteran to hold one of the organization's top three posts. Ralls is immediate past commander of the VFW in the State of Washington.

The convention followed tradition in elevating Senior Vice Commander Lyall T. Beggs, a Madison, Wis., attorney, to commander in chief by a unanimous vote. He succeeds Ray Brannaman of Denver, Colo.

The tradition also was followed in the case of Junior Vice Commander Clyde A. Lewis, lawyer, of Plattsburg, N. Y., who was elevated to senior vice commander by unanimous vote. Lewis, the first veteran of World War II to hold one of the top three VFW posts, is expected to become commander in chief next year and Ralls the following.

The racial question figured in debate which preceded the selection of Miami, Fla., as the 1949 convention city. The Miami advocates won out over Atlantic City, N. J., 6113 to 5526, on a rollcall vote.

Joseph C. Thompson of New York told delegates before the vote was taken that in the event Miami was named "everybody will have to be treated as first-calss citizens."

"I want to be able to tell any of the colored brethren, 'You can ride with me, eat with me and go with me any place,'" Thompson said.

Robert B. Handy, jr., of Washington, D. C., was reelected quartermaster general for the twenty-seventh consecutive time.

Negro Leader Defends Army In Report on Racial Policy

The Army—often the target of criticism for its policies on racial segregation—was defended yesterday by a Negro leader.

James C. Evans, West Virginia educator now serving as civilian aide to the Secretary of the Army for Negro affairs, submitted a lengthy report to Secretary Kenneth Royall summarizing the Army's policies and practices dealing with Negroes.

In the foreword, Evans said such a summary was called for in view of President Truman's recent executive order setting up a committee "on equality of treatment and opportunity in the armed services." The report, entitled "The Negro in the Army—Policy and Practice," was made public by the Department of the Army.

No Direct Criticism

Generally, the report is factual and historical. It contains no recommendations and no direct criticism. On the other hand there is restrained praise in spots for progress made in hadling racial problems.

"The Department of the Army," said Evans, "may well claim that it has given more attention, in quantity, quality and duration, to the subject of effective coordination of human effort as regards race than any other arm of the Government."

As evidence, Evans cited several publications issued by the Army to troops since the end of the war and used in seminars, committees, etc. One is a lecture given by chaplains entitled "Of One Blood" and another an "Army Talk" pamphlet entitled "Prejudice."

He states also that current Army policies prescribed that off-duty recreational facilities shall be carried on without segregation. "Violations and efforts to evade this policy at Army installations anywhere in the world meet with prompt corrective action when brought to official attention," Evans added.

Cites New Draft Act

Again, the Army official notes that under the new draft:

"For the first time it is assured that (a) all selectees will be called by birth dates without racial quotas and (b) Negro selectees will be trained at installations where community attitudes are not unfavorable."

(Ranking Army chiefs said last night there are no plans to assign Negro draftees only to special camps, but that they will be sent to training areas all over the country wherever facilities are available. Evans, himself, was out of town and no elaboration of his statement was obtainable. One official suggested, however, that "we have no bad spots for Negroes that I know of, such as existed during the war.")

Evans cites numerous gains made by Negroes in recent years "more for what they portend than for what they portray." He listed:

1. Sharp increase in Negro ROTC enrollment from 1939 to 1947—1450 to 3035—and the establishment of three additional ROTC units this year.

2. Assignment of Negro officers to the staff duty at the Pentagon, which "exemplifies the growing concept of optimal placement of personnel without regard to race."

3. Presence of nine Negro cadets at West Point—largest number in history. Eleven graduates of the Military Academy have been Negroes, he said, while at present there are 987 Negro officers in the Army (53 of them Regulars). However, he noted that Negroes formed only 1.32 per cent of the officer strength, while the 53 511 Negro enlisted personnel comprised 11.15 per cent of the over-all Army enlisted strength.

Army Calls 700 Officers than 90 days' continuous active service. June ROTC graduates who served more than that as GIs are encouraged to apply for duty but will not be called against their will.

Any one subject to call under the new order may volunteer for immediate duty without waiting for the October 15 date, it was said.

One exception will be made among young officers eligible for call under yesterday's order. Those studying medicine or dentistry. They will be allowed to finish their education before being called to duty.

Meanwhile, registration of men of draft age continued, with those born in 1924 signing up yesterday and the "class of 1925" scheduled to report today and Tuesday. Selective Service centers will be closed Sunday and Monday.

On Tuesday, the first of the classification forms will be mailed out to non-veteran, single men who have registered.

In Boston, members of the Young Progressives of America—a Wallace group—abandoned their picketing of draft headquarters, temporarily at least. The action was taken as extra police squads patrolled the nearby streets to prevent further violence involving prospective draftees, members of the YPA and spectators.

YPA leaders said they would stop picketing for a few days, but would send delegations to Mayor James M. Curley protesting the "failure of the police to protect the interests of the pickets."

At the same time, one of the picketers was fined $20 on a loitering charge by Boston Municipal Judge Jacob Lewiton. He was the Rev. Lowell F. Cantrell, a pacifist and a marine veteran. The United Press reported that the judge said he convicted the picketers—who passed out handbills urging men to refuse to register—partly on the basis of a decision by the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes that no one can "incite a violation of the law."

Alert Bus Driver Helps Police To Arrest Auto Theft Suspect

A Quantico, Va., Marine private who led Virginia police a wild 70-mile-an-hour chase through Alexandria was captured there early yesterday, thanks to an alert bus driver.

Held on charges of reckless driving and investigation of auto theft, he was identified by Alexandria police as Pvt. Robert H. Parris, 23, attached to the Quantico barracks.

Alexandria police said Parris, wearing civilian clothes when arrested, admitted having been intoxicated. They said he took the sedan, belonging to The Washington Post, at 2 a. m., from the Washington Garage, 1212 E st. nw., while no one was looking.

When he dashed through Alexandria at speeds up to 70 miles an hour, local police took up the chase, pursuing him down Mount Vernon Memorial hwy. to the Mount Vernon parking lot, where the marine abandoned the car and ran into nearby woods.

Police, unable to find him, alerted all area bus drivers to watch for a man of Parris' description.

Later, A. B. & W. Bus Driver Leo Ellis, 315 E. Oak st., Alexandria, picked up a man near Mount Vernon whose trousers were wet with dew. When the driver reach Alexandria, he left his bus and phoned police, who then arrested Parris in the bus.

Prince Georges Trailer Camp Law Delayed

Enforcement of Prince George County's stringent new trailer park law was being held up Thursday pending a report on trailer conditions by County Sanitary Inspector Charles L. Woods.

Woods, however, was reported on leave and will not return to his office until Tuesday.

Meanwhile, operators of the county's six trailer parks, housing a total of about 300 trailers, said they were attempting to comply with the new statute, but some said the necessary changes might require "several months."

Bans Permanent Additions

The new law bans permanent additions to trailers. A survey yesterday showed most trailer occupants had either demolished or stored their permanent additions, such as porches and added rooms.

At Cherry Hill park, however, Manager Morris Gurevich said nine trailer residents who had not heeded his request that they tear down the additions, would be given 30-day eviction notices.

The law also increases from 650 square feet to 1000 square feet the minimum size of each trailer lot; requires operators to install hard-surface sidewalks and roads in their parks and sets up minimum standards for washroom and toilet facilities.

May Require Year

According to Gurevich, construction of sidewalks and roads in his park possibly will require a year because "you can't even get cement these days." He said he was hopeful the county would allow the operators a "reasonable" length of time to make the improvements.

At the National Trailer Court in Berwyn, Owner George Schneider said he would have to evict half of his remaining 60 trailers to comply with the minimum space standards.

The delay to await the sanitary inspector's report was announced by Dr. Thomas S. Englar, county health officer, who is charged with enforcing the law. The new law became effective Wednesday.

Moore Is Named Navigator by K. of C. Here

Guy R. Moore of 7-H Crescent rd., has been named faithful navigator of Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, it was announced yesterday.

Moore

Moore, who is affiliated with the George Washington Cemetery Co., becomes presiding officer with his new post. He has served three terms as district deputy of the Maryland State Council, Knights of Columbia, and is past grand knight of Prince Georges Council, Hyattsville. He and other new assembly officers will be installed September 20 in ceremonies in the Sapphire Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

18 Charged With Stealing Teeth From War Dead

Brussels, Belgium, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—A band of "human hyenas" who mutilated the bodies of Americans killed in the Battle of the Bulge to steal gold rings and teeth was partly broken up today with the arrest of 18 men.

Police said six of the gang were employed by the United States War Graves Commission to exhume bodies and ship them home. The others were jewelers.

Two of the accused were Nazi collaborators released last year after serving three years of their 10-year sentences.

Ex-Czech President Eduard Benes Dies

tors at his bedside said the end came in a deep sleep without "an apparent struggle with death."

All official announcements referred to Benes as "president."

Vojta Benes, the President's brother and one-time Socialist Democratic leader, was reported to have been at the country home. He was reported several months ago to have left the country and his return was not explained.

Communist Clement Gottwald, who succeeded Benes as President, was at Kolodeje Castle, his summer home outside Prague. He immediately ordered presidential flags at half staff and dispatched a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Benes. In it, Gottwald said:

"A man honored and loved by all is leaving us. We bow before you who were with him in both good and bad times and were always a strength to him and stayed beside him in his last hours. Your pain should be lessened by the knowledge that we and all the nation share it with you."

[The government-controlled Prague radio broadcast a eulogy stating that Benes' sympathies had shifted from West to East in recent years," the United Press reported.

[A 20-minute official biography read over the radio said Benes had "accepted the principles of peoples democracy."]

[Describing Benes' capitulation to the Communists in February, the broadcast said:

[Benes listened to the voice of our people and recognized the justice of their demands, and although it personally was very difficult for him, he contributed to the solution of the crisis in the spirit of the Czechoslovak peoples' will."]

Twice Saw Nation Swept By Powerful Neighbors

Scholar, philosopher and humanitarian, Eduard Benes was architect of a nation he twice saw swept up by powerful and greedy neighbors.

Twenty years after he and Thomas G. Masaryk founded the young Republic of Czechoslovakia, it was destroyed by the Munich agreement which gave it over to Adolf Hitler.

And 10 years after that the little country, battered and reeling from the second World War, again was the victim of a ruthless neighbor. In June, 1948, a minority of his own people supported by the Russian army delivered Czechoslovakia to Soviet control.

Only then did the will which had carried Benes through those years of hope, realization and defeat resign itself to the inevitable. Already ill and exhausted, the grand old man of Czechoslovakia fast declined until death finally claimed him.

Benes fought the Munich pact with all the strength that was in him, but failed. He resigned the presidency of his country and went into exile despite British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's assurance that the cession of the Sudetenland to Nazi Germany assured "peace in our time." He was lecturing in Chicago five months later when Hitler gobbled up the rest of Czechoslovakia in violation of the Munich agreement.

Chamberlain on "Principle"

On the outbreak of World War II, Chamberlain told Benes that "we look forward, through the triumph of the principle for which we have taken up arms, to the relief of the Czech people from foreign domination." That must have been small comfort for the man whose life was wrapped up in the land which had been bargained out from under him.

He was recognized by the Allies as head of the refugee government of Czechoslovakia and spent the war years in exile, mostly in England. He visited the United States occasionally and, in 1943, addressed a joint session of Congress.

Referring to the sponsorship of the new republic in 1918 by Woodrow Wilson, Benes said his country after the war would reconstruct itself as a democracy, "considering itself again the godchild of the United States."

The exiled President returned to his people on the crest of the Allied tide of victory. In April, 1945, he set up a government at Kosice in eastern Czechoslovakia and in May returned to Prague, which he had tragically left seven years before.

On his way back home Benes stopped in Russia, where he had signed a 20-year mutual assistance pact in 1943. There he said:

"The path of a free Czechoslovakia lies through Moscow and the Soviet Union, whose gallant armies, with the aid of their allies, are liberating Europe."

The Russian alliance, he said later, should be regarded as the cornerstone of Czechoslovakian policy. Less than five years later he was to find the cornerstone had consumed the edifice.

While Benes endeavored to patch his government together and to help his people rise from the wreckage left them by the German and Russian armies, forces were at work which were to prove greater than his faith, his skill, his experience and the love of most of his people.

In the fall of 1946, the United States suspended a 90-million-dollar aid program after Czechoslovakia supported at the Paris Peace Conference Russian charges that America was attempting to "enslave Europe economically. Britain then took similar action with respect to a 10-million-dollar credit.

Communists Held Majority

So powerful had the Communists become in little Czechoslovakia that by 1946 they held more seats in Parliament than any other party. That year Parliament reelected Benes President unanimously and he named Communist Klement Gottwald premier in a cabinet containing six Communist members.

The political storm which had been lowering since Benes returned to his homeland gradually spread and swept down upon him in early 1948. Anti-Communist cabinet members, in an effort to force a showdown, offered their resignations.

But the Communists, perfectly organized and unanimous in their aims, took the initiative from the antis and held it. They demanded that Benes accept the resignations and permit Gottwald to pick the next cabinet.

After six days of indecision and tumult, during which Communist action committees seized the ministries and Communist-directed police closed all other party headquarters, Benes capitulated. The Gottwald cabinet was sworn in on February 27 and Benes was reported to have said it could have "only evil results."

Tragedy Followed Tragedy

Tragedy followed upon tragedy. March 9, Benes had a talk with Jan Masaryk, son of his old comrade and first President of the republic, Thomas G. Masaryk. Next day young Marasryk was dead after falling from a window in his apartment. The Communist government called it suicide, while his friends said he was murdered.

Benes, ill and frail, went to Masaryk's funeral from the country home where he was in virtual retirement. Then, on June 7, he resigned the Presidency in a letter to Gottwald which expressed the hope the Republic would be spared.

Born May 28, 1884, at Kozlany, Bohemia, Benes first became President of Czechoslovakia in 1935, when the elder Masaryk had to relinquish the office because of illness. Prior to that time, Benes had been foreign minister in Masaryk's cabinet for 17 years which he devoted to an earnest quest for the security of his little country.

He was the youngest of 10 children of a peasant couple who were determined that he and his brothers and sisters would have the advantages they had missed. They helped him through Charles University and he went on to the Sorbonne, paying his way by writing for Prague newspapers. Later he attended the university at Dijon, from which he received his doctor of philosophy degree, and in 1912 was appointed instructor in sociology at Charles University.

Benes and Masaryk first met while Benes was the older man's pupil at the University of Prague. In 1914 they began working together in a conspiracy to free their country from Austro-Hungarian domination. Upon the outbreak of World War I Masaryk went to Switzerland but Benes remained in Prague establishing an undercover organization. He filed across the Bavarian mountains into Switzerland in 1915 with the Austrian police at his heels.

There he and Masaryk campaigned for the independence of their homeland, a project which was to achieve success October 28, 1918, when the Republic of Czechoslovakia came into existence.

Russia Claims Last-Minute Action Won War for Allies

Moscow, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Izvestia charged today the Russian attack on Japan in the last days of World War II came just in time to prevent a deal between Japanese militarists and American "reactionaries."

The official newspaper said Russia had played "the decisive role in insuring . . . peace in the Far East."

"It wasn't the atom bomb, but the Soviet attack that cracked Japan's best army, which forced the capitulation," the article said. "The Soviet Union's entry into the war shattered the plans of the Japanese military clique, and made it difficult to conclude a deal between Japanese and American reaction at the expense of the democratic nations."

B-29 Crashes In Holland; Another 'Lost'

London, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—An abandoned United States Superfortress crashed off the Netherlands coast today at the start of a four-day mock "Battle of Britain." The crew bailed out after an engine caught fire and 10 of the 11 men reportedly aboard have been rescued.

Meanwhile, another B-29 was reported zooming pilotless across the Soviet zone of Germany toward Russia.

British and American officials at three places in Germany announced this second Superfort was heading east across the Soviet zone, but a few hours later American Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaen said it knew nothing about any abandoned United States plane flying in any direction.

A British dispatch reported still later that a crewless plane, believed to be a Superfortress, had been sighted between Munster and Bremen, Germany, flying northeastward.

British sources in Berlin had said the plane was reported over Lubeck, headed east across the Soviet zone. Officials said the crew baled out in the British zone and that for a time the plane flew along the British air corridor in Germany.

United States Air Force headquarters at Wiesbaden, said names of the crew were not yet available. Officers said the plane was from the Second Bomb Group of the provisional Third Air Division in England.

Authorities in Germany said they believed the pilotless plane also was participating in the mock battle being waged by British and American forces over Britain in observance of the ninth anniversary of World War II.

Reports from Flushing, the Netherlands, said 10 of the 11 crew members aboard the crashed aircraft had been rescued. All but two landed in the water. All were reported uninjured except Sergt. Walter Doyle Roquet, whose condition was critical.

The plane crashed in the mouth of the River Scheldt and sank immediately.

(The Associated Press named as among those rescued Lieut. Comdr. Harold Wilson of Oklahoma, Frank Palzel, Franklin Dixon, D. Mayo, T. C. Graham, B. E. Thornton, G. H. Burdge, A. Brofft and Roquet.

Two who bailed out came down at Borsselen, just as a big festival on th eoccasion of the Queen's Golden Jubilee was being held. Burgomaster G. A. Bak, still wearing his morning coat and the silver chain of office, led the rescue.

Two others came down on land at the village of Krabbendan. The others fell into the Scheldt River and were rescued by Dutch boats. One of the rescued men said so many people helped him out of the water that they held him by the arms, legs and hair.

(The Associated Press said the bomber, one of 90 England-based B-29's engaged, was in an "attacking" force in the most extensive air exercises over Britain since the war. Hundreds—the exact number was kept secret—of Britain's latest model fighters, twin-engine Hornets and a dozen other types attempted to repel an "enemy" bombing force. The fighters included 600-mile-an-hour Meteor jets.

(The Superforts, flying at 30,000 feet, made daylight attacks against Birmingham, London, Hull, Coventry and other midland and southern industrial centers. Lancasters and twin-engine fighters used as bombers "attacked" tonight.)

Zionist Action Committee Severs Jewish Agency Ties

By Kenneth Bilby

Tel Aviv, Sept. 3 (NYHT).—The World Zionist Action Committee severed all but one political tie with the government of Israel here today and then adjourned after an all night session.

Five Israeli cabinet ministers, including Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and Foreign Minister Moshe Shertok, were dropped from the Zionist executive and only Eliezer Kaplan, minister of finance, was retained without portfolio on the governing board.

Kaplan's position as treasurer went to Rabbi Israel Goldstein of New York, president of the World Confederation of General Zionists. He will move to Jerusalem where permanent executive headquarters will remain.

The 19-member executive heretofore composed of representatives of Mapam Labor Party, General Zionists and Misrachi Orthodox Jews, was broadened to include one right-wing revisionist and two left-wing Mapam Labor Party leaders. No chairman was selected to replace Ben-Gurion, but Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver will remain at the head of the agency's greatly augmented American section.

Although Americans scored a practical victory through the removal of six cabinet members, the retention of Kaplan thwarted their demand for total separation. This question which has been bitterly disputed in the 11 days of the party caucuses will unquestionably crop up again at the Zionist council meeting next summer in Tel Aviv.

To erase the bitterness, Jewish leaders devoted the closing minutes to appeals for unity of all Jews. Shertok confidently asserted that world Jewry was never more united than now.

As one of its first moves, the agency executive adopted a resolution declaring its financial separation from the new government. As of August, the resolution declared, no funds of the Jewish Agency shall be contributed directly or indirectly to the Israeli government.

Export-Import Bank Defers Israel Loan

The Export-Import Bank said yesterday it is postponing action on Israel's application for a 100-million-dollar loan for the time being because of "unsettled political conditions" in the Middle East.

A spokesman told a reporter the bank's board of directors has taken this attitude because they must consider the stability of the area as a factor affecting reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan.

Congress requires the bank to obtain "reasonable assurances of repayment" in all loans it makes to foreign governments.

The bank, however, he emphasized, is ready and willing to resume active consideration of Israel's request once the unsettled conditions are cleared up.

The "unsettled political conditions" presumably stem from the possibility of further war in Palestine between Jews and Arabs.

"We are keeping an active watch on the situation in the Middle East in the light of the various applications we have from that area," said the spokesman.

The provisional government of the new republic of Israel formally applied for a 100-million-dollar credit from the United States several months ago, explaining it wanted the money for development and reconstruction purposes.

The bank's position toward the Israeli request is "entirely consistent" with its previous policy, said the spokesman.

He recalled that the bank's board of directors last year permitted a loan of 500 million dollars earmarked for China to expire because of "unsettled conditions" in that country—presumably the civil war.

State Department officials made no comment on the bank's statements. Arab country representatives in Washington likewise declined to comment.

Jews, Arabs Fail to Agree On Withdrawal

Jerusalem, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—An official Israeli announcement said tonight that today's truce conference here between Arab and Jewish representatives ended "without any final decisions being adopted."

The conferees, meeting under the chairmanship of United States Brig. Gen. W. E. Riley, were trying to reach an accord for withdrawal of troops from a demilitarized Red Cross zone in southern Jerusalem. The last conference on that issue, held three weeks ago, ended in failure.

Those present at today's meeting included the Jerusalem area commanders of the Israeli army, the Trans-Jordanian Arab Legion and the Egyptian army. A number of United Nations observers also were present. Riley is Count Folke Bernadootte's Jerusalem representative.

The Holy City was relatively quiet today as a result of a specially requested cease fire which began at noon yesterday. An Israeli communique said the Arabs fired six-pounder shells from the former British police depot area last night, but no casualties were reported. An Israeli soldier was fatally wounded by a sniper in the southern part of the Holy City yesterday afternoon, the communique said.

Ex-Presidential Yacht At Haifa With Refugees

Haifa, Palestine, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—The former American presidential yacht Mayflower entered Haifa port today with a group of Jewish refugees aboard.

The 52-year-old vessel, renamed the Mala and flying the flag of Panama, sailed from Marseille, France, eight days ago.

(Earlier a Panamanian spokesman said the Mala probably would be stricken from the Panama merchant registry because she sailed secretly.)

The old Mayflower, which served Presidents from Theodore Roosevelt to Herbert Hoover, was reconditioned last April.

Jap Reports Purge Of Ultra-Nationalists

Tokyo, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—A Japanese government official said today that more than 200,000 Japanese military, government and business leaders have been "purged" because of ultra-nationalism under the Allied occupation.

Persons found guilty of ultra-nationalism will not be allowed to hold public offices, government jobs, or important positions in industry under terms of the "purge" program.

Miss Truman Heads Back to Washington

Independence, Mo., Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Miss Margaret Truman, daughter of the President, left by train today for Washington. Her mother, Mrs. Harry S. Truman, and Mrs. Truman's mother, Mrs. D. W. Wallace, are expected to return here the first of next week from Denver, where they have been visiting.

Miss Truman has said she expects to accompany her father on several of his campaign trips, including one to Detroit Monday.

Communications Cut By Rebels in Burma

Rangoon, Burma, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Authoritative but unofficial sources reported today that Communist rebels have cut communications between Rangoon and Moulmein, one of the first objectives captured by the Japanese when they overran Burma in 1942.

50 Die in China Wreck

Hong Kong, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—A train en route to this British China coast colony from Canton jumped the track on a flood-weakened bridge, reportedly killing 50 persons, a railway official said tonight.

Wallace Sees Peril In Segregation

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 3.—Henry Wallace, explaining why he had met the segregation problem "head-on" in the South, said today that it was to this country's national interest to do away with segregation of races.

"If the United States is to be secure in a world largely populated by men of color," Wallace said, "then the end of segregation must come to pass."

In a speech before 2000 in Bellvue Park here in Memphis, the presidential candidate of the Progressive Party said that the United States would find itself in "grave peril" in the event of another war if "insults" to nonwhites persist.

An egg was hurled against his car as he drove away from the meeting.

After saying that "our Achilles heel" is in South America, Wallace continued:

"We cannot insult in this country men of color without insulting our South American friends who have already learned the lesson that all men are brothers."

Aside from the matter of national security, said segregation was a "sin"—a great waste of lives.

Wallace praised the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Mississippi River delta's cottor yield and Cordell Hull—"the greatest statesman Tennessee ever had."

After his TVA reference he said, "Other river valleys must be harnessed, too."

"Power belongs to people, not to individual power trusts," he said.

Wallace was heckled by the crowd, but there was no untoward incident at the park. Police reserves were spaced 10 feet apart and Wallace was too far away for any effective egg-throwing.

The hecklers yelled, "Why did Roosevelt throw you out?" A Negro was on the platform with Wallace.

Wallace came into Tennessee quietly and there were only a few jeers as he arrived at Memphis. He went directly to radio station WHHM for a broadcast in which he declared, among other things, that the Federal Government must spend "one billion dollars yearly to help Southern agriculture and industry."

The presidential candidate winds up his Southern tour, frequently marked by barrages of eggs and tomatoes aimed at him, with appearances Saturday at Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn.

Before coming to Tennessee he had provided a problem for Arkansas officials today by attempting to file in that State a slate of "independent" electors backing his candidacy.

Arkansas Secretary of State C. G. Hall has under advisement a petition of Wallace supporters seeking to place on Arkansas' November general election ballot a ticket of Wallace presidential electors designated as "independents" instead of Progressives.

The independent designation Hall said, apparently was designed to sidestep a State law requiring officials of a new political party to state under oath that they are not Communists and have no Communist affiliations.

Arkansas provided a lull for Wallace in his stormy Southland tour. No incident marked his visit from the time he arrived by plane at 12:30 this morning, until he departed in a motorcade for Memphis 12 hours later.

Before going to Hall's office, Wallace attended a breakfast for Negroes and whites at the home of a Little Rock supporter, Leonard Farmer, formerly of Connecticut. Later he greeted backers and curious State employes on the Capitol steps, was interviewed over radio station KLRA and addressed a small audience in a North Little Rock CIO hall.

Hall, who said last January that he would keep Wallace off the Arkansas ticket if legal means could be found to do so, had ready copies of a statement and of two acts barring the Arkansas ballot to Communists or others who advocate the overthrow of Government by violence.

Apparently anticipating just such action, H. W. Tucker, Batesville, Ark., attorney, submitted a petition attempting to qualify seven "independent" electors for the November ballot.

Hall then began to read his statement, pointing out provisions of the two acts and requiring officers of the Progressive Party in Arkansas to file affidavits that they do not violate the acts.

Tucker broke in to say "that has no connection," but Hall snapped, "I choose to read it anyway," and continued.

He suggested that in addition to Arkansas Progressive Party officials, the candidates for President and Vice President and national party officials file the same affidavit.

Tucker again insisted that Hall's statement was out of place since "electors are not bound to vote for anyone." Hall then asked "Do I understand that the Progressive Party is not trying to file?"

Tucker answered, "We are not saying."

Hall then said he would take the petition under advisement and submit information on the Progressive Party to an advisory committee of past Arkansas American Legion commanders who are attorneys and the Arkansas attorney general.

After Wallace and his group left, Hall said the move to file as "independents" was "subterfuge."

"I hardly see," he said in a prepared statement, "How there could be a doubt in anybody's mind that these independent electors represent Henry Wallace and his Progressive Party."

dered his resignation to the State committee, but it was not accepted."

Primm said there had been press reports of Colonel Rushton's resignation as national committeeman, but up to now the committee had received no official notification.

Would Commend Him

"Colonel Rushton is the State campaign manager in Alabama for the Dixiecrats and if he has resigned we commend him for his action, as we consider he has left the Democratic Party" Primm added.

Rushton later told the Associated Press in Montgomery that he could not resign from the national committee "on my own motion." He said he suggested to the State Democratic executive committee that it would no longer desire representation on the national committee, but it took no action. Later he said he advised Chairman McGrath of his offer to resign.

Rushton said Primm was "misinformed" about his being Alabama's campaign manager for the Dixiecrats.

The Democratic "war to the finish" with the Dixiecrats reached white heat as President Truman arranged to skirt Southern border territory en route West in mid-September, probably speaking in the South later on.

May Speak in Richmond

After a conference with the President, Gov. Roy J. Turner of Oklahoma, chairman of the National Truman-Barkley Club, told reporters Mr. Truman would speak in a number of Oklahoma cities en route West.

The White House also considered an invitation from a group of Young Democrats in Virginia for Mr. Truman to speak in Richmond before the election.

Another White House caller, Maury Maverick, San Antonio lawyer and former New Dealer told reporters Mr. Truman "will carry Texas, there's no doubt about that."

White House release of Mr. Truman's complete itinerary for his five-speech swing into Michigan Monday, meanwhile, booked a rear platform talk in Toledo Ohio, en route back. He will reach Toledo at 10:27 p. m., EST Monday and stay there 30 minutes.

On the GOP campaign front, Republicans continued to bang away at Mr. Truman on the Communist issue. GOP Chairman Hugh D. Scott, jr., demanded that the President say whether he accepted Communist Party indorsement in his 1944 vice presidential race.

Dennis Is Quoted

Scott quoted Eugene Dennis, Communist Party secretary, as saying in the Daily Worker on August 12, 1944, that Communists should refrain from indorsing candidates "unless this is done with full agreement with the given candidate and with our collaborators."

"If Mr. Truman did in fact accept or approve such official indorsement of the Communists in the 1944 campaign," said Scott, "he owes it to the American people today to set the record straight. If there was a working agreement between Mr. Truman and the Communists in 1944, when was that agreement terminated?"

In reply to Scott, the Democratic National Committee quoted the late President Roosevelt as repudiating the support of Communists, Fascists or those committed to any other foreign ideology in a radio speech on October 5, 1944.

On the labor front, President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, told reporters in Rochester the Wallace third-party campaign had "flattened out." Whitney predicted Mr. Truman would be elected.

As Democratic national headquarters slammed away at the Dixiecrats for the second straight day, so-called "loyal" Democrats arranged to meet Wednesday in Columbia, S. C., to choose a slate of Truman-Barkley electors.

Convention Due Later

A convention will be called later to formally nominate the slate and choose "regular" national committee members, it was learned.

Democratic national headquarters touched off the battle Thursday by promising this group party recognition over the Dixiecrat-controlled State executive committee, which named Thurmond-Wright electors.

Primm meanwhile denied that McGrath had said Senators and Representatives aligned with the Dixiecrat movement would lose their party status. He said the party could not oust "duly elected members of the House and Senate."

Eggs Splatter Wallace's Car . . .

LOUISIANA GREETING—The window of a car in which Henry A. Wallace (rear seat, center) drove away from a radio station in Shreveport, La., is splattered with eggs thrown by a crowd which collected on the sidewalk. The Progressive Party candidate received applause as well as the egg barrage, however. Wallace flew to Little Rock, Ark.

Progressives To Buck Play Segregation

Members of the Young Progressive Party said yesterday they will attempt to take a mixed racial group into the Rosedale Playground at 1 p. m. today as part of their drive to end segregation in play areas here.

Miss Nonny Lautman, 20, head of the antidiscrimination committee of the Young Progressives, told a press conference at Wallace headquarters, 1722 Connecticut ave. nw., she would lead a group of 20 youngsters to Rosedale—with the hopes of getting in and playing some baseball. She said the group would be half colored and half white.

She recalled that two efforts to achieve joint use of the playground —at 17th and Gales st. ne.—proved fruitless last Saturday.

Miss Lautman also announced that a delegation of Young Progressives will confer at 2 p. m. Tuesday with Harry Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, on the play situation.

She promised the organization will "continue to fight for the rights of all young people in the District to the use of play facilities."

Efforts to enlist neighborhood support for non-discriminatory use of the Rosedale Playground led to a near riot Wednesday night. Discussing the incident, Miss Lautman reported that the Young Progressives group was hooted, threatened and in some instances stoned by members of a crowd which gathered to hear them.

The Progressive Party pledged itself to "stand with the Young Progressives in forthright opposition to segregation in the playgrounds."

Writing Task Given 2 Wallace Attackers

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 3 (AP).—"I disapprove of what you say, but I'll defend to the death your right to say it."

Two youths who accorded Henry Wallace, Progressive Party presidential nominee, an egg and fruit reception here Monday, were ordered to write that famous Voltaire quotation following their trial today in Municipal-County Court.

S. G. Wilson, 19, will write the quotation 100 times and Edward Easty, 18, 50 times. Wilson was charged with hitting Wallace on the head with an egg, Easty with missing Wallace with a ripe peach.

Dewey Blames Labor Strife On Moscow and Washington

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey boasted today of "a strike record second to none" in New York and blamed Moscow, Washington and "selfish men" for the labor strife the State has experienced.

And the Republican presidential nominee took a quick second jab at Moscow.

In appealing for funds to provide food and clothing for relief of the people of Poland, Dewey said they have had to endure starvation, cold and disease "under a Red regime."

Dewey's labor views were expressed in his annual Labor Day proclamation, issued before he left to spend the weekend at his farm in Pawling.

"Example of Peace"

"In so far as we have been able to manage our own affairs," Dewey said, "we have achieved what is perhaps the best example of peace on a front where diverse interests must always be reconciled if free labor and free government are not to be suppressed.

"As the Nation's leading industrial State, New York's strike record is second to none. Where we have had trouble, the sources of it may be traced to tap roots which are fed in Moscow or in Washington or in the designs of selfish men ruthlessly pursuing power or wealth."

Dewey did not elaborate on his coupling of Washington and Moscow. But mention of Moscow indicated he was talking about Communist influence in the labor field.

Two days ago Dewey said the job of cleaning Communists from Washington would get started "as fast as a Republican President can be elected."

Lauding New York's workers, the Governor said they "play an historic role in being an object lesson to the Nation."

He expressed belief that "given an opportunity, their fellow workers in mills and mines and factories across America will respond in exactly the same way."

Thus he made an indirect bid for the votes of rank and file union members in the CIO and AFL, whose national leaders are backing President Truman.

"It is in our State," Dewey said, "that a living example of harmonious labor relations forecasts what can come into being for the entire Nation."

In his appeal for aid for the "unhappy people of Poland," Dewey said:

"Millions of Poles, including helpless children, have not enough to eat nor clothes to protect them from the weather. As we have learned from numerous reliable sources, human suffering leaves the hearts of dictators untouched.

Hits Poland's Rulers

"The present government of Poland, furthermore, lacks the capacity to cope with the needs of its subjects and treats their misery with incompetence as well as indifference."

The drive for funds is being conducted by an agency known as American Relief for Poland, Inc. Dewey is a sponsor.

"Let nobody fear that his generosity will be misused or that America will not have due credit," the Governor said. "The food and clothing being sent from here will be distributed in Poland by American citizens, field representatives of American Relief for Poland."

Gov. Jester, Brother United

New York, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Claude Jester, 75, was reunited today with his half-brother, Gov. Beauford H. Jester of Texas, but he declined to return to the Lone Star State although he has been on relief here and was put out of his rooming house for nonpayment of rent.

After breakfasting with the Governor, Jester told newsmen he had lived in New York for almost 50 years and considered it his home, although he loved and admired Texas.

"My family has been patient with my individual ideas, and perhaps I should say my idiosyncrasies," he said. "Not being a man of immediate family, I have always followed my own whims and lived the kind of life which suited my temperament. That, to me, is a good life."

Governor Jester had asked New York police to help locate his half-brother after he learned that Claude had left the rooming house, two weeks behind in rent, and had not been seen since August 6. But Jester called the Governor's hotel early today after he had read about the search for him.

Police located him in a telephone booth as he was talking to the Governor and took him to the latter's suite at the Roosevelt Hotel. Patrolman Gerald Doherty said the old man was wearing an ancient straw hat, a dingy blue suit and a dirty white shirt.

The Governor said he and his brother would "have a long talk" about the latter's future plans. He said Claude always had refused to accept financial assistance from any member of his family, but, the Governor added, "I'll see what I can do about that angle, too, now."

O'Malley, Free in Bail, Denies He's Millionaire

Philadelphia, Sept. 3 (AP).—Magistrate John J. O'Malley, free in $75,000 bail on charges of malfeasance in office, denied today he was a millionaire and listed income of $227,000 for the last 11 years.

O'Malley offered his income analysis to refute a statement made yesterday when he was arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Joseph Sloane charged with 517 corrupt and dishonest acts while chief of Philadelphia's 33 magistrates.

Stand of Fitzgerald Before House Indorsed

Philadelphia, Sept. 3 (AP).—Spokesmen for District Council No. 1, CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers today issued a resolution in support of Albert J. Fitzgerald, national UE head now appearing before the House Labor subcommittee.

"We support President Fitzgerald in his condemnation and defiance of this infamous committee for its slanderous attacks on our union and its leadership," the resolution said.

Boy, Overboard, Clings To His Costly Shoes

Astoria, Ore., Sept. 3 (AP).—Eight-year-old Jerry Montgomery, a novice swimmer, fell from a bridge into the swift Mecanicum River, and started struggling toward shore. Someone yelled at him to discard his heavy shoes.

"No siree," he called back. "They cost too much."

Air Parcel Post

Wednesday marked the inauguration of a new type of postal service which is overdue. It is now possible to ship packages weighing up to 70 pounds by air parcel post with reasonable assurance of 24-hour delivery in most places in the United States. This service is already available to western Europe, and today it will be extended to include some 20 Latin American countries. Domestic rates will vary from 55 cents for the first pound and 4 cents for each additional pound in Zone 1 to 80 cents and 65 cents, respectively, in the more remote Zone 8.

The public will not be the only beneficiary of the new service. It long has been a pet project of the airlines and finally was brought forth by the Eightieth Congress. In addition to supplying additional tonnage, it is expected to relieve the airlines of the worrisome problem of handling small packages which hitherto have been sent by air freight or express. There is no experience as yet to determine whether the rates to be charged are related to the actual cost of carrying air parcel post, which will be handled on the same basis as regular air mail. It goes without saying that any economies effected in the carrying of larger bulk ought to be reflected in lower cost to the Government. In any case, air parcel post is a welcome addition to the already impressive operations of the U. S. mail.

Eduard Benes

One of the world's most influential men in the period between wars has died in the person of Eduard Benes, the cofounder and former President of Czechoslovakia. He played the greatest part behind the scenes in the dismemberment of the Hapsburg empire. This was perhaps the fundamental blunder of the peace of Versailles. The Allies, as Jacques Bainville put it in his masterly Les Consequences de la Paix, broke up the wrong empire. They allowed the military might of Germany to develop again under Prussian-Hitlerian leadership. They fragmented the economic masterpiece of Austro-Hungary into mutually jealous states which tempted Hitler into aggression.

When Hitler rose to power, the French strove to rectify the Versailles error, and the Tardieu Plan was evolved for the purpose of promoting a Danubian federation. But Benes, anxious to put Prague in the place of Vienna, blocked the plan. "Rather Hitler than the Hapsburgs!" he exclaimed. It was an unhappy expression, for Hitler's appetite for Czechoslovakia had already been whetted, and within five years he had snuffed out the sovereignty of the new state. When Hitler fell upon Czechoslovakia, the sympathy of liberals everywhere was drawn to Benes, and their wrath to the British and French who, torn between communism and fascism, intimidated Benes into submission. However, there have been second thoughts. They are expressed in the Churchill sentiment of the memoirs that as liberty is secured by sacrifice, so Benes, in spite of the odds against him, should have fought. Perhaps Britain's wartime statesman remembered that Britain kept on fighting even when she was alone in the conflict with the Teutonic monster.

This was the nationalist and the prudent Benes of prewar history. But he is best known for the role he undertook in prewar days and during the war years as honest broker between the Western democracies and Russia. Benes imagined that as a Slav he understood Russia, and could provide a bridge between East and West. He thought that, as a result of his warning to Stalin of the plot against him that led to the great purges, the Soviet leader was in his debt. So Benes trusted Stalin, and in 1941 negotiated a common frontier with Soviet Russia at Poland's expense. Without a doubt this action of Benes annoyed the Allies, for it removed the kingpin of a prospective eastern federation under democratic auspices. The step had far-reaching consequences. It was one of the moves that let the Russians get astride eastern Europe.

Benes, as the famous successor to the great Thomas Masaryk, had a big following in most Western countries, especially the United States. His judgment had the respect of Mr. Roosevelt. After all, the state was born on American soil, and quite a few Americans, including a one-time editor of this newspaper, had a hand in drawing up its constitution. One recalls with almost a nostalgia the lofty sentiments he used to utter at the League of Nations. He was too weighted down with solemnity and scholarship to be an orator, but he conveyed profundity and sincerity, with, it must be added, a certain omniscience that, however, was sadly betrayed by history. This comes out in his memoirs. For instance, he says of events in 1939:

> The Soviet-Finnish War, declared on November 30, 1939, was right in line with my over-all conception of world events. For me it meant that the Soviet Union was heading directly for its own goals, without regard to the German-Finnish alliance or any German desires, that it wanted to insure itself against Germany, both in territory and in power, and that it was fully prepared to bear the results of its action: expulsion from the League of Nations, and Daladier's attempts to draw France and England into action against the Soviet Union.

Benes tripped here in saying that there was any pact binding Germany and Finland before the 1939-40 war. He was right in saying "the Soviet Union was heading directly for its own goals." One of them, alas, was Czechoslovakia, and that Benes did not know. Benes' "realism," in which he took pride, and his effort to play the middle man failed to save his country from Stalin, as it failed to save it from Hitler. His life contained a double tragedy which makes his end the occasion for these melancholy reflections.

Chaos In France

The heart of the government difficulty in France is that the Fourth Republic is run by a government that has ceased to be representative even of a substantial minority. This we said nearly a year ago. Most of the French people were then divided between Communist and Guallist, yet the government contained neither the one element nor the other, being a centrist coalition in which the Popular Republicans (MRP) and the Socialists predominated. Parties, in other words, had given place to camps operating outside government. When Paul Ramadier a year ago last June purged his cabinet of its five Communist members, he said, "From now on, the real struggle in France will be conducted outside the government, outside even the Assembly, and the government, indeed, may be reduced to the role of onlooker."

This is its present role. A week ago the Socialists refused to let Ramadier form a government in succession to the 33-day-old Marie-Reynaud government. They have now done the same to the MRP designate, the dour Schuman. The trouble lies with the bleakness of the scene to the "onlookers," particularly the Socialists. In their timidity they seem to see in the stands the industrial workers of France about to join forces over the threat of higher food prices and inadequate wage increases to cover them. Hitherto organized labor has been split into three separate bodies. The blood, indeed, seems to have been drained out of French Socialism, and the effect may be to wash up the Fourth Republic.

Common sense, let alone history, proves that responsibility and power must go hand-in-hand. The power-holders are the Communists and General de Gaulle's Rally of the French People. Admission of the Communists to the government, in view of the experience with them in Popular Fronts, is nowadays unthinkable. Like cuckoos, they have already laid an egg in the French nest which is now bedevilling their politics. It was the Communists who, when they shared power, saddled on France the absurd constitution which would inhibit government even if the "outsiders" were participants in it. The organic law makes for the tyranny of the legislature against which, it is ironical to recall, the Frenchman Alexis de Tocqueville about a hundred years ago warned the United States. The President cannot dissolve the Assembly. Nor can the Assembly dissolve itself. The cabinet has permissive authority of dissolving the Assembly under certain conditions which can be spelled out only in a maze of words. The Communist legacy to France, indeed, was to hamstring both government and dissolution!

When De Gaulle quit the government after the constitution-making and said he would not be party to government so long as it tried to operate under such an organic law, we felt he could not do otherwise. But his nonparticipation has condemned French government to a game of musical chairs which is endangering the sprouts of stability in Europe, let alone law and order in France.

Truman's Defensive

As a matter of keeping the record straight, President Truman was undoubtedly justified in saying that the charge that he is protecting Communists in the Government is a lie. It was Mr. Truman who instituted the present loyalty test for Federal workers. A few months ago he was being more severely criticized for requiring this loyalty check than for any softness in dealing with Moscow agents. So far as the foreign policy of his Administration is concerned, it is notoriously anti-Communist in the sense of standing firmly against the aggressive tactics that the communistic hierarchy has been pursuing. Any charge that he is harboring Communists in the Government is ridiculous on its face, and the Republicans are likely to find such a charge a boomerang if they attempt to exploit it.

Whether Mr. Truman was wise to speak out as he did is quite another matter. Usually a presidential candidate is very chary of noting miscellaneous barbs that may be hurled at him. In this instance an accusation that was in no way identified was merely repeated in the President's press conference. By jumping at it President Truman has succeeded in getting a false and absurd charge spread on the front pages of newspapers throughout the country. We doubt that his use of the word "lie" with quotation marks around it offsets the damage to his cause resulting from the currency he has given to a malicious canard.

The President's tactics give the impression, moreover, that he is on the defensive. A candidate who is confident of his standing with the people and who has a constructive program to offer does not need to make grimaces or throw epithets at every upstart that snarls at his heels. Rather he centers public interest in his achievements and promises and only incidentally brushes off the attacks that come from his major opponents. If Mr. Truman allows minor critics to needle him into a series of defensive sallies that contribute nothing positive to his campaign, he will enhance Governor Dewey's opportunity of seizing the initiative and conducting the campaign on his own grounds.

Swiss Experience

Switzerland, situated at the summit of Europe, the land where European concepts of human liberty had their birth, has had its own troubles with communism. A federation composed of French, German and Italian-speaking elements, it was peculiarly subject to the infiltration of Communist ideas from the war-torn nations surrounding it and from the refugees flooding inside its hospitable borders. The Swiss tried to deal with the problem posed by the Communists in much the same way that the Committee on Un-American Activities would have Americans deal with it—by repression. Their experience as reported in a recent dispatch to The Washington Post deserves some study by committee members.

From 1937 to 1945, the Swiss government tried by various legal devices to drive the Communist Party out of existence. It went so far as to make membership in or affiliation with the Communist Party a criminal offense. And in that period the number of Communists in Switzerland increased fivefold. "Looking back now," our reporter observed, "the Swiss feel the specific outlawing of the Communist Party stimulated rather than cramped its growth . . . Generally, government officials feel that the party took solid root only after it was outlawed when, by its illegality, it swung to its leadership the entire left wing of the local Socialist movement." The Swiss experience, in short, was very much like that of the Canadians and the Brazilians who also resorted to legislation to stamp out an idea.

Messrs. Mundt and Nixon will protest, no doubt, that the legislation they have joined in sponsoring here does not outlaw the Communist Party but merely requires Communists to register and to submit to certain disadvantagements as a result of acknowledging membership in the party. The distinction seems to us a trivial one. Their bill would penalize men for identifying themselves with a political organization. Thus it would tend to martyrize those admitting affiliation and to drive underground those denying it. "When you have a law aimed at any party," one Swiss official told the reporter, "all you catch is little people. We kept coming into court with youngsters and caught people who handed out pamphlets, but we never hurt the real underground leaders." Wisdom, it is said, consists in learning from the experience of others.

Hiss—Chambers

In testimony before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Alger Hiss challenged Whittaker Chambers "to make the statements about me with respect to communism in public that he has made under privilege to this committee." Mr. Chambers accepted the challenge two days later. On a radio program called "Meet the Press," he was asked by Edward T. Folliard of The Washington Post, "Are you willing to say now that Alger Hiss is or ever was a Communist?" Mr. Chambers responded: "Alger Hiss was a Communist and may be now." Mr. Folliard then asked, "Are you prepared to go to court to answer a suit for libel or slander?" to which Mr. Chambers said, "I don't think Mr. Hiss will go to court." Thus the gauntlet was thrown back at Mr. Hiss in as unequivocal a manner as he could have wished.

A week has elapsed since Mr. Chambers delivered his unprivileged accusation. As yet, no formal action to initiate a suit for slander has publicly been taken by Mr. Hiss, and his advisers say no more than that the matter is under consideration. In the circumstances, scant consideration would seem to be required. Mr. Hiss himself has created a situation in which he is obliged to put up or shut up. To be sure, the precise form and substance of the legal action to be taken by him would require extended thought and preparation. A suit for slander or libel is not altogether easy to bring and may be attended by technical pitfalls that make it an unsatisfactory means of obtaining vindication. But Mr. Hiss has left himself no alternative. And each day of delay in making it known that he will avail himself of the opportunity Mr. Chambers has accorded him does incalculable damage to his reputation.

TWO TREES

See how my roots are caught
In the same deep earth,
So that the wind
That moves your branches now
Disturbs my dreams.
And when you lean
To watch the rising sun,
I hunger for the shade
Of your protecting bough.
I lean . . . and am undone.
For on the grass
There is a circle drawn
Unseen, but strong . . .
And I must stand alone
Under the same quiet sky
Watching the circle grow
Into a ring of stone.

B-29 Range

In your August 30 issue a front page article states that "the range of the B-29 has been stretched to more than twice what it was in 1945."

General Spaatz has written that the combat radius of the B-29s bombing Japan in 1945 was 1500 statute miles. The Air Force, according to information published previously in The Washington Post, has defined the combat radius to be three-eighths of the range. Thus the range of the B29s bombing Japan turns out to 4000 statute miles, indicating that an early published range figure may be regarded as reasonable, i. e., 4400 statute miles. Doubling 4400 miles gives 8800 miles. The stripped and overloaded "dreamboat came close to this figure, but fell 2486 miles short of the record. In any event, the statement that the B29 range has doubled in three years seems open to question.

The magic words "cruise control" have been used to explain so-called remarkable increases in range. Let us not be naive. "Cruise control" has been used by the airlines for many years, and is merely a method of flying so as more closely to approach the theoretical range designed into an airplane.

The torque meter has been described as one of the "secrets" of "cruise control." Torque meters were used by the Germans in World War I. The Navy has been using torque meters for at least 10 years, and they are standard equipment in many Navy airplane. If torque meters are such wonderful devices for increasing range, then it appears that someone was criminally negligent in not seeing that they were installed in all of our B-29s that went down in the Pacific for want of fuel.

Marshall Andrews mentions the "theoretical 10,000-mile range of the B-36 in close proximity to a capacity of 36 tons. Published data shows the radius with 36 tons to be about 1500 miles. It was also indicated that the B-36 will replace the B-29 and B-50. Why then, did the Air Force place the bulk of its new orders for the B-50, a modification of a design 10 years old?

General Spaatz has been quoted as saying that the sustained operation radius of our bombers in Europe was limited by our escort fighters. There has been no mention lately of the fact that it does not seem possible to design a fighter that will accompany long range bombers. Are we to be content with one-way ("suicide") missions? Anyway, I hope that none of our boys will be asked to use the B-36 which is reported to be about as fast as the ancient B-24, and much more vulnerable.

The statement that the B-29 is "Americas only ready weapon" may properly be regarded by naval aviation as a gross insult.

Subsidized Fares

If the Public Utilities Commission, in its pending decision, decides to accede to the Capital Transit Co.'s request for an additional increase in fares, such action is certain to have serious repercussions upon the business interests in the downtown shopping area.

In the face of the rapidly mounting cost of living, a great many folk will choose and others will be forced, because of economic considerations, to patronize neighborhood stores almost exclusively rather than pay 13 or 15 cents a ride, as it has been proposed.

This is a matter of grave concern to the downtown merchants. And as a means of circumventing the loss in sales which would inevitably ensue from the shopping public's unwillingness to pay higher transportation fares, it is suggested that the business concerns likely to be affected unite under the auspices of the Retail Merchants Association in a subsidizing program that would provide the transit company with that pecuniary aid which it declares is imperative to its operating at a fair profit level. In other words, it is proposed that the merchants rather than their customers absorb whatever increase in fares the PUC might see fit to grant the Capital Transit Co. C. A. L.

Monday Holidays

This Monday comes our national holiday—Labor Day.

The labor forces throughout the country are to be commended for having this holiday always on a Monday. This helpful example should be followed for other holidays.

Saturday is increasingly a day off, so a Monday holiday allows a little vacation—Saturday, Sunday, Monday. A midweek holiday does not permit this. A midweek holiday stops business.

The birthday of the King of England, George VI, is in December, but it is now regularly celebrated in June. Thanksgiving Day in Canada is always celebrated on Monday.

Christmas and New Years are world holidays—they cannot be changed—but all our other holidays should be celebrated on a Monday.

The real significance of a holiday is in what it celebrates. If a holiday comes on a Sunday, we regularly celebrate it on a Monday. Now it is common sense if it comes on some other day, to celebrate it on a Monday. DELCEVARE KING.

Jerusalem's Holy Places

I would like to call attention to a common misunderstanding which is often made by the references in your columns concerning the "holy places" in Palestine.

The Jerusalem of the days of Jesus of Nazareth is some 40 feet underground as the city now stands. The site of Gethsemane can be inferred and the location of the Temple by the Sacred Rock under the dome of the Mosque of Omar. But it has long since been seen that no dependence can be placed upon such particular spots and areas as the Via Dolorosa, the so-called church of the Holy Sepulcher with its obviously impossible "tomb of Christ," "Calvary," the location of the "three crosses," and the actual "slab" on which the body of Christ lay.

The site known as the "garden tomb," sometimes spoken of as "Gordan's Calvary," is outside the city walls and is suggestive of just such a spot as that where the crucifixion and tomb were located; but there is little to base any such assumption upon. Furthermore, these Jerusalem "holy places" have been for years so commercialized that every devotional impulse is frozen.

The Holy Land to the intelligent Christian is Galilee. There no specific buildings are shown except as suggestive of the kind which Jesus saw. But Nazareth, on the steep hill, is there as it once stood; Mount Tabor, the Mount where the Sermon was preached, Cana, and above all, Lake Galilee, with its environs—all are seen without being tortured by having impossible traditions thrust upon you. Galilee is the "land of Our Lord," and should be left under distinct access to Christians and unimpaired by any kind of inrush of immigration.

Incitement In Hyderabad

I notice a letter by Mr. Jensen in your issue of August 28 which purports to challenge the remarks I made earlier on Hyderabad and published by you on August 2.

Mr. Karl E. Jensen is registered in our mailing department as "c/o Bourne Associates, Inc., Advertising, Publicity, Public Relations." Latterly I have come across a letterhead in which his firm is described as "K. E. Jensen Associates, Inc., International Public Relations."

I have no interest in joining in a controversy with him except to correct some of the misstatements already made by him.

(a) There are many even among the two million Moslems who are in favor of Hyderabad's accession to India. The so-called "communal pesce" in Hyderabad was based on a policy of terror. Riots are not possible when the ruling class has the means, and is ready to destroy completely any evidence of opposition. A reference to the conditions found in totalitarian states will amply bear that out. Hyderabad's 12 per cent Moslems outnumber the Hindus in the police and military by nine to one. The higher civil administrative services are also almost entirely Moslem.

(b) It is patently false and mischievous to say that the only terror "reported so far is by bands of raiders who have come in from the Dominion of India." No "raiders" have gone from India. On the other hand the fire-eating "Razakars" (a terrorist group sponsored by the Nizam) have been consistently victimizing the unarmed villagers in the countryside of Hyderabad and in the border areas adjoining the rest of India.

Mr. Kingsley Martin, a noted British journalist, wrote as follows after visiting Hyderabad: "I took up Kasim Razvi's (Razakars' leader) challenge and found no confirmation of anything he said. His speeches which rouse in Moslem audiences a fanatical response not unlike the Nazi response to Hitler, gave the lie to his pacific tone when talking to me. Such evidence as I could obtain shows the bands of Razakars loot and terrorize the countryside to their hearts' content."

(c) The tax system of the state hits mostly the poorer classes. A substantial portion of the revenue is appropriated by the Nizam, his family and friends (including his privy purse of over a million and a half dollars). Besides there are "secret funds" which are not subject even to nominal auditing.

(d) About 4 per cent of the total area of the state has, in the course of history, been appropriated by the Nizam and his feudal nobles. The Nizam's income from his lands alone amounts to over nine million dollars. Further, his dignitaries have to pay him for the privilege of "audience," and are compelled to purchase "worthless articles at fabulous prices" sold by him from time to time.

(e) The following two extracts from the utterances of the Razakars will show the Nizam's dreams of aggrandizement at the expense of India.

"Hyderabad will shortly recover the adjoining districts and the day is not far off when the waves of the Bay of Bengal will be washing the feet of our sovereign."

"We are rewriting the map of India by bringing together a union of Jumna and Musi (rivers in the north and south of India). When determined we shall fly the Asafjahi flag (Nizam's pennant) over the Red Fort (Delhi)."

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Republican West

DENVER.—The odds against President Truman in the coming election are nowhere better illustrated than in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast areas. Of the 11 States in this region informed political observers concede the Democratic ticket a fighting chance in only five.

In only one of these, Arizona, is the President assured of a reasonable chance for victory. The five are thinly populated and count for little in the election scales.

On the Pacific Coast the Dewey-Warren ticket almost certainly will score a clean sweep. Oregon is now considered to be even more thoroughly Republican than Maine and Vermont. In neighboring Washington, Democratic Gov. Mon C. Wallgren is reported to have been paying more attention to the private interests of himself and his friends than to partisan party politics, and the State is expected to go Republican.

The personal popularity of Gov. Earl Warren and a relatively strong Wallace movement will swing California's 25 electoral votes securely into the Republican column. In the mountain region four additional States—Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, and Colorado—will swell the GOP total.

Paradoxically, some States are expected to send Democrats to Congress while awarding their electoral votes to Dewey. A good example is Colorado. In this mountain State all unbiased observers foresee a substantial Republican majority. At the same time, however, forecasters predict that Democratic Gov. Lee Knous will be returned to office. Senator Ed C. Johnson and Representative John A. Carroll, one of the most courageous men in Congress, are also considered a better-than-even chance for reelection on the Democratic slate.

IN THE uncertain bracket are New Mexico, Utah, and Montana. But even here the Truman-Barkley team has only an outside chance of winning. Their hope depends largely on the pulling power of strong Democratic candidates.

Optimistic Democrats in Utah feel that the State might be carried behind the efficient organization of Gov. Herbert B. Maw, who is running for reelection to a third term. Maw has, however, lost in personal popularity.

In New Mexico former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson is reported to have a slight edge over hot-headed Patrick J. Hurley, our wartime Ambassador to China, for the Senate. Anderson's popularity could conceivably swing his State for the Democratic national ticket.

Popular Senator James E. Murray, up for reelection in Montana, is aided by all-out labor support. He might help swing that State to Truman. Republicans, however, are prepared to spend large sums to defeat Murray.

Another strong Democratic senatorial candidate is Wyoming's able Governor and powerful vote-getter, Lester C. Hunt. Running against the present incumbent, genial Senator Edward V. Robertson, a wealthy cattleman who is among the small minority of large-scale ranchers opposing present conservation practices on public lands, Hunt is confident of winning. The Democrats, however, will have to work miracles to garner Wyoming's three electoral votes.

Completing the list, Arizona, with four electoral votes, offers the Democrats their only cause for optimism. Consistently Democratic, this State frequently has been classified with the Solid South.

WITH a total of 71 electoral votes at stake in this region, only 19 are conceded to the Democrats by the most generous estimates. Only Arizona's four votes may actually fall to Truman, and even here there are doubts at this stage before the campaign has warmed up.

In the national total of 531 the 71 electoral votes of this region do not loom large. But as an indicator of the prevailing political winds they are highly significant. And in another important respect these States may play a crucial role.

While the outcome of the presidential race at this time seems overwhelmingly Republican, strong Democratic congressional candidates in many States jeopardize Republican control of the Senate. Dewey himself will campaign in States where victory for the national ticket is assured, but where important congressional races are in doubt. In Wyoming and Colorado, for example, the Republicans are prepared to spend a lot of money and time to defeat Democratic candidates.

The victory for Dewey might be ironic, indeed. He might win the highest office in the land and yet, under our system of divided powers, find himself in the same position as Truman since 1946; that is to say, unable to carry out any feature of a domestic program.

Malvina Lindsay is on vacation. Her column will be resumed upon her return.

Democratic Hydra

By Mark Sullivan

Divisions Dog Truman's Chances

PRESIDENT TRUMAN on Monday begins his campaign with a formidable effort and array; a major opening speech from Mr. Truman himself; speeches by four Cabinet members — Secretaries Tobin of Labor, Brannan of Agriculture, Royall of the Army, Attorney General Clark; speeches by four Senators — Pepper of Florida, Kilgore of West Virginia, Murray of Montana, McGrath of Rhode Island, who is also chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Sullivan

Superficially that seems formidable; the welkin should sound loud. But beneath that surface glitter of massed oratory lie the facts Mr. Truman faces. These are formidable in a different and more real sense. One basic condition, party cleavage, is alone enough to be ominous. What was the Democratic Party four years ago is today three parties, each formally organized with a presidenial candidate—the Democrats, Mr. Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party, and the States' Rights Party.

Mr. Wallace's Progressive Party, though not even faintly formidable as respects prospects of victory, is formidable indeed in its effect on Mr. Truman's prospects. Whatever the number of votes Mr. Wallace may receive, practically all will be a subtraction from Mr. Truman—it is difficult to imagine anyone voting for Mr. Wallace who otherwise would have voted for Mr. Dewey.

AS OF the present, estimates of the Wallace strength vary from four to six millions, some 10 per cent of the total electorate. The average, five millions, if subtracted from the vote Roosevelt got in 1944, would have defeated him. Moreover, an extremely large proportion of the Wallace vote will come from New York City, and hence detract from Mr. Truman's chance of carrying New York State. And in only one presidential election in more than 50 years has a party lost New York State and been able to carry the country.

The States' Rights Party, even if it should not take from Mr. Truman any State in the Democratic Solid South, which is the new party's home, might still be a material detriment to him. The new party's principles are cherished by Democrats in the border States—Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri. These States are always doubtful, they go one way or another by narrow majorities. A defection of as little as 5 per cent might lose them for Mr. Truman.

In addition to the cleavage which expresses itself in two formally organized parties with candidates for President, there is another within the Democratic Party as it now stands. What remains of the shorn party is composed of two main groups. One consists of old-school Democrats, among whom the most effective in elections are those symbolized by the leaders in big Northern cities. The other consists of liberals many of whom, when they found Mr. Henry A. Wallace too far left for them, organized Americans for Democratic Action. This group was active at the Democratic National Convention and had a considerable hand in bringing about the platform. The two groups, ADA and Northern city bosses, as far apart as possible in political thought, are superficially united behind Mr. Truman.

YET, BEFORE Mr. Truman was nominated, leaders of both groups made attacks upon him, and predictions of his defeat. Leaders of ADA issued a statement saying, "There is so little public enthusiasm for the Truman Administration that the Democratic Party would face a very difficult uphill fight if he were nominated."

About the same time, less than a week before the convention, 19 old-school Democratic leaders issued a call for a rump caucus (not actually held to oppose nomination of Mr. Truman. The group included Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York, leader Frank Hague of New Jersey, Illinois Leader Jacob M. Arvey, Governor Tuck of Virginia and James M. Roosevelt, son of the late President. One of the group, Mr. Hague, said: "Every leader I conferred with has informed me that if President Truman is the candidate, it means a landslide on the Republican side."

These are not statements by rivals of Mr. Truman for the nomination, they represent important groups. No matter if leaders who made such statements now recant or practice an embarrassed silence, the statements are likely to remain in the minds of voters, whose memories will be refreshed by Republican orators. And there is a fundamental doubt whether two groups so different in political thought as ADA, and party leaders and followers in Northern cities, can both be stirred to enthusiastic support of Mr. Truman. Mr. Truman faces also a doubt whether voters generally will wish the country to be in charge of a party so divided.

Off The Record

New York Truck Drivers' Union Makes New Contract Demands

have joined the walkout, which began Wednesday after members of Local 807 turned down a 15-cent hourly wage increase and other proposals.

Later Harris J. Klein, counsel for the McClean Trucking Co. of Winston-Salem, N. C., said 21 truckloads of food and cigarettes from North Carolina had been turned back here yesterday and today.

He valued the cargo at $800,000. He said the trucks now were "lying around" at various New Jersey points.

Mayor William O'Dwyer today expressed fear the tieup would force large chain stores to close when their food supplies are exhausted. He said smaller independent stores are receiving deliveries, however, and that their food supplies are not endangered. These stores are supplied largely by trucks driven by members of locals still working.

Most important of the demands handed employers today were a 25-cent hourly hike and an employer-financed welfare fund. The union originally asked for a 50-cent hourly raise.

A representative for the employers said his group would not consent to "anything better" than the 15-cent hourly wage boost.

This spokesman also claimed that members of Locals 282 and 816 are being intimidated by those who quit work. He did not say what form the intimidation was taking.

Present wages for members of Local 807 for a 40-hour week range from $53.90 for platform men and helpers to a top of $71.40 for drivers of trailers who handle their own unloading. Overtime is from $2.02 to $2.68 an hour.

Oil Workers Threaten Strike as Talks Fail

San Francisco, Sept. 3 (AP).—Negotiations faltered today and 16,000 CIO oil workers in five Western States, most of them in California, prepared to strike at midnight tonight in support of wage demands.

Negotiations collapsed with Union Oil, the Texas Co., and Standard Oil at El Segundo. Talks still were under way, however, with Shell Oil at San Francisco and the Standard Oil refinery at Richmond.

J. Elro Brown, district director of the union, said the companies had upped their offer to 12½ cents an hour, but that the union wanted 21 cents an hour increase.

West Coast Shipping Paralyzed by Strike

San Francisco, Sept. 3 (AP).—West Coast shipping was in the grip of a longshore strike paralysis today from the Canadian border to Mexico.

The only vessels operating were oil tankers and bulk cargo carriers, both of which come under labor contracts separate from that affecting CIO longshoremen and allied unions.

Picketing all major coast ports were 12,000 striking members of Harry Bridges' CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. Another 16,000 seafarers were idled. Caught in port were approximately 120 ships.

Promise Finish Fight

Bridges and the shipping industry were "hanging tough" and promising a "finish fight" on the long dispute, which the Government unsuccessfully sought to stem by a Taft-Hartley law injunction.

The belligerent longshore leader predicted the strike would last four to six months.

"When this strike is finished," Bridges said, "we will be out of business or they (the shipowners) will be out of business."

The shipowners retorted with a statement that the Waterfront Employers Association was meeting "head-on the issue of communism in the leadership" of maritime unions.

"No more negotiations will be held and no contracts will be signed with any such unions," they said, "until their officers have disavowed communism."

Few File Affidavits

Few of the West Coast maritime unions have filed anti-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law.

The strike developed mainly from a dispute over provisions governing hiring hall operations and wages.

Shipowners contend the present practice of having a union man act as dispatcher of crews from hiring halls violates the Taft-Hartley Act under the act's closed shop injunction. But they agreed to accept the present practice pending a ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Then the CIO-ILWU rejected the whole pattern. Bridges said the union wouldn't accept "a hiring hall with strings on it."

In Washington, meanwhile, the National Labor Relations Board today asked the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York City to enforce its order against operation of the hiring hall by the CIO National Maritime Union.

New York Setup Is Same

The NMU hiring hall setup in New York is the same as that of the ILWU in West Coast ports.

It was the first time under the Taft-Hartley law the NLRB has asked the courts to back one of its orders.

In New York, however, it developed there could be no action by circuit judges at least until Tuesday—because of the holiday—and possibly not until October 4. All six judges are vacationing and are not due back until October 4.

A court attache said if the NLRB requests is for immediate action, it will be forwarded to one or more of the judges.

The Waterfront Employers Association here declared that "14 years of strikes, disruption and chaos in the maritime industry on this coast, caused directly by union leadership following the Communist Party line, has culminated in this strike . . . we cannot continue to operate with union leadership intent on the industry's destruction . . ."

Matson Navigation Company's luxury liner, Lurline, will tie up at Long Beach when it arrives from Honolulu tomorrow.

President Truman said there was nothing more the Government could do to end the strike. Federal conciliators were on the job but no negotiations were scheduled.

May Mean Me, Physicist Says Of Spy Probers

Berkeley, Calif., Sept. 3 (AP).—A former University of California atomic physicist acknowledged today he was possibly one of two scientists referred to yesterday by congressional spy probers. But he denied inferences that he gave away atomic secrets to the Russians.

He is Dr. Martin D. Kamen, 35, associated with the Manhattan project at the university during the war. He is now an associate professor of chemistry at Washington University, St. Louis.

Dr. Kamen said he had been discharged from the Manhattan project July 12, 1944, for "indiscretion." He was never charged, he added, with "security violation."

Yesterday, investigators said a former Army intelligence officer informed the committee a scientist in an "inside" position on the atomic project had let the Russians in on atomic secrets.

Dr. Kamen acknowledged meeting with Russians in a San Francisco restaurant in 1944, as reported by committee investigators.

He said he accompanied the then-Soviet Vice Consul in San Francisco, a Mr. Khifepz, and his subsequent successor, whose name Dr. Kamen did not recall, to the restaurant.

There, he said, they spent most of the time engaging in "idle chit chat." They did, however, talk about the treatment of leukemia by radiation because the brother of one of the Russians was suffering from the disease in Seattle.

At the close of the meeting, he added, the Russians asked about atomic energy, but he did not answer any of their questions.

An FBI agent had trailed him to the restaurant, he said.

Dr. Kamen also said, "No, I am not a Communist. As a matter of fact, I am very anti."

Third Alleged Red Spy Ring To Be Probed

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A third alleged Soviet spy ring, in which Government employes were said to be involved, will be investigated early next month, the House Un-American Activities Committee announced yesterday.

Robert E. Stripling, the committee's chief investigator, said public hearings in its current probe of espionage charges would be postponed until September 15. He added that several witnesses would be questioned at closed hearings next week in preparation for resumption of public sessions.

Other matters the committee will take up, Stripling said, would be:

1. A resumption of its investigation into communism in Hollywood, which was recessed last October 30 after stirring considerable excitement.

2. A study of Communist inroads among Negroes.

3. Investigation into admission of Communists into the United States from other countries.

Condon May Be Heard

Stripling also said the committee expected to hear Dr. E. U. Condon, director of the Bureau of Standards, before the end of this month. Condon demanded a hearing after the committee labeled him the "weakest link" in the Nation's chain of atomic secrecy.

Hearings beginning September 15, Stripling said, would be by a subcommittee under chairmanship of Representative Thomas (R., N. J.) with Representatives McDowell (R., Pa.) and Vail (R., Ill.). He explained they would attempt first to clear up contradictions in testimony given by Whittaker Chambers, admitted former Communist, and Alger Hiss, head of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Chambers, now a senior editor of Time magazine, said he was formerly a courier for a Red spy ring and named Hiss, then a State Department official, as a member of a prewar Communist underground. Hiss has denied this, although he conceded he knew Chambers under another name.

After completing the Chambers-Hiss affair, Stripling said, the committee will wind up hearings based on charges of Elizabeth Terrill Bentley that she contacted numerous high Government employes while serving two Soviet spy organizations here. Her testimony touched off the series of investigations recently under way.

New Hot Potato?

Stripling said yesterday he thought these investigations would take about three weeks.

Should the announced program for October take place as scheduled, it will inject into the presidential campaign a fresh hot potato. Republicans have charged that the Democrats under President Roosevelt brought numbers of Communists and their sympathizers into the Federal Government. They have added that these people were maintained under the Truman Administration even, in some cases, after their affiliations were exposed.

Democrats have denied these charges and President Truman has said the spy hearings were designed as a "red herring" to draw attention from failure of the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress to enact his legislative program.

Wife Nearly 'Saves' GI From Going Overseas

Rome, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP).—One man was missing when they called the roll of more than 2000 service personnel leaving Griffiss Air Base today for Europe.

Acting on a tip, military police opened the trunk of an automobile, driven by a woman, as it was leaving the depot, and there found her husband—the missing man.

Jap Atom Physicist To Join U. S. Research

San Francisco, Sept. 3 (AP).—The first Japanese atomic physicist to come to the United States since the war arrived by air today. He is Dr. Hideki Yukawa of the Imperial University, Kyoto.

But he won't be working on the atom bomb or atomic fission. The professor said he will delve into higher theoretical physics, nuclear components, and radiation and cosmic rays.

He came here at the invitation of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, head of th institute for advanced study at Princeton, N. J., and chief of the general advisory committee of the Atomic Energy Commission. Yukawa will study at Princeton.

Patricia Schmidt Pardon Held Likely

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Patricia (Satira) Schmidt, 22-year-old American dancer, will be pardoned soon after serving little more than a year of her 15-year sentence for killing John Lester Mee, her married American lover, well-informed sources said today.

Alcoholics Anonymous Gather In Fourth Southern Meeting

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 3 (AP).—"We're a bunch of screwballs."

With that description, the cofounder of Alcoholics Anonymous today brushed aside the accomplishments of a group which for 13 years has helped drunkards find themselves.

Identified only as Bill, he is one of 800 former drunks from all parts of the South who are attending the fourth annual regional convention of AA.

Asked what makes AA tick, Bill replied:

"I don't know what makes it work; I just know that it does."

Doctors, clergymen and social workers have tried to explain it. Yet none can say exactly why a loose organization of former drunkards can "convert" a man down in the gutter when everything else has failed.

Beginnings of Reform

Bill admittedly was a hopeless drunk in 1934 when he met a school friend. Bill knew this friend to be alcoholic, yet here he was cold sober—and enjoying it.

The anonymous friend left a simple formula with Bill—admit you're powerless before alcohol, talk it over with someone, clean up all the mess you've made of your life, and pray if you can.

Bill entered a hospital under the care of a physician friend to "dry out." There he sank into the deepest depression he had ever known. While at the bottom of the pit, stripped of the last shred of ego, he had what he lightly calls a "hot flash."

Actually, he says, it was an indescribable emotional and spiritual upheaval and he came out of it a new man.

Sober at last and fired with zeal, Bill started spreading his newly-found gospel. The first six months were discouraging. He failed to dry up a single drunk. But he stayed sober himself.

Going to Akron, Ohio, on business, he felt the old urge to drink coming on. He hunted up a drunk to work on and met Dr. Bob—the other cofounder of Alcoholics Anonymous. Bill had his first convert.

Other converts gradually joined the movement, as yet nameless, but the pace was terribly slow, with the group numbering only about 40 after four years' work. The pioneer period came to an end in 1939, when the group published its first book, "Alcoholics Anonymous."

Newspapers and magazines began to give AA publicity and the deluge of inquiries was on. Now the group has snowballed to nearly 80,000 members.

Many Novel Angles

AA has many novel angles. For instance, it asks no man to become a member. A drunk simply is told what AA has to offer, then it is left up to him. If he says "I'm a member" he is.

There are no dues or organized finances. There is no controlling head or central organization. No officer is paid and each local AA group is entirely autonomous.

The binding factor in the organization, Bill says, is the specter—standing by the elbow of every member—of death through alcoholism if he slips.

Davis Heads Atomic Energy Board on Labor Relations

President Truman yesterday appointed a three-member commission to study labor relations problems in connection with the atomic energy program.

The commission is headed by William H. Davis, former chairman of the War Labor Board and later director of the Office of Economic Stabilization.

His colleagues are Edwin E. Witte, chairman of the department of economics, University of Wisconsin, and Aaron Horwitz, now engaged in arbitration work in New York City.

A White House announcement said recent disputes at the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) National Laboratory and at Los Alamos, New Mex., "have raised serious questions as to the sufficiency of present collective bargaining methods in atomic energy installations."

The statement added that the progress of the atomic energy program "is dependent upon the wholehearted support of the men and women who work in atomic energy plants and laboratories."

Describing the inquiry board's task as one of "special importance," the announcement said the three men will make recommendations for labor relation policies. Mr. Truman announced on June 18 he would appoint such a board.

Davis is now practicing law in New York. His Government experience began with the National Recovery Administration (NRA) of the early '30s. He was at one time chairman of the National Defense Mediation Board.

Dr. Witte is president of the Industrial Relations Research Association. He served as secretary of the Wisconsin Industrial Commission and has been a participant in emergency board proceedings under the Railway Labor Act. During the war he was chairman of the Detroit Regional War Labor Board and subsequently was one of the national WLB public members.

Horwitz, a former commissioner of the United States Conciliation Service, has served on a number of presidential fact-finding boards, both under the Railway Labor Act and the Labor-Management Relations Act.

Capital Store Sales Off 15% On Heat Wave

By S. Oliver Goodman

The heat wave, as you probably suspected, melted down retail sales in the week ended August 28.

Washington department store sales in the week slumped 15 per cent as compared with the same 1947 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond noted yesterday. Regionally, sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District for the week dropped 13 per cent.

Despite the sharp decrease for the week, local store sales for the four weeks ended August 28 held 3 per cent above the same period last year. Regionally, they were 4 per cent higher for the four-week period.

More seasonable weather this week brought throngs to downtown Washington stores and a sizable sales pickup was indicated. Stores found a favorable response to promotional sales of fall goods. Back-to-school apparel was in demand.

Dun & Bradstreet, in its weekly retail report, noted that consumer demand for furniture increased moderately and household appliances continued in heavy demand. The agency added that there was considerable installment buying of consumer durables.

LEASE BUSY SITE: Two chain stores will occupy one of the busiest corner locations in Washington—the northeast side of 14th and F sts. nw. Regal Shoes will establish a store on the corner site and Wormser's Hats will occupy the store next door at 605 14th st. The Westory Building site, formerly occupied by a chain drug store, is being extensively remodeled.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Robert A. Whitney, president of the National Federation of Sales Executives, has been appointed by Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall as a member of a council to aid the Army and Air Force on advertising policies . . . Miss Helen Hess has resigned as assistant to the public relations director of the Air Transport Association here to become public relations director of a San Francisco hotel . . . Marcus A. Follansbee, son of one of the founders, has been elected executive vice president . . . A. A. McFall is the new superintendent of agencies for Lincoln National Life Insurance Co.

VEPCO PLANS: The Virginia Electric & Power Co. will apply within the next few days for a Federal license to construct an 18 million dollar dam and hydroelectric plant on the Roanoke River, president J. G. Holtzclaw disclosed yesterday. The dam would be located about 1½ miles upstream from Roanoke Rapids, N. C., Holtzclaw said. It would form a reservoir covering nearly 8 square miles and would utilize the Roanoke River to turn out up to 65,000 kilowatts in additional power for the Vepco system.

IN NEW POST: George W. Thomas, former manager of the Wardman Park Hotel here, has been appointed manager of the Hotel Governor Clinton in New York City. Thomas began his hotel career in 1940 at the Carlton and Wardman Park hotels, where he served in executive capacities. In 1937 he went with the Mayflower Hotel and later joined the sales staff of the National Hotel Management Co. as convention manager. In 1940 he returned to the Washington Properties as sales and promotion manager and was subsequently promoted to assistant to the president. During the war, he served four years with the Army Service Forces and the office of the Adjutant General.

RAIL NETS SPURT: July net income of Class I railroads totaled $76,700,000, more than doubling the $34,800,000 in the same month last year. The Association of American Railroads added that the carriers' net income for the first seven months this year was estimated at 334 million dollars, against 247 million dollars in the comparable period last year.

ODD LOTS: Fred G. Dieterich, assistant treasurer of the Metropolis Building Association of Washington, has been elected a director . . . The American Bankers Association has issued a new edition of its handbook on common trust funds . . . Consolidation of the Kingston-Conley Electric Co. of North Plainfield, N. J., with the Hoover Co. has been announced . . . Census Bureau reports that the proportion of United States foreign commerce carried on American ships declined to 53 per cent in April from 56 per cent in March . . . Today will mark the 139th anniversary of the National Bank of Washington, oldest in the Capital . . . The District Life Underwriters Association will inaugurate a two-year training course for insurance agents, starting about October 1.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—Cotton futures turned firm in late dealings today as aggressive short covering and mill buying, prior to the extended holiday, found offerings limited. Some demand was stimulated by the reports of a hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico which appeared to threaten the cotton crop in the lower Mississippi Valley area. Final prices were unchanged to 45 cents a bale higher.

One on the Aisle—

Peggy in Person Tops Fishy Film

By Richard L. Coe

THE QUEEN OF THE JUKE BOXES—Peggy Lee—and a half-woman, half-fish head the Capitol's new bill and the score's in favor of Peggy.

Miss Lee, as you must have heard from your radio, record collection or favorite saloon, is quite a lass with a song. She's blond, wholesomely pretty and has a way with a tune that manages to turn each one into her own style without completely tearing it apart. The teen-agers are turning out en masse for their favorite and I don't blame them.

The half-woman, half-fish is this week's screen heroine for "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid." Ann Blyth plays her charmingly and William Powell is the human male she enchants. As a fantasy it's too long to be completely effective, the humor is strained and one is fatally conscious that the whimsy is having a tough struggle. There are one or two amusing sequences, the players are pleasant and once awhile the light touch breaks through the film's labored efforts.

Logically, "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid" should have made a pleasing touch of whimsy. It's been produced and adapted by Nunnally Johnston (from a novel by Guy and Constance Jones), but Johnston's usually fertile imagination has failed him. Mainly this is because the idea of a man incurring his wife's jealousy by having an affair with a mermaid is pretty slight stuff for so long a film. Were the screen setup, as we know it, in the business of putting on short stories the way one finds them in print, "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid" might have been a lightweight delight. But the need for padding to fill out a program-length picture has been too much for so slight a story.

When a man goes fishing and lands a lady with a shimmering tail, it becomes a social problem. One's wife—especially if the mermaid proves bashful and refuses to appear before anyone but her captor—and one's acquaintances are likely to make a happy ending impossible. This is what happens to Powell's adventure and it takes some dredging to wind it up.

Several sequences are good fun: The landing of the glamorous fish and a brightly played scene in a shop where Mr. Peabody is trying to find a suitable bathing suit for his captive. Powell and May Field play this expertly and it's the best in the film.

Powell is his usual bland self and Miss Blyth is lovely as the sea lass who doesn't speak, so lovely, in fact, that she doesn't have to. But on the whole, I regret to say, "Mrs. Peabody and the Mermaid" falls flat on its promising idea.

Peggy Lee's songs, for the record, include such ditties as "I'll Dance at Your Wedding," "It's a Good Day for Singing a Song," "Why Don't You Do Right?" "Golden Earrings," and a particularly neat "It's Magic." Background—and a most effective one—for Peggy is Husband Dave Barbour's quintet, and before she bows off for good Peggy revives her amusing "Manana," which hhe and Barbour wrote. Here's a headlining singer who deserves her top position.

Another amusing, novel act is that of Benson and Mann, a two-man team who make well with the humor. They're easy-going and good fun, Magician Lee Noble has neat line of patter and the dancing Marcus husband-and-wife team open the bill.

"MR. PEABODY AND THE MERMAID," a Universal-International Picture produced by Nunnally Johnson, directed by Irving Pichel, screen play by Johnson from the novel by Guy and Constance Jones, song by Johnny Mercer and Robert Emmett Dolan. At the Capitol.

Texas Trifle

Carson Gets Workout on Dude Ranch

Jack Carson and Dennis Morgan, who've proved a popular comedy team in the past, are back in another of their adventures at the Warner. This one's called "Two Guys from Texas" and if there are any differences—or improvements—I didn't find them.

The guys try pretty hard to be funny. They're at their best in some songs fit to order by Jule Styne and Sammy Kahn, including a number called "Hankerin'." With Penny Edwards, a pert blonde, they have a handy partner, and Dorothy Malone, another comparative newcomer, is on hand as brunette decoration.

The story is a mere whiff of a thing, evidently tossed together to make way for the boys' specialty numbers. They're a couple of night club entertainers who run out of gas in Texas, but have the good luck to wind up at a dude ranch, which looks like a pretty good reason for going to Texas. This means there's a Technicolored pool, lots of pretty girls and, alas, animals.

Jack, it seems, has a psychological block on animals and cringes with fright at the sight, or even the picture, of one. Morgan is not afraid of animals and this seems to further his career as a wolf, a matter which is made much of in the script of I. A. L. Diamond and Allen Boretz.

Also on the Warner screen is a sports special, "Football Magic," which probably succeeds more thoroughly than the more ambitious comic efforts of Messrs. Carson and Morgan.—R. L. C.

"TWO GUYS FROM TEXAS," a Warner Bros. picture produced by Alex Gottlieb, directed by David Butler, screen play by I. A. L. Diamond and Allen Boretz, suggested by a play by Robert Sloane and Louis Pelletier, music by Jule Styne, lyrics by Sammy Kahn. At the Warner.

Midget Airplane Pilot Killed In Cleveland Air Race Trial

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (AP).—One pilot was killed today in the jumbled wreckage of a midget plane as qualifying flights for the National Air races ended.

The unlucky flier was Paul Deblois of Longmeadow, Mass., whose tiny home-made "Bee Gee Baby" sportster, shed a wing on a test flight northwest of the airport. Deblois was unable to get out in time to parachute.

It was the first fatality during a week of hard flying in which old records were smashed frequently. One other midget plane was destroyed early in the week, but the pilot bailed out and escaped with minor injuries.

Some things remained to be done before the three-day program kicks off tomorrow with an attempt to establish a new world speed record.

Maj. Richard L. Johnson did not get to make a trial run over the newly installed three kilometer (1.86 miles) course. He went up in a North American F-86, but was unable to raise the left wheel. The Air Force brought in another F-86, as it had planned to do in such an emergency.

The swept-wing jet fighter will be shoved over the course four times in an effort to break the present world mark of 650 miles an hour. It will be the first time in years such an attempt has been made in front of a crowd and the first time in history that a production model combat plane with armament has been used.

Air Force officials are making unofficial guesses Johnson will average around 670 miles an hour.

The contest committee disqualified the Corsair flown here today by Dale R. Fulton, Trans World Airline pilot from Washington, D. C. At a general meeting of racing pilots, it was decided that Fulton could not qualify after the official 3 p. m. closing hour.

Charles E. Brown of Indianapolis led all qualifiers with a blistering 418.3 miles an hour average for two laps around the 15-mile course. He is flying an F-39 Airacobra.

4 Burned to Death In Resort Inn Fire

Eatontown, N. J., Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Four persons were burned to death today in a fire which demolished the $100,000 Crystal Brook Inn, an old farmhouse converted into a resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Minoprio, owners, died in the flames only a few hours after a party celebrating their eighteenth wedding anniversary. Also burned to death were their son, Foger, 13, and Jesse Rossbach, 50, organist.

Shireman to Head U. S. Berlin Welfare

Charles H. Shireman of Bellevue, Wash., has been appointed chief of the welfare section in the American Military Government in Germany.

Announcing this yesterday, the Army said Shireman will set up an overall welfare program with special emphasis on child welfare in Berlin.

Fire Razes 40 Houses

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Fire today destroyed 40 houses in the north Portuguese village of Travassos, leaving 180 persons homeless. Damage was estimated at three million escudos (0120,000).

Nazi War Booty Gems Put on Sale by U. N.

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—The United Nations displayed diamonds valued at "close to half a million dollars" today in its second sale of Nazi war booty for the benefit of European refugees.

The diamonds—7000 carats of them—are being shown to dealers in a closed bid sale. Bids will be opened September 15.

U. S. Consul in Moscow

Moscow, Sept. 3 (AP).—Oscar Holder, American Consul at Vladivostok before the United States and the Soviet Union broke off consular relations, arrived here today by the Trans-Siberian express. Holder said he left foreign service officer Scott Lyons and two vice consuls at Vladivostok to close the consulate, and added that for the time being he, himself, would remain in Moscow.

'Rose' Heads for U. S.

Tokyo, Japan, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, alleged "Tokyo Rose" of the Japanese wartime radio, left for the United States today to face charges of treason.

after a while she pulled off her shoes and stocking, lifting her legs to the sun.

"I kept a closer eye on her then," he commented.

But when the strip act continued with additional layers of epidermis being revealed, Linscott declared "I became worried," explaining he thought the woman might be contemplating leaping from the roof.

Linscott described how he called police who arrived to find Miss Smith lying naked and supine in the sun.

Later he confided to reporters: "I didn't take my eyes from her the whole time. I was afraid she might jump."

The policemen, Pvts. Robert Shewell and E. B. Adams, after clothing the women, found a pocketbook tossed to the ground by Miss Smith. It contained a receipt from the Scott Hotel, 2131 O st. nw., bearing Miss Smith's name. She registered there on August 29.

Capt. W. J. Broderick, chief of the Capitol police said Miss Smith told him she went to the roof to "meditate" then decided to take a nude sunbath and finally concluded she should commit suicide because of headlines in the papers about Russia."

Perry Walders commercial manager of Radio Station WQQW here, said Miss Smith had been employed there for about a week, doing general office work as a substitute for a girl on vacation.

He said she had a master's degree in American history from the University of Rochester. He said she also cited having been a secretary to Dr. Frederick G. Leasure, retired president of Paul Smiths College, Paul Smiths, N. Y.

Walders said Miss Smith reported "ill" Monday and hadn't worked since.

Mrs. Frances Smith, mother of the young woman, was reported en route from Malone to Washington by bus.

Poles Free Catholic Chief

Warsaw, Sept. 3 (AP).—Polish security police released Msgr. Zygmunt Kaczynski from prison tonight after detaining him for 72 hours. He is the chief spokesman for the Catholic hierarchy in Poland.

An official announcement said Kaczynski, confidant and close friend of August Cardinal Hlond, primate of Poland, would be kept under surveillance pending completion of a security police investigation.

A government spokesman said Kaczynski was arrested in his apartment behind All Saints Church in Warsaw on Tuesday and accused of "anti-state activities."

Kaczynski's release came as reports spread that thousands of his parishioners were planning a demonstration demanding that he be freed.

The official announcement said security police were investigating the alleged connection of Cazimierez Studentowicz with the departure from Poland last year of Karol Popiel, who went to France.

Popiel was president of the Christian Labor Party, which was banned by the Polish government.

In addition to Studentowicz, five other employes of the influential Catholic weekly newspaper, Tygodnik Warzawski, were arrested a few hours before Kaczynski. Studentowicz is one of the paper's editors.

Kaczynski has been chief editorial writer and director of the publication.

D.C. Woman Writes Of Church Council

There is almost a "frantic hope" that the World Council of Churches may bring some unity to Christendom, according to Mrs. Dorothy Medders Robinson of Washington.

Writing from the first assembly of the council at Amsterdam, Holland, last week, Mrs. Robinson, wife of the Calvary Methodist Church minister, Dr. Orris Gravenor Robinson, said:

"Everyone with whom I have talked wants this meeting to be more than empty words and resolutions."

A few of her impressions of the meetings follow:

"The conference began Sunday afternoon, August 22, with a huge meeting in the very large church just opposite the Royal Palace on the city's chief square.

"Admission was by ticket only and there was a great clamor for them. Practically every seat was occupied long before the service began.

"The procession of delegates formed outside the church in the square, to the great delight of thousands of Hollanders whom the police were holding back with difficulty from the church entrances.

"My husband and I had excellent seats and were able to see the procession as it proceeded across the cathedral. It was very inspiring to see the church world pass before our eyes. Without doubt every race was represented.

"The thoughtful people I speak with here are waiting, I believe prayerfully and longingly, to see what can happen. Whatever happens will, of course, come out of the small study groups to which none except delegates are admitted.

"These are similar study groups for alternates and additional ones for the visitors. These go on simultaneously although they did not begin until Wednesday morning. Monday and Tuesday were given over to plenary sessions where addresses were made by many of the most stimulating speakers in the church."

Also writing from the meetings in Amsterdam was the Rev. Delmar Leslie Dyreson, associate director of the General Commission on Chaplains, 122 Maryland ave. ne., and editor of The Chaplain and The Link.

Mr. Dyreson is one of the religious press representatives at the conference. He pointed out in his letter that Dr. Frederick E. Reissig of Washington, world council public relations officer, accredited 130 correspondents and press representatives from 40 nations. At least 100 other press representatives who wanted to cover the meetings were denied admission because of the lack of space, he said.

In his letter Mr. Dyreson said that the presence of such thinkers are Reinhold Niebuhr and Karl Barth, and lay leaders like John R. Mott, John Foster Dulles and Sarah Chakko of India give some indication of the historic nature of the meetings at Amsterdam.

"Here together are Anglicans, Greek Orthodox, Old Catholics and nearly every variety of Protestants. Here are people from defeated nations and victorious nations, and those from both sides of the iron curtain—but all with one desire—to listen patiently to one another and if possible to find ways of working together," he wrote.

"The World Council has been born," he concluded. "A decade may be too short a time in which to appraise and understand what is happening here. But a thousand, and many thousands of years may show the fruits of the earnest planting which has been done here."

Rev. W. R. Miller Gets Sligo Parish In Silver Spring

The Rev. W. Robert Miller has been assigned by Bishop Angus Dun to the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Sligo parish, Silver Spring.

Miller

Bishop Dun accepted the new clergyman before leaving for Europe to attend the Lambeth Conference and the first assembly of the World Council of Churches. In addition to supervising the work of the parish, Mr. Miller will study at the Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria. He succeeds the Rev William Harris, who left the church last spring to study for the chaplaincy service.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of the University of Redlands in California and Mount Airy Seminary in Philadelphia. He was for six years pastor of a parish in Ringtown, Pa., and since 1942 has been pastor of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Wilmington, Del.

Pastors Pick 'Work' Themes For Sermons

Special sermons and prayers will mark the observance of Labor Sunday in Washington churches.

At Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, 1700 N. Capitol st., Dr. I. S. Ernst, the pastor, will speak on the theme "You're Never Out of Work" at the 11 a. m. worship service.

"Workers or Shirkers" will be the sermon topic of Dr. Henry W. Snyder at St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw. Dr. Snyder has just returned from a three-week vacation in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Dr. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th and Columbia rd. nw., will also return to his pulpit after a summer vacation. He will speak on "Christian Labor" at 11 a. m.

For his Labor Sunday message, the Rev. Robert W. Brooks, pastor of Lincoln Congregational Temple, 1701 11th st. nw., has chosen the theme "Life Demands More Than Bread."

Services at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., will also have a theme in keeping with the holiday. Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor, who has been vacationing since late June, will preach at 9 and 11:15 a. m. on "Your Life's Goal."

Dr. L. Ralph Tabor will preach at 9 and 11 a. m. at Luther Place Memorial Church, 1226 Vermont ave. nw. His special Labor Sunday message is entitled "Contributive Living."

The twenty-fourth annual Labor Sunday message of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America will be read in many churches here and across the Nation.

Later Than Usual

Jewish Holy Days Begin In October

Early in October the Jewish community will observe the High Holy Days which mark the beginning of the Jewish year 5709.

Because the present Jewish year, 5708, is a leap year with 13 instead of 12 months, the holidays fall later than usual. Tishri, the month in which many of these sacred days fall, is sometimes called "the month of spiritual strength."

A calendar of the major Jewish holidays during 5709 follows:

Rosh Hashanah—First day of the month of Tishri, begins at sundown on October 3.

Yom Kippur—The day of complete fasting and of repentance and atonement, tenth day of Tishri, begins at sundown, October 12.

Succoth—The feast of the Tabernacles, the fifteenth day of Tishri, begins at sundown, October 17.

Simhat Torah—Rejoicing in the giving of the laws, twenty-third day of Tishri, begins at sundown, October 26.

Channukah—Day of rededication, marks the victory of the Maccabeans over the Syrians, twenty-fifth day of Kislev, begins at sundown, December 26.

Purim—Celebrates the deliverance of the Jews in Persia by Queen Esther, fourteenth day of Adar, begins at sundown, March 13.

Passover—A festival marking the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt, begins on the fifteenth day of Nisan, or at sundown, April 13, and continues through April 21.

Tisheah BeAb—Marks the destruction of the first and second temples, ninth day of Av, begins at sundown, August 3.

Elder Michaux to Hold Revival in Stadium

The series of summer revivals by Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux will continue Sunday at 8:30 p. m. at Griffith Stadium, 7th st. and Florida ave. nw. This week the elder will speak on "Why Did God Allow the Negro to Be Sold Into Slavery in This Country?"

New Pastor Will Preach First Sermon

The son of the founder of the Italian Baptist Church, 1200 Kirby st. nw., will preach his first sermon as pastor of that church Sunday at 10:55 a. m.

He is the Rev. Olindo Marseglia, who was ordained by the Council of Baptist Churches in 1938, and who has been serving as assistant pastor since then.

His father, the Rev. M. C. Marseglia, resigned as pastor of the church last spring after serving it for over 32 years. Today the church is self-supporting and said to be the only independent Baptist Church in the United States working among people of Italian extraction.

As a young man the new pastor was hindered from entering the ministry because of severe stammering. Because of his devotion to the church, however, he assisted his father, and became particularly interested in the musical portions of the service. He has served as organist of the church since he was 13, and has translated many English hymns into Italian.

When the father became ill in 1932 he urged his son to take over the services. The young man was afraid the congregation would not be able to understand him—but as he delivered his first sermon the stammering disappeared, never to bother him again.

In 1933 he was licensed to occupy the pulpit, and five years later ordained. Since then he has served the church as assistant pastor while working in the daytime, first as a jewelry craftsman, later at the Federal Works Agency. He plans to devote full time to his job as pastor.

Through his efforts bilingual services were launched, with the second and fourth Sundays of the month in English, the others in Italian. The service this Sunday will be in English, Mr. Marseglia has announced.

Annual Bazaar Set By St. Agnes Church

The annual St. Agnes Church bazaar will be held on the church lawn, Lee hwy. and North Randolph st., Arlington, at 8 p. m. September 6-11. Funds raised will benefit the St. Agnes school and convent.

Theme Announced

"The Confusing Ways of God" will be the title of a sermon by Dr. H. W. Burgan at 11 a. m. Sunday at Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

Washington Cathedral will join other churches across the Nation in offering special prayers at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. for retiring Queen Wilhelmina and Queen Juliana of The Netherlands.

Dr. and Mrs. Slotemaker de Bruine will represent The Netherlands Embassy at the morning service at which the preacher will be Dean John W. Suter. In the afternoon, the Rev. George J. Cleaveland, canon librarian, will preach.

A request for Protestant churches to note in prayers the abdication of Wilhelmina and succession of Juliana was issued late last month by Charles P. Taft, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

The Rev. Beverley Boyd, executive secretary of Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, will preach at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw. He is the first Episcopalian to hold an executive position with the Federal Council.

LeRoy S. Graham, American University ministerial student, will speak at Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw., at 11 a. m. on "Weakling or Giant?" A member of Wesley Church, he is chairman of the committee on religious activities at the American University.

Assistant Minister Charles R. Woodson will preach his last sermon at Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5871 Western ave. nw., at 11 a. m. On September 12 he will leave the Chevy Chase church for another position.

The final program in the eighth annual Sunset Vesper Service serise at the Luray, Va., Singing Tower will be at 5:45 p. m. Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson, professor of New Testament Interpretation at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, will be the speaker.

The Senior Choir of Mount Zion Methodist Church, 2902 O st. nw., will present an Il-Negro spiritual song service at 8 p. m. The Clefmen Quartet will be featured at the service.

Services of the Self-Realization fellowship will be resumed at 11 a. m. at 4748 Western ave. nw., when Swami Premananda speaks on "The Spiritual Pilgrimage."

The church has been closed during July and August.

The Rev. F. McFarlane, director of the National Baptist Radio Hour will preach at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Temple Baptist Church, 10th and N sts. nw. Mr. McFarlane is heard each Sunday over WPIK, Alexandria, at 9 a. m.

Rev. Gast to Officiate At Eucharist Services

The Rev. Stuart F. Gast, rector of the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, 16th and Newton sts. nw., will officiate at services of the Holy Eucharist at 8 and 11 a. m., Sunday. The rector and his family have just returned from a vacation in New Jersey.

Communism Talks Slated At Gonzaga

First in a monthly series of town hall meetings on communism will take place at Gonzaga High School auditorium on Monday, October 11, at 8:30 p. m.

The meetings will be under the auspices of the current affairs committee of the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

At the initial meeting, the Rev. John F. Cronin, assistant director of the department of social relations of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, will speak on "What Is Communism?"

Edward P. Morgan, Washington attorney, will talk at the session on "Communism — An Immediate Menace to American Security."

Shane MacCarthy, chairman of the current affairs committee of the general assembly, will be moderator for the evening.

Following the addresses, the meeting will be opened for questions from the audience. The Rev. Neil Gargan, pesident of Gonzaga College, and pastor of St. Aloysius Church, has accepted appointment as spiritual adviser to the general assembly during the town hall meetings.

After the October meeting, the town halls will be held on the first Monday of each month. They are open to all members of the Knights of Columbus, their families and friends.

Christian Science Groups Open New Reading Room

Christian Science churches and societies in Washington have opened a new Christian Science reading room on the first floor at 1601 I st. nw.

Similar reading rooms are maintained by each of the five Christian Science churches in the District. Hours of the room are 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily except Wednesday, when it will close at 7 p. m. On Sunday it will be open from 2 until 6 p. m.

A special outer part of the room has been set aside for those reading the Christian Science Monitor.

A second room will be available for those studying the Bible, the works of Mary Baker Eddy, and other publications of the Christian Science Publishing Society.

Father Benard Will Speak on Catholic Hour

The Rev. Edmond D. Benard, member of the faculty of the School of Sacred Theology at Catholic University, will speak on the Catholic Hour broadcasts during September.

The coast-to-coast program is heard each Sunday over WRC at 6 p. m. The general theme of Father Benard's talks is "The Everlasting Kingdom." His topic Sunday will be "The Image of the King."

Music on the program will be furnished by the St. Philip Neri Choristers of St. Philip Neri Church, Bronx, N. Y.

The Rev. Frank J. McPhillips, national chaplain of the Newman Club Federation, will speak on "This Is Charity" on the Hour of Faith during the month. The program is carried by WMAL at 10:30 a. m., Sunday. Both programs are sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Men.

Rev. Toureille to Preach At St. John's Church

The Rev. Pierre C. Toureille, pastor of the French Protestant Congregation of Washington, will speak at the 9:30 a. m. French service Sunday at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square. His sermon will be taken from the Book of Matthew.

Principals Adopt Parents' Program

Same Curricula

County Sees Pupil 'Shift' Unnecessary

Curricula in Prince Georges County schools this year will remain the same as last year unless increased enrollment necessitates "double shifts" in some schools, a school official said yesterday.

Curriculum Supervisor William S. Schmidt told more than 800 county teachers and principals at two separate all-day meetings that school officials are not expecting any doubling up.

Two new schools, he said, and additions to five others, all completed during the summer, are expected to take care of any increase over last year's enrollment, making the doubling up unnecessary.

He added, however, that schools will remain crowded and, although no changes are made, there will be no major curriculum additions, such additions having to await construction of other new schools under a proposed 10-million-dollar building program.

More than 700 teachers and principals in the county's white schools met at the Bladensburg High School to discuss curriculum problems for the year, while about 100 Negro teachers held a similar meeting at the North Brentwood Elementary School.

The group at Bladensburg heard a talk by Dr. Paul Douglas, president of American University, while at North Brentwood the speaker was Dr. William M. Cooper of the Hampton (Va.) Institute. Both speakers discussed teaching fundamentals.

All Prince Georges teachers will report to their schools at 9 a. m., Tuesday to organize their programs for the year. Classes will begin at 9 a. m. Wednesday.

A seven-point program to bring parents of pupils into closer relationship with schools was adopted yesterday as the Montgomery County school principals' "workshop," a discussion forum, concluded deliberations.

At the same time, it was announced that the recently concluded teachers' "workshop" favored differentiation in the teaching of courses even if the courses be lumped together in the same general field of study.

The principals' program suggested that:

1. Parents be informed of the work to be assigned to a pupil prior to the actual assignment.
2. A principals' advisory council consisting of parents, pupils, teachers and trustees be established in each school.
3. Methods be sought for bettering class organization and procedures.
4. Study programs be improved.
5. Parents' study groups be extended.
6. Parents be given opportunity to participate in plans for establishment of school zones and for maximum use of schools.
7. Methods be established for revising and developing general standards and for meeting individual needs.

Different Books Urged

Citing that several different studies are sometimes lumped together under one heading such as "social studies" covering geography, history and science, the teachers workshop urged that different textbooks be provided for each individual study and that a specific teaching time be laid down for each subject.

In addition to teachers and educational leaders, a number of parents attended the workshop.

Both programs will be presented to the county board of education next week.

Meanwhile, Robert B. Tarke, public relations chairman of the Parents League of Curriculum Improvement, which was organized "to obtain more emphasis on the '3 Rs' and less on frills" criticized the motives of school officials in inviting parents to attend the workshops.

He cited the July 22 issue of the Educators' Dispatch, a bimonthly publication of educational news, as describing the workshop plan as a formula "for controlling parents' revolts against public school teaching methods." He quoted the publication as saying "the formula is working in Rockville, Md."

The league has called a mass meeting for 8:30 p. m. Thursday at the Kensington National Guard Armory, Mitchell st., and Connecticut ave.

Carretta to Lead Arlington Chest Unit

Albert A. Carretta, Arlington attorney, has been appointed co-chairman of the Arlington Residential Unit of the 1949 Community Chest campaign, General Chairman Lawrence Michael said yesterday.

Carretta will serve with Stephen M. Smith, Washington stock broker, who was appointed a co-chairman last week.

Volunteers in the Residential Unit will solicit funds for the drive by a door-to-door canvass of homes in Arlington County. Other unit volunteers will collect contributions from business firms and apartment dwellers.

Sign Dedication

Two neon signs will be dedicated at the Central Union Mission, 613 C. st. nw., at 9 p. m. September 10. They were donated by the Evening Auxiliary of the Mission.

Youth Groups To Plan Programs

Twenty-four representatives of parish youth groups of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington will gather at the College of Preachers of the Washington Cathedral Friday through Sunday to plan programs for the coming year.

Leaders of the youth program workshop will be the Rev. J. Brooke Mosley, diocesan director of social relations; the Rev. John M. Burgess, Howard University chaplain; the Rev. J. R. Anschutz, rector of Christ Church, Georgetown, and Mrs. Harold C. Kelleran, director of the diocesan department of Christian education.

Rev. Harris to Fill St. Alban's Pulpit

The Rev. Edward Bledsoe Harris will celebrate Holy Communion and preach the sermon at 11 a. m. Sunday at St. Alban's Church, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw. Mr. Harris was recently named assistant to the rector of St. Alban's, the Rev. Charles T. Warner.

The new assistant, who is a graduate of the Virginia Theological Seminary, served as assistant to the rector at St. Alban's from 1932 until 1936. He was later rector of Holy Trinity Church in Prince Georges County and priest in charge of the Chapel of the Good Shepherd here.

27th Bible Conference

The twenty-seventh conference of the Organized Bible Class Association will begin today at Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md. Dr. Paul C. Warren of Baltimore, Md., will be the main speaker during the three-day meeting.

Chest Names Special Gifts Unit Leaders

Jellef

West

Gore

Tausig

Four men with combined volunteer service in the Community Chest totaling 40 years have been named chairmen of sections in the special gifts unit for the 1949 campaign.

Those appointed, Special Gifts Chairman E. Cortlandt Parker announced yesterday, are: Philip L. Gore, vice president of Security Storage Co.; Frank R. Jelleff, president of Frank R. Jelleff, Inc.; John G. Tausig, partner in the law firm of Butler, Baker and Tausig, and Millard F. West, jr., an associate in the investment brokerage firm of Auchincloss, Parker and Redpath.

Gore, with 11 Community Chest campaigns behind him, does volunteer work as a director of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association, as a trustee of the National Presbyterian Church and as a member of the Junior Board of Commerce, Washington Rotary Club and the Board of Trade.

Jelleff, a founder of the Community Chest of Washington, has served in 19 Red Feather drives. He has been president of the D. C. Chest, was first president of the Community Chest Federation and has been chairman of the special gifts units several times.

Tausig, once a navigation-training supervisor for the Army Air Corps, has been a special gifts solicitor in two previous fund drives. He is a member of the District Bar Association.

West, who has worked in eight Chest drives, is a trustee of United Community Services and a director of the Traveler's Aid Society of Washington, a Red Feather agency. He is a member of the Board of Trade and helped found the Junior Board of Commerce.

The Community Chest Federation conducts the annual fund-raising drive for United Community Services. The latter replaced the Washington Council of Social Agencies and the Washington Community Chest.

Church Assembly Modifies Report

Amsterdam, the Netherlands, Sept. 3 (AP).—The report to the World Council of Churches condemning both communism and capitalism was revised today along lines proposed by Charles P. Taft, a brother of the United States Senator.

The original report by a section of 125 delegates to the assembly of 450 said "The Christian churches should reject the ideologies of both communism and capitalism."

The revised version said the churches should reject the "ideologies of both communism and laissez-faire (uncontrolled) capitalism."

Taft, an Episcopal lay delegate, earlier had told the press he would propose the revision because "while there is an ideology of communism with all its inconsistencies, capitalism exists in so many variations that it was always difficult, and is today impossible, to state an ideology which even approximately represents capitalism in every country of the world."

He said the revised wording represented the "meaning which I believe was in the mind of the vast majority of the members of the section."

The revised version was read to the assembly by Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen, Presbyterian, of the Union Theological Seminary, New York. He was in the chair near the end of the session.

No delegate raised any objection but the amendment may come up for final action Saturday. The assembly yesterday "received" the report for recommendation to the member churches. Officials said the action was not an approval or adoption.

Another report to the assembly today condemned anti-Semitism, but took no side in the Arab-Jewish conflict over Palestine. The report urged relief for Arab and Jewish victims of Palestine warfare "without discrimination," and prayer and work for "order in Palestine."

"We must acknowledge in all humility that too often we have failed to manifest Christian love towards our Jewish neighbors or even a resolute will for common social justice," said the report. It was drafted by a committee headed by Dr. Angus Dun, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Washington, D. C.

"We call upon all churches we represent to denounce anti-Semitism no matter what its origin as absolutely irreconcilable with the profession and practice of Christian faith. Anti-Semitism is a sin against God and man."

Health Plan Is Attacked

quire a tax of at least three per cent on each worker and employer "merely to initiate it."

Ewing, in his report based on a seven-month study, said the plan might be financed at its outset by a levy of from ½ to 1 per cent of the first $4800 earned. Eventually, he estimated, the tax might range up to 4 per cent as services were expanded. Employer and employe each would pay half.

Lists Objections

In this city, Sister Marie, administrator of Providence Hospital, yesterday listed her objections to the plan. She said it would "tend to socialize medicine," and "completely sever our present doctor-patient relation."

"Voluntary insurance plans are considered best, with States and cities providing for the care of indigents," said the hospital administrator.

The proposed 10-year plan was also blasted yesterday by William R. Castle, president of the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area, who issued a four-page statement of his views.

"It is not true," said Castle, "that the Government 'must underwrite and subsidize a significant portion of (hospital) maintenance cost.'"

As to the report's recommendations for Government grants to create new medical schools, Castle said he favored more liberal tax laws to "enable generous donors to give scholarships" through present medical schools.

Of compulsory health insurance, Castle said:

"Compulsory health insurance is never satisfactory, and it imposes a tremendous burden on the taxpayers."

Mother Keeps Hammering; School Building's Finished

plaster. Some builders told her completion "might take weeks."

The delay would have thrown the 400-500 elementary pupils scheduled for Oak Street into the Madison School, only other elementary school in Falls Church, which expects 700 to 800 youngsters.

It would have put Madison School completely on a double schedule—its students attending half-day, some in the morning, some afternoons. It would have strained its facilities to the limit.

So Mrs. Hodges began her month-long solo flight. On August 3 she went before the Fairfax School Board, asked their permission—as an individual—to try to break the bottleneck.

They told her: "It's impossible, but try it," she recalls. "I told them anything as right and necessary wasn't impossible and went ahead."

Mrs. Hodges found only three plasterers working at the school—the school contract paid plasterers only the $20 daily union scale, and they could get as much as $26 on other jobs.

She pleaded with the plasterers' union for men. They promised her three, but the men never showed up.

She went to the Tyler Corp., now building the gigantic Tyler Gardens apartment development in Falls Church. They sent her two men, but she found they were nonunion.

Afraid of friction with union plasterers on the Oak Street School job, "I sent them back to Tyler Corp. and got paid $100 for them. They needed the men and I guess they were glad to get them back." She later used the $100 to pay men she got above the union scale.

Finally, on August 11, James J. Conroy, area plastering contractor, provided her with two union men. He even paid them the difference between the school and operating pay scale.

Under her urging, the Oak Street School plastering contractor, W. A. Brand of Staunton, Va., produced three more men. Says Mrs. Hodges: "The bottleneck was broken."

Yesterday, school workmen said 14 of the school's 15 classrooms will be plastered, wired and cleaned, and ready to go when school opens Tuesday.

Mrs. Hodges, who lives at 604 N. Oak st., now has official permission "to speak for the Fairfax school board" in expediting construction. Workmen regard her with a mixture of awe and respect.

Says Paint Foreman C. L. Kretler, finishing his seventh straight week on the job including Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, "My wife won't let me come home after this." He said he has even slept at the school to get things done.

Actually, Mrs. Hodges' three elementary school youngsters will attend the Madison School Tuesday. So someone asked her why she'd worked so hard to push completion of Oak Street.

"My motives were selfish," said the faminine expediter, "I didn't want my children on a double shift."

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THAT WAS A VERY satisfactory 21-10 win for the Redskins over the Rams in Los Angeles, from all accounts, with the Redskins' line serving with particular distinction. Sammy Baugh is quoted as highly pleased, and he can be forgiven for any selfish interest in the high skill of the Redskins' line.

POVICH

For a couple of years now, Baugh back there quarter-backing the T-Formation, has been busily occupied digging 200-pound weights out of his hair and ridding himself of human lavaliers around his neck. The spectacle of Baugh running for his life has been a common sight for Redskin fans.

It isn't quite startling, though, to read that the Redskins' line is now a powerful unit. In the closing games of last season, there wasn't a better line in the National Football League. The Redskins' line play after mid-Navember bore no resemblance to the seven-man sieve of the earlier games.

Fred Boensch, a rookie guard from Stanford, and John Sanchez., burly tackle from the Detroit Lions, were sensations in the closing games. Teamed with John Adams and John Steber they were a powerhouse unit. With all respects to Baugh, the strength of the Redskins at the season's finish lay in their line.

IF THE REDSKINS' victory was tainted in any measure aside from the fact it was an exhibition game, it was the presence of Glenn Davis in the Rams' lineup. The Redskins stopped Davis cold, but the Rams were guilty of trying to stage a show by using Davis who was on furlough from the Army. He was more of a gate attraction than a member of the Rams' league unit and they sacrificed something by playing him.

Not surprising to this bureau, though, was the 84-yard thrill run contributed by the Redskins' rookie, Dan Sandifer, on a punt return that was the play of the game. Sandifer was something special the few times they permitted him to carry the ball in the College All Stars' game against the Chicago Cardinals, and observer Herman Ball of the Redskins carried a glowing report back to Coach Turk Edwards.

Sandifer could be the ball-carrier needed to balance the Redskins' attack that is now concentrated in the passing of Sammy Baugh. And at a time when Eddie Saenz is out for six weeks with a foot fracture, Sandifer's skill at running the ball is doubly important. He, not Harry Gilmer, could be the Redskins' rookie of the year.

THIS COULD BE the year when the Redskins emerge from their long-time identity as a one-man team in the image of Sammy Baugh. The passes of Baugh will still be the chief ground-gaining weapon, but already Baugh has been relieved of much of his punting duties and the Redskins show promise of a running attack that may lighten his passing burden.

Harry Gilmer supposedly is being groomed as Baugh's successor at quarterback and at least his understudy this season, but out in the Rerskins' camp there is a growing impression that Gilmer is destined for other duties. There is of course a high suspicion that he can't pass like Baugh, and there is a growing belief that he can make good as a ball carrier. Instead of spending this season on the bench as Baukh's reserve, he may be in there at halfback.

If the Redskins have a glaring weakness it appears to be at fullback where Jim Castiglia's plunging is being missed. Castiglia was slow, never fancy and sometimes muffed the signals but he was an immense ground-gainer nevertheless, and thus far the Redskins have turned up nobody else worth the $10,000 salary he is holding out for.

THE REDSKINS NEED to improve, however. They'll be in a tougher Eastern division this season. The New York Giants were a dismal push-over last year, lacking any tail back who could run and throw the ball until they acquired Paul Governali from Boston. But the Giants are a club to be reckoned with this season since the addition of Charley Conerly of Ole Miss, the best thing to come out of a wing-back formation last season.

Up in Pittsburgh, the Steelers suffered a blow in the death of Coach Jock Sutherland, but they have an improved ball team otherwise. In Ray Evans, the Kansas cyclone, the Steelers picked up a quarterback, a ball carrier and a passer all tidied up in the same package.

The Redskins have to beat the Eagles, too. The Philadelphia club when last seen was the Eeastern division champion, and still with them are the best-running back in the section, Steve Van Buren, and Tommy Thompson, the league's second-best passer. The Redskins were next to last in the East last year. It would be disappointing if they had to look to their laurels.

Terps Ask Change in Eligibility Provisions

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Maryland yesterday requested its 15 fellow Southern Conference members to hold a special meeting "immediately" for the purpose of amending the conference constitution to preserve the eligibility of Lu Gambino.

At the same time, the Baltimore Colts and the Chicago Bears began enthusiastic dickering with Gambino.

The plea was telegraphed directly to the schools by Col. Geary Eppley, faculty representative for athletics at Maryland and a member of the conference's executive committee which Friday ruled Gambino ineligible.

Maryland asks that the conference amend its constitution to permit all returning GIs four years of varsity competition. Gambino has already played three years of varsity football, all that the conference permits a prewar player, and was ruled ineligible on this count.

Need Two-Third Vote

The Conference constitution cannot be amended unless two thirds of the members approve the change. It also requires two thirds of the membership to accept Maryland's invitation to hold a special meeting before the session can be called.

Since the executive committee has final say on all matters pertaining to athletic jurisdiction, the Terps could not appeal the committee's 2-1 decision on Gambino. The alternative was to summon the conference as a whole and amend the rule on which Gambino was ruled out.

Although the chances are slim that the Conference members will yield to Maryland's request, the Terps may find strong support in three or four quarters. It is believed that Clemson, Duke and South Carolina also have GI football players whose eligibility has expired under the conference rules.

None of these schools has declared its players ineligible, as Wake Forest did Friday to two of its lettermen when it learned of the Gambino action.

Lu Sweats It Out

Gambino, meanwhile, was sweating out the situation yesterday. He turned a deaf ear to an offer by the Baltimore Colts and another by the Chicago Bears and said he will continue to ignore pro offers until "the school has done all it can to make me eligible."

He didn't attend practice, a drill during which Head Coach Jim Tatum devoted most of the afternoon experimenting with Jim LaRue, Earl Roth and Bernie Sniscak at Gambino's right halfback position.

Through General Manager Walter Driskill, assistant coach at Maryland last year, the Colts have made Gambino two offers. If Maryland's last plea for reinstatement fails, the Colts plan to redouble their efforts, and also boost their ante, to sign Gambino.

Bears Want Him Also

The Baltimoreans would like to announce his acquisition at their AAC opener Sunday when the Colts tackle the New York Yankees in Baltimore.

The Cleveland Browns owned draft rights to Gambino, but traded them to Baltimore, Gambino's home town.

In the National Football League, the draft rights to Gambino are held by the Chicago Bears, whose owner-coach, George Halas, told Gambina two weeks ago, "I have a place in my backfield for you."

Lopat, Shea Hurl N. Y. To 5-2, 6-2 Triumphs

New York, Sept. 3.—Joe DiMaggio went on a batting rampage today, blasting three home runs and driving in seven tallies to lead the New York Yankees to 6-2 and 5-2 triumphs over the Nats.

The victories enabled the Yanks to move within a half-game of the front-running Boston Red Sox, who blanked the Philadelphia Athletics 2-0, in a night game. The defeat also returned the Nats to seventh place. DiMaggio banged his thirtieth and thirty-first homers of the season and drove in four runs in the first game. He connected with two on in the first inning and again with the bases empty in the third.

Lopat Wins Fifteenth Game

All Yankee lefthander Eddie Lopat, winning his fifteenth of 23 decisions, needed in the opener was the first wicked swipe of DiMag's bat against lefty Forest Thompson in the first inning.

Tommy Henrich, who had doubled and Johnny Lindell, who had walked, were aboard at the time and scampered home ahead of DiMag, who finished the day leading the American League in home runs with 32 and R.B.I.'s 125. Joe's second blow off Thompson came in the third inning of the opener.

DiMag's four-base blow in the nightcap, with Bobby Brown and Henrich aboard in the fifth, also eventually provided the Yanks with their winning margin off Early Wynn. The Yanks had a 2-0 margin at the time, Pitcher Frank Shea having driven in both tallies with a second inning double.

Inside Park Homer

DiMag made it 5-0 when he belted a sinking liner that went through Ed Stewart trying for a shoestring catch. Stewart fell after retrieving the ball and his throw to Mark Christman had neither accuracy nor authority. Joe, running all the way, scored without a play at the plate.

The Nats, although making threatening motions in the second, fifth and sixth innings, were held scoreless with three hits by Frank Shea until the eighth when they came up with two runs. Had Stewart caught DiMag's ball earlier it would have been a ball game, of course. But his failure to do so made MiMag the big gun for both Yankee wins.

In the opener, behind his early lead, Lopat was the master of the Nats all the way. Only in two innings were they able to put two of their six hits together.

Wynn Loses Sixteenth

Tom McBride's single in the second and Mickey Vernon's triple gave them their first run and they added their second in the ninth on Carden Gillenwater's infield hit, a single to left by Stewart and George Stirnweiss' wild throw to first when he attempted to double Mark Christman at first.

Shea, winning his eighth of the year and second in a period of four days, also limited the Nats to six hits. The Yanks collected only seven off Wynn, who was absorbing his sixteenth loss, but they did extremely more damage.

Dobson Allows 4 Hits, Bosox Beat A's, 2-0

Philadelphia, Sept. 3 (AP).—Joe Dobson shut out the Philadelphia Athletics with four hits tonight as the Boston Red Sox retained first place in the American League with a 2-0 victory.

Birdie Tebbetts accounted for the second Boston run with a homer in the seventh.

In chalking up his fifteenth victory of the season and his second shutout of the Athletics, Dobson was in trouble only once. That was when Hank Majeski singled and Sam Chapman doubled to start the fifth inning. After he had tossed out Elmer Valo, Dobson walked Buddy Rosar to fill the bases. Then he forced both Pete Suder and Carl Scheib to pop out.

The defeat was Philadelphia's fifth straight and dropped the Mackmen six and one-half games behind the Red Sox.

Bums Beaten Twice, Lose Lead to Braves

Giants Put Dodgers, In 2d, 7-5, 6-3

Brooklyn, Sept. 3 (AP).—The New York Giants dumped the Brooklyn Dodgers out of first place today when they defeated their interborough rivals, in both ends of a double-header, 7-5, 6-3.

The Dodgers' defeats, together with Boston's 3-1 triumph over Philadelphia, dropped the Brooks into second place, a game and a half behind the Braves.

Brooklyn-born Sid Gordon drove in four Giant runs in the opener with a pair of home runs and a single.

Training, 7-3 in the last of the ninth, the Dodgers made a game bid to pull the opener out of the fire. They put together a base on balls and three singles to score two runs after two were out, and left the potential tying runs on bases when Dave Koslo got pinch-hitter Tommy Brown to hit into a force play for the third out.

Andy (Swede) Hansen, making his first start since July 2, and pitching only his second complete game of the season, hurled the Giants to victory in the nightcap. The game was halted by darkness after eight innings.

Boston Regains Top By Winning, 3-1

Boston, Sept. 3.—The Boston Braves regained the National League lead today by taking full advantage of three hits against Righthander Emil Leonard for a 3-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Brooklyn Dodgers dropped a game and a half behind the Tribesmen by losing a double-header to the New York Giants, 6-3 and 7-5.

Jeff Heath's seventeenth homer of the season, with one on in the fourth, decided the opener of a four-game series with the Phils.

The hard-luck Philly pitcher, as he has been all season, was the veteran Emil (Dutch) Leonard. And it took him only 91 minutes to lose.

Leonard's knuckle ball was most effective and he retired Billy Southworth's sluggers in order in all innings except their three-run fourth and the eighth.

Snyder Quits, Shaughnessy Rams' Coach

Los Angeles, Sept. 3 (AP).—Bob Snyder resigned as head coach for the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League late today and Clark Shaughnessy was named as his replacement.

President Dan Reeves made the announcement and said Snyder had asked to step out because of ill health.

Snyder, whose club lost a 21-10 exhibition before more than 77,000 fans last night to the Washington Redskins, later said he has been under treatment for several months because of ulcers.

Complete Surprise

The announcement, which came as a complete surprise here, was made just before Snyder was to board a plane with his team for two games in Hawaii.

Shaughnessy, on Snyder's recommendation, was engaged as consulting coach this year.

Snyder was starting his second year as head coach. Formerly backfield mentor, and once a gifted T-quarterback in his playing days, he succeeded Adam Walsh as head coach early in 1947.

No Plans for Snyder

The Rams looked impressive in the early stages of the National League race last year but fell back after a succession of costly injuries hit the squad.

Snyder said he has no immediate plans but said he might be interested later in a consultant's job.

"I wish Clark all the luck. I'll be glad to assist him in any way," Snyder said, adding that his physician, Dr. Arthur Kaslow, had recommended his resignation as head man.

Shaughnessy is well known as an expert on the T-style of play, and has coached college and professional teams for many years.

Shaughnessy and the Terps

Shaughnessy coached at the University of Chicago for many years. When the Maroons abandoned big-time football, he went to Standford and his first Stanford production won the Rose Bowl game.

He left there for Pittsburgh and the University of Maryland, serving two terms at Maryland. His last was in 1946 when he was released and Jim Tatum, present mentor, engaged.

While coaching the Terps, Shaughnessy also served as advisory coach for the Washington Redskins. He relinquished that job last year to accept a similar position with the Rams this season.

Mrs. Erkenbeck Takes Trophy

Mrs. B. J. Erkenbeck took possession of the J. Clinton Tribby trophy yesterday with a low net of 152 in the two-day tournament at Army-Navy.

Mrs. Erkenbeck scored a 99 Thursday and 95 yesterday both with a 21 stroke handicap.

Second low net was won by Mrs. J. S. Phillips who also won the Class A ringer tourney. Low gross was easily captured by Mrs. Ann Stonematz Little who shot a 36 hole 165 with no handicap.

They Win Easily in Semifinals

Willie Turnesa, Ray Billows Play for Amateur Title Today

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 3 (AP).—Two tourney-tough New Yorkers—Willie Turnesa and Ray Billows—will meet tomorrow for the Amateur Golf championship of the United States.

This pair of 34-year-old campaigners grooved their shots over Memphis Country Club's fairways in the 36-hole semifinals today to snuff out the "dark horse" challence of two youngsters from the sunshine belt.

Both won decisively.

Turnesa, from Elmsford, N. Y., who won the National in 1938, trounced Gene Dahlbender of Atlanta, the Dixie champion, 8 and 6.

Billows, the perennial amateur "bride'smaid" from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., broke the heart of the oil country by expelling Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, Okla., 6 and 5.

The victors tee off at 10:30 a. m. EST, tomorrow for the crown won last year by Robert (Skee) Riegel of Monterey Park, Calif. Riegel was ushered to the sidelines by Dahlbender Wednesday morning.

This is the third national finals for Billows, the hard luck guy who has never crashed through. He lost to Johnny Goodman at Portland, Oreg., two up, in 1937 and to Marvin (Bud) Ward, 7 and 5, in Chicago in 1939. He also was a semifinalist in 1940.

He is a five-time winner of the championship in his home State.

The New Yorkers grabbed long leads over their young foes in the morning round and refused to let go in the afternoon.

Turnesa led Dahlbender, four up, at the end of the pre-lunch 18. Billows had a three-hole margin over Coe, who at one time was six down.

The losing story in thumbnail was this: Coe, a 6 foot 2 inches 145-pounder, showed the wear and tear of the week-long grind under a broiling sun and seemed to have tightened up a bit under semi-final pressure.

Lahlbender's putting blade, blast hot during the earlier rounds, was just another slab of cold steel.

Montreal Wins Pennant

Toronto, Sept. 2 (U.P.).—The Montreal Royals clinched the International League pennant last night, their third in the last four years, when they defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 8 to 7, in a night game.

Mike Joseph Wins 50-Lap Lanham Feature

Mike Joseph ran away with the feature Capital Sweepstakes in last night's midget auto races at West Lanham before a crowd of 6100. His time was 11:52:66 for the 50-lap, 12½ mile race.

Charlie Miller was the only driver close to the pace-setting Joseph blut a blowout forced Miller out of the money on the thirty-eighth lap. Joseph has now won four feature events at West Lanham, the season's record so far.

Fred Moore finished second and Len Duncan came in third. Shorty Bowers, Flash Gordon, and John Gavin smashed up their cars during the course of the eveening but none was injured.

Braves Recall Sanders, But He Gets Beaned

Boston, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Boston Braves recalled Infielder Ray Sanders from their Hartford Class A Eastern League farm today but Sanders' return was delayed because he was hit on the head by a ptiched ball at Hartford tonight.

General Manager John Quinn had planned to have Sanders rejoin the Tribe in time for tomorrow's doubleheader with the Phillies. The extent of Sanders' injury was not known but he's under a doctor's observation for at least 24 hours.

Wozniak Wins $5000 Canadian Pro Swim

Toronto, Sept. 3 (AP).—Stephen Wozniak, 33-year-old Buffalo, N. Y., veteran outlasted a field of 54 swimmers today to win the men's world professional swimming championship and $5,000 first money in the Canadian National Exhibition's annual 10-mile swim.

Wozniak was timed in 4 hours, 29 minutes and 16 seconds.

Second place money of $2500 went to Ben Gazel of Toronto, who won the race last year when Wozniak was third.

Weisberg Dethrones Worsham as Junior Golf Champion

Here For Bivins

This Time Charles Is Ready to Go

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

"The next heavyweight champion of the world" (self-styled) came to town quietly yesterday, this time to do a little fighting.

Ezzard Charles said he was in perfect physical condition after two weeks' training at Pompton Lakes, N. Y. That contrasted sharply with his last appearance here, when the Cincinnati belter whose title backers aren't limited his handlers claimed a wide range of ailments.

Naturally, Charles' twice-postponed scrap with Jimmy Bivins, now set for September 13 at Griffith Stadium, was the conversational centerpiece when the sports writers were called in. And just as naturally Manager Jake Mintz, except when Charles got in a word edgeways, made some interesting, although careful observations:

"All I'm interested in is a victory," said Mintz, answering a question if he'd be satisfied with a $100,000 gate.

"A Charles-Bivins fight is the best possible pairing in the heavyweight division," also said Mintz when somebody asked about successors to Joe Louis' throne.

"The Bivins bout is a tough one, but I can beat him." This from Charles, momentarily dropping the magazine he was reading and answering a direct question.

"Bivins is a stronger opponent than Joe Baksi (whom Charles is signed to meet in November.) We are ready to meet each and every contender if the price is right . . ." Mintz, a burlesque theater operator, waxed a little emotional here.

The fact is that Charles, as a heavyweight contender, is a pretty good-looking light heavyweight. He is a rangy 176-pounder, a little sleepy in appearance, but broad at the shoulders and skinny around the legs.

He hasn't had a fight since June, which is his own fault considering the two postponements of the Bivins thing he requested. But that rest may boost him higher in his favorite role.

He'll start public workouts at Turner's Arena at 3 p. m. today.

Bubby Loses His Crown By 7 and 5

Bubby Worsham was finally displaced yesterday as the junior golf champion of Washington by Alan Weisberg who conquered him, 7 and 5, in the finals of the second annual Junior Open at Georgetown Prep.

Worsham, who was dogged by an occasional cold putter, never had a chance against the new champion, who assumed command of the match at the very outset.

Willie Beach, captain of the Fairfax High golf squad, won the second flight championship from his Fairfax teammate, Bob Feagans, 6 and 4. In the 13-and-under flight Kay Fletcher, Panama's junior champ, won the title by defeating Hank Ford, 3 and 1.

Weisberg had less trouble with Worsham than he had in his semi-finals match earlier in the day against John Eisinger. Eisinger stubbornly hung on until the nineteenth hole before Weisberg won the match.

In the final match, Worsham was down four at the turn, the victim of hard-luck putting and Weisberg's birdie deuce on the 180-yard third hole. Weisberg birdied the same hole again on the nine-hole course and was two under par when he iced the match on the thirteenth hole. He was never behind at any point.

The last time the two met in championship play, in the 1946 finals of the schoolboy championship, Worsham emerged the victor 3 and 2. Weisberg's current victory will come as good news to Georgetown University where he starts predental school in September.

At 20, Weisberg has several years of competition behind him, first gaining prominence as runnerup to Bethesda's Sid Lanier in the 1944 schoolboy tourney. But yesterday's triumph was his first major victory.

Just out of the Army after a year and a half of service, Weisberg plays at the Indian Spring Country Club. The District Amateur next week looms as his next big test.

Results of the semifinals:
In the 13-and-under flight—Kay Fletcher defeated Irving Salamy, 4 and 3; Hank Ford defeated Shelly Blitz, 3 and 2.
In the second flight—Willie Beach defeated Robert Berry, 7 and 6; Bob Feagans defeated Lee Edwards, 1 up, 19 holes.
In the championship flight—Marvin Worsham defeated Eugene Wolfe, 6 and 4; Allan Weisberg defeated John Eisinger, 1 up, 19 holes.

Tennis Finals Set for Today In Public Parks

By virtue of a 6—1, 6—4 win over Kenny Dental and Walter Christianson, Frank Dunham and Hyman Ritzenberg gained the finals in the Public Parks Tennis Tournament at the 16th and Kennedy st. courts yesterday.

Dunham and Ritzenberg will square off against Walter Kemetick and Stanley Haney today at 3 p. m.

Kenetick and Haney made the finals by their 6—3, 7—5 trouncing of Ernie Kientz and Don Nelson.

In the men's singles finals, which will be held today at 1 p. m., Dunham is pitted against Kemetick, the Chicago Public Park's titleholder.

Kielty Finalist In Women's Golf

San Francisco, Calif., Sept. 3 (AP). — Dot Kielty, Long Beach, Calif., and Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Tex., today blasted their way into the finals of the forty-eighth annual Women's Amateur golf championship at the Olympic Club course.

Miss Kielty, California State champion and Curtis Cup star, eliminated Alice O'Neal, Indianapolis, Ind., 5 and 4, and Miss Riley, twice winner of the Trans Mississippi championship, defeated Margaret Gunther, Memphis, Tenn., 2 up.

Pete Puts Out $5200—Gets Back A Dead Horse!

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—Itcost Pete Bostwick $5200 today to buy a dead horse.

But Kordofan brok ehis right hind leg in the race, a $5200 claiming event, and had to be destroyed.

Under the rules, Bostwick was forced to go through with the deal.

Yanks Meet Aussies Today In Cup Play

New York, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Australia based its meager hopes on tennis veteran Adrian Quist tonight as the challenging hopefuls from down-under geared to meet the United States tomorrow in the two opening Davis Cup singles matches.

Frankie Parker of Los Angeles plays Australia's Billy Sidwell in the first duel, and Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., meets the venerable Quist in the second.

The one doubles match in the five-match series will be played Sunday, and the two final singles matches, with tomorrow's pairings reversed, are set for Monday. The doubles lineup will not be announced until tomorrow.

Quist is the oldest player competing and the second oldest ever to play in a Davis Cup challenge round. He is 35. Bill Tilden played at 37.

The Aussies nursed scant hopes of victory as the Yanks sought their third title in a row, their twelfth in the 34-year history of the resplendent cup.

The Yanks themselves are no kids on the court. Parker is 32, Schroeder is 27, Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, one nominee for doubles, is 33. Billy Talbert of New York City, the other doubles probable, is 30.

Though the formal announcement will not be made until tomorrow afternoon, Talbert and his long-time partner, Gardnar Mulloy, are certain to represent the United States in the lone doubles match on Sunday. They just won the national doubles crown and the selectors scarcely can fumble that one.

The Aussie duo is not quite so certain, though Talbert and Mulloy feel certain they will find themselves pitted against Quist and Colin Long. Quist declared today he didn't expect to make up his mind until after tomorrow's singles—"and then I can change it up to an hour before the doubles start."

If Quist confines himself to singles, then Long and Sidwell will face the American champs. They looked very good in a practice set today in which they beat Frank Sedgman of Australia and Budge Patty of the United States, 6—3.

Rieger Advances At Congressional

Charles Rieger, a ranking young net star from Philadelphia, stormed through two opponents yesterday at Congressional to enter the boys' quarter-finals of the Washington Boys and Girls tennis tournament. Rieger, seeded third in his division, blanked D. York, 6—0, 6—0, and then trounced Tom Wiener, 6—1, 6—1.

'Skins Head for Denver After 21-10 Rout of Rams

Los Angeles, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Rams headed in opposite directions today, the Redskins traveling east after trimming the locals, 21 to 10, in their annual charity game last night before 77,492 patrons.

A lot of the 'Skins joy was dimmed when it was learned that Back Eddie Laenz suffered a broken foot bone. Saenz, who gained 44 yards in the first two periods, was hurt returning a kickoff. He is expected to be sidelined for six weeks or more.

The Rams fly to Hawaii to play a pair of exhibition games.

Sammy Baugh and the 'Skins go by train to Denver to play the Chicago Cardinals September 6.

It was too much Baugh and a brace of exploding backs who whipped the Rams, plus a big red line that consistently outcharged the Ram forwards, upset the passing attack and bottled up the Rams' loanout threat, Lieut. Glenn Davis of Army renown.

Washington scored first when Baugh passed to Dick Todd for a 59-yard gain that set the stage. A six-yard shot to Tommy Mont brought the score.

Bob Waterfield booted a 29-yard field goal to make the score 7-3, and the Rams went into a temporary lead when veteran Kenny Washington broke loose for 10 and 3-yard smacks after a Redskin fumble gave Los Angeles the ball inside the 20.

Dan Sandifer, rookie halfback from Louisiana State, broke up the duel, however, when he took a towering Waterfield punt and raced it back 84 yards for what was the deciding markeer.

The 'Skins got the ball again in the fourth quarter inside the 25 and iced the affair. Todd ripped off 19 and Ed Quirk in three plunges carried it across the goal.

Davis carried the ball four times from scrimmage and ended with a 1-yard net gain. He caught one pass for a 13-yard gain, and three were incomplete—two too long, one snatched just out of bounds.

Watergate Series Puts Symphony $9228 in Red

Backers Are Asked To Make Up Loss, Incurred Despite Attendance Gain

The National Symphony's four-week July Watergate concert series ran $9228.75 into the red and backers are being asked to make it up, it was disclosed yesterday.

Edward R. Finkenstaedt, president of the Symphony Association, said last night, "We've got to the point of diminishing returns in music."

He expressed agreement with heads of other musical groups in the United States that the Federal Government could provide a measure of relief by lifting its 20 per cent tax on admissions.

The deficit represents 66.27 per cent of pledges totaling $15,000 made by 27 business firms and individuals, whose underwriting of the concert series made it possible. Pledges ranged up to $3000 each.

The deficit occurred despite an attendance of 5255 more paying listeners for this summer's 12 concerts than for the 1947 series of 18 concerts. There were 49,045 tickets sold this year and 43,790 in 1947.

Cash receipts this year totaled $35,674, more than $3000 above last summer and the total deficit was only a third of last year's record $27,617.

Largest expense item was the $31,638.75 paid to musicians, conductors, soloists and stage hands.

Steady Rise in Costs

"The costs have steadily risen in the last 10 years," Finkenstaedt said, "that is the trouble in all this musical business, we have got to the point of diminishing returns."

Finkenstaedt pointed out that the National Symphony Orchestra is not subsidized and is faced with the same perennial deficits as other classical music units throughout the country. He said repeal of the 20 per cent admission tax would afford considerable relief.

George E. Judd, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was recently quoted in the New York Times as saying that the only way he saw for that orchestra to avoid substantial operating deficits was to "return to the original tax-exempt status which nonprofit organizations with certain standards enjoyed prior to the last war.

Would Mean 20 Per Cent More

"In this case," Judd said, "I believe the public would be willing to continue to pay what they now pay with the tax. It would amount to increasing our gross revenues 20 per cent and would represent the first sizable increase in recent years."

Finkenstaedt said that if the National Symphony had been allowed to keep the 20 per cent paid the Federal Government in taxes it would have considerably reduced the Watergate deficit.

The tax is in effect a double tax on those who make up the deficits, he also pointed out, because they have already paid a tax on that money as income.

Mother Sues For $100,800 In Scald Death

The mother of a 4-year-old boy, who was fatally scalded when he fell in an excavation dug around a steampipe at Mount Rainier, Md., last March, asked District Court yesterday for $100,800 damages.

The child received third degree burns to his entire body when he fell into the pit while playing in front of 4312 Kaywood dr., Mount Rainier, on March 6, 1948. He died of the burns 12 hours later.

At the tim of his death, the child's name was given as Joseph Brennan, as he was living with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brennan, of 2702 Webster st., Mount Rainier.

Yesterday, however, his name was listed as Joseph C. Pingleton, in the suit filed by his mother, Mrs. Rosalie Levine of 4304 Russell ave., Mount Rainier.

Mrs. Levine said he was her son by a former marriage and was being cared for by the Brennans.

Named defendants in the suit are Kaywood Apartments, Inc., and its owners and operators, Abraham and Minnie Kay, 4800 17th st. nw., George Wasserman, 816 F st. nw., and Louis and Celia Kay Grossberg, 3421 Garrison st. nw.

Mrs. Levine asks $50,000 for the loss of her son's services, $50,000 for the pain he suffered, $500 medical expenses and $300 funeral expenses.

POLICEMAN R. G. THOMPSON INSPECTS TRASH IN RECLUSE'S ROOM WHICH YIELDED $2200

Gas Station Pair Accused Of Funds Hoax

Detectives Find Flaw In Robbery Story; Employes Charged

A little elementary deduction by two Washington detectives led to the arrest of two gas station attendants yesterday on charges of attempting to make off with $117 in sales receipts.

Harvey M. Flowers, 24, of 218 C st. se., night attendant Thursday at a filling station at 232 Massachusetts ave., told police this story yesterday:

He was held up at the point of a .32 revolver at about 4:20 a. m. by a Negro, aged 30, 6 feet tall, weighing between 170 and 180 pounds. He said he was then robbed of what he thought to be about $150, and locked in a storage shed.

Flowers said he was released from confinement by Lieut. James McGaw of Camp Lee, Va., who pulled in the station for gas and heard his cries.

Detective Sergts. E. H. Winter and R. L. Dunn noticed the shed had two latches—one a lock, which if snapped, cou dn't be opened without a key; the other, a latch which could be opened only from the outside, but without a key.

A robber who took the trouble to lock his victim inside would have seen that he was securely confined, they surmised.

After questioning by police for an hour and a half, Flowers admitted having concocted the story. He said he gave $117 to the regular night manager of the gas station, Albert Arnold Justice, 30, of 306 F st. nw.

Police found the money when they arrested Justice at his home on a charge of grand larceny. Flowers was booked on the same charge plus that of making a false report.

Type 'O' Blood Needed Urgently By Red Cross

Blood donors, particularly those with type "O" blood, are urgently needed from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. today at the District Red Cross Blood Center, 1730 E st. nw.

The Red Cross is 35 pints below its normal reserve of 100 pints of whole blood and especially worried because of the extra highway accidents expected over the long Labor Day weekend. The District Blood Center supplies 16 local hospitals with their entire needed blood supplies.

Donors, 18 to 60, and in good health, should show up at the Center before 1 p. m. today. They should eat no fatty foods for four hours before giving blood, and unmarried donors between 18 and 21 must bring their parents' consent in writing.

Latest Telephone Equipment Set Up In Franklin School

The latest in telephone equipment was installed yesterday in the building where Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, made the first call in history.

A new four-position dial switchboard was cut into service at the Franklin School, 13th and K sts. nw., replacing the manual switchboard which served the Board of Education.

The equipment will facilitate intercommunication between headquarters of the Board of Education and the various schools in the city. Dr. Bell's call, completed June 3, 1880, traveled over a beam of light to a window in a building at 1325 L st. nw.

New Search Of Rooms Yield No Valuables

Two Washington policemen climbed into their old clothes yesterday, rolled up their sleeves and went rummaging in a two-room trash-filled apartment at 931 G st. nw.—for years the home of an aged recluse now in St. Elizabeths.

Last month, when the case was first reported, a police search turned up about $2250 in cash and 26 uncashed Social Security checks. Yesterday's investigation netted nothing of value. This was the report of Pvt. Robert G. Thompson of the First Precinct following four hours' of digging around.

Earlier, Health Department inspectors, first to answer a complaint that the apartment of the 77-year-old woman was a health and fire hazard, sprayed the fourth floor dwelling freely with DDT.

The rooms, scattered with papers dating back to 1937 and old clothes, held reminders of brighter days—an old player piano, from which all the keys had been removed, and a cabinet radio.

But one window pane was completely gone, replaced by rags and pillows to shut out the air, the paper on the walls was yellowed and dirty, the electricity was shut off and bedbugs infested the bedroom mattress.

Police said they found a paper shopping bag containing several new slips and blouses neatly wrapped in paper napkins.

Old photographs showed that the woman once had friends and relatives but none could be located. Police said letters indicated she had been married to a barber, now apparently dead.

The woman was first sent to Gallinger for observation—on recommendation of the Women's Bureau—and later transferred to St. Elizabeths.

Mrs. Traynham Files Suit Asking Limited Divorce

Mrs. Marthena Traynham, great-granddaughter of President Benjamin Harrison, yesterday asked District Court for a limited divorce from her husband, Paul Franklin Traynham, jr., of the Economic Cooperative Administration.

She also asked permanent custody of their two children, Mary Marthena, 6, an Paul Franklin 3d, aged 1 year, and for maintenance. Mrs. Traynham left their home at 3732 R st. nw., with the two children last August 17 to take up temporary residence at the Wardman Park Hotel, according to the suit.

Traynham was reported out of town this weekend and could not be reached yesterday for comment.

The couple was married in an elaborate ceremony at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church here August 20, 1940.

Polio Strikes 2 More Here, Boys 4 and 16

60 Cases in City and 53 in Counties; Count Was 6 and 13 in 1947

Greater Washington's polio total this year rose to 113 cases yesterday with a Health Department announcement that two District boys had been newly listed as having polio.

The boys are a 4-year-old resident of the first block of Seaton pl. nw., now in Children's Hospital, and a 16-year-old resident of the 3800 block of S. Capitol st. now in Gallinger Hospital. They were admitted to the hospitals Thursday.

Sixty of this year's polio cases have been District residents, and 53 from nearby counties. The polio count at this time last year was 6 District residents, and 13 area county residents.

2 Draw $125 In Fines After 7-Car Wreck

Fines totaling $125 were assessed in Upper Marlboro Police Court yesterday against two drivers charged in a seven-car wreck early Sunday near Forest Heights, Md.

Luke Holt, 38, of Indian Head, Md., was fined $75 on a charge of reckless driving, while Howard Jones, 31, of 4321 Halley ter. se., was fined $25 on a charge of reckless driving and also $25 on a charge of operating a car without a permit.

The lengthy hearing was complicated by a lack of toy automobiles to fully demonstrate to the court the multicar snarl. The court only has four of the toys and slips of paper and fountain pens had to be used instead.

Acquitted of reckless driving charges were Joseph Marosy, about 65, of 2286 Owens rd., Oxon Hill, and Charles Lincoln, 20, of 6450 Old Fort rd., near Silesia, Md., whose cars became the focal point of the accident after they collided head-on on Indian Head rd., near Forest Heights.

Holt, according to police, was the driver of a truck which struck Marosy's car and then a parked car when it became entangled in a hood thrown off one of the wrecked cars.

Jones, according to testimony, was driver of an automobile which struck a parked car on the opposite side of the highway and then careened into the wreckage of the two cars in the center of the road.

According to Policeman Charles Perrygo, the seventh car was a hit-run vehicle which caused the original crash when it glanced off Marosy's car and forced him into the path of Lincoln's vehicle.

Navy Man Who Claimed Police Brutal, to Have Case Reopened

Charges of being drunk and disorderly were reopened yesterday against Navy Chief Radioman Archibald I. Koester, 30, who has formally complained that he was mistreated by police when arrested last Saturday.

Municipal Court Judge John P. McMahon set trial date for September 24, following a conference in his chambers with Koester's lawyer, Emmett L. Sheehan, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King.

Judge McMahon set aside a $15 collateral forfeiture on earlier drunk and disorderly charges, after Koester submitted an affidavit declaring the money was paid by a friend without his knowledge and consent.

Koester, who was arrested by Seventh Precinct police at Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw., is now under $500 bond for grand jury action on a charge that he bit Police Pvt. Frank Blessington.

In a letter to Police Supt. Maj. Robert J. Barrett, Koester charged that he was severely beaten by police when placed under arrest and had to have 15 stitches taken in his scalp at Georgetown Hospital.

Major Barrett immediately asked King to reopen the drunk and disorderly charges so that the entire case might be brought out into the open in court.

Koester lives at 605 Cedar lane, Falls Church, Va.

Thousands Quit City as Lull Sets In

Greatest Highway Travel in History Is Predicted Over Holiday Weekend

Washington residents began to leave the city by the thousands last night as Government offices and many private firms closed for the three-day Labor Day weekend.

The American Automobile Association predicted the greatest highway travel in history, both nationally and in this area, where travel inquiries have been 7½ per cent higher than last year.

Rail officials expected an influx of visitors, beginning today, almost matching the exodus of residents, and prepared to move about 500,000 persons through the Union Station during the holiday period.

Rail, air and bus lines predicted heavy, if not record, volume, especially on Monday, as returning vacationers are added to the crowds of returning weekenders.

Weatherman Cooperates

The Weather Bureau had a generally cheering word for those released from their daily work. The outlook for this area, beginning today and ending Wednesday, was for fair weather most of the time, except for light showers expected Monday or Tuesday, and temperatures slightly above the normal maximum of 82 and the normal minimum of 63.

While Government agencies and most business houses will be closed on the holiday, most of the points of interest to tourists will be open.

No formal celebration of Labor Day is scheduled here. As usual, the department and specialty stores, which reopen today after Saturday closings throughout the summer, will be closed on Labor Day, as will the chain stores and most other grocery outlets.

Banks will be closed both today and Monday, and all District of Columbia Public Library units will be closed on the holiday, District Librarian Harry N. Peterson announced.

The United States and District of Columbia branches of Municipal Court, and the Traffic Court, will be open on Labor Day, while all others will be closed.

Points to Be Open

Such points of interest as the National Gallery of Art, the Smithsonian Institution, the Lincoln Memorial, the Capitol, Ford's Theater and Mount Vernon will be open to visitors. Private museums will generally keep holiday hours, and the Folger Library will be closed.

Amusement parks of the area, most of which close after Labor Day, are ready for big crowds during the holiday weekend. Leonard P. Schloss, vice president and general manager of Glen Echo Amusement Park, announced extra attendants, parking facilities and transportation will be provided for the "last fling."

Despite indications of heavy travel in this area, the Washington Hotel Association reported yesterday that hotel rooms were available in most of the hostelries.

Twenty extra sections were added to outgoing trains yesterday, Washington Terminal officials reported, as well as additional coaches on other trains, but the weekend volume was expected to be about 10 per cent less than last year's.

On the other hand, Clyde D. Doran, district traffic manager of United Airlines, predicted the heaviest passenger travel in the company's history. Some extra sections have been scheduled in its system, and some may be added for incoming and outgoing travelers here.

Extra Sections Planned

Capital Airlines plans to add 47 extra sections to handle its traffic, which is expected to be particularly heavy from Washington to the Midwest and to Norfolk, near the Virginia beaches.

Eastern Airlines reported long waiting lists for reservations to many of the points they serve, particularly toward Atlantic City, where the annual beauty contest is being held. TWA expects to make good use of the two 51-passenger Constellations recently added for two daily flights to the Pacific Coast and intermediate points.

American Airlines carried heavy traffic to and from New York and Boston yesterday, and expected similar or greater volume on Monday.

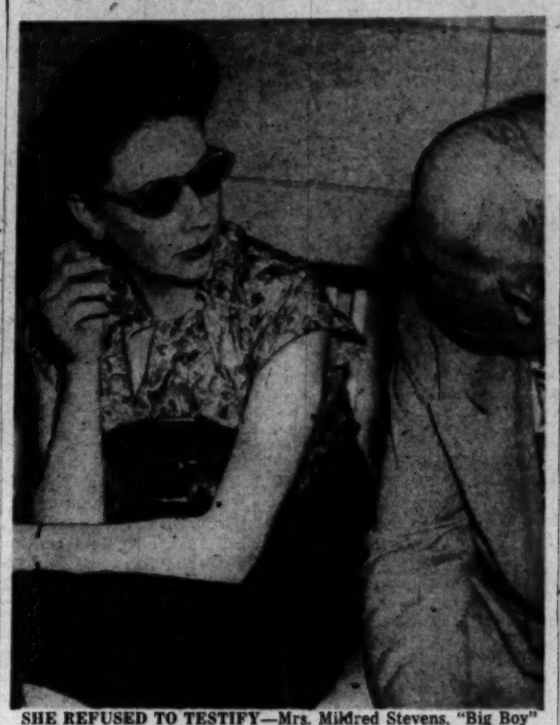
The AAA, Keystone Automobile Club, Virginia and Maryland police warned weekenders and vacationers to "take it easy" as the automobile association estimated there would be 300 victims of highway accidents during the long holiday throughout the Nation, unless Americans sharply reform their driving habits.

The AAA urged motorists to make early starts, avoid reckless speed, be careful and courteous, obey traffic regulations, keep away from alcohol while driving, and make sure—in advance—that the car is in safe and proper condition.

Medical Institute Set

An institute for psychotherapeutic medicine will be held at Walter Reed General Hospital for two weeks beginning Monday, it was announced by the Army hospital.

Police Exonerated in Slaying Of Gangster Rifling Drugstore



SHE REFUSED TO TESTIFY—Mrs. Mildred Stevens, "Big Boy" Milton's common-law wife, talks with Police Lieut. H. H. Carper of the Narcotics Squad at yesterday's inquest into the former gangster's slaying

PVT. JOSEPH GABRYS

SERGT. MURRAY KUTNER

Detectives cleared in killing of Henry "Big Boy" Milton

The Washington Post

MARYLAND POLICE CALLED IN—Takoma Park Policemen S. A. Foster (left) and C. H. Turner, who faced a gun in the hands of Milton last May 9 after he broke into a drugstore on New Hampshire ave. extended, testified at the inquest

A detective sergeant and a plainclothesman yesterday told of 30 suspense-filled minutes in the shadows of medicine bottles before they shot Henry R. (Big Boy) Milton dead in a drugstore Wednesday night.

Both officers, Detective Sergt. Murray Kutner and Detective Joseph Gabrys, were exonerated by a coroner's jury in the killing of the massive gangster and drug addict.

The jury deliberated five minutes and returned a verdict of justifiable homicide, in that both detectives had fired to enforce the arrest of a person committing a felony in their presence.

Milton, a 6-foot 3-inch, 227-pound former tough guy in the notorious tri-State gang more than a decade ago, was felled by a slug from the revolver of each detective.

Among those acquainted with the man's life and death who testified at the inquest were two Takoma Park, Md., police officers, Pvts. Colin H. Turner and Samuel A. Foster.

They told of a previous encounter with Milton. They had closed in on him in the early morning hours of May 9 outside Martin's Pharmacy, New Hampshire ave. extended, and Ray rd., where he had attempted a break. Milton flashed a .45-caliber automatic and made his getaway.

In a straightforward, even tone, Kutner pieced together in dramatic detail events leading up to the fatal shooting.

He said he knew from previous experience in the vice and robbery squads that Milton was "a dangerous man."

Kutner and his partner entered the Hall & Sothoron Drugstore, 1801 K st. nw., at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday, he related. They had been warned by Lieut. H. H. Carper, head of the narcotics squad, and Dr. Dwight F. Hall, proprietor of the store, that Milton had "cased" the establishment earlier in the day while lingering over a cup of coffee.

Around 11 p. m., more than 3 hours after Kutner and Gabrys had secreted themselves in the store's drug department, they heard "a sort of tearing noise" at a window about 20 feet away, Kutner said.

The noise ceased momentarily, and they heard it again, as though "someone was working very carefully" to jimmy the window, he recollected.

Silence and darkness enveloped the two detectives, who crouched in a corner with revolvers drawn, for 15 more minutes.

The tearing sound then was repeated for about five more minutes, Kutner said.

Nothing more happened until about 11:30, when Milton was heard to drop from the window, 8 feet to the floor.

He groped his way directly toward the drug room. Kutner was standing; Gabrys remained crouched.

"Stop! Police!" Kutner cried.

Milton paused as if stunned, then moved forward. Kutner fired once. Then Gabrys fired, a split second later.

They heard Milton drop to the floor, Kutner said, but took precautions against a possible accomplice.

"Do you give up?" was his question which got no answer. Kutner held his hat up in view over the top of a swinging door to the drug room.

He repeated his question, tried the hat trick again to draw fire, but got neither words nor bullets.

Both Kutner and Gabrys slipped around the far wall of the drugstore, saw Milton's body in a pool of blood, checked the window where he entered and then called police and an ambulance.

Gabrys verified his story in every detail.

Mrs. Mildred C. Stevens, identified as Milton's common law wife, took the stand and acknowledged that she had lived with the gangster for two years. Dr. McDonald told her that, under law, she could not be forced to testify against her will. She declined to testify.

Dr. A. Magruder McDonald, the coroner, was told by Detective Sergt. A. D. Clarke, of the homicide squad, that both bullets smashed into a mirror after piercing Milton's body. They were so badly crushed, he said, no conclusion could be reached as to which came from which revolver.

It may be never known who killed Big Boy Milton.

2 Area Men Are Killed in Accidents on Va. Highway

D. C. Machinist, 31, Dies as Motorcycle Hits Rear of Truck South of Stafford

BULLETIN

Two persons were reported killed and three injured early today in an automobile-motorcycle crash on Indian Head rd., a mile south of Forest Heights, Md. One of the injured was said to be John Perkins, 37, of 253 King st. se.

A 31-year-old Washington machinist and an Alexandria, Va., soldier were killed instantly yesterday in separate traffic mishaps on U. S. Route 1, in Virginia.

Dead were Charles Alfred Binford of 1823 16th st. nw., whose motorcycle reportedly rammed the rear of a truck 1 mile south of Stafford, and Pvt. Henry Amos Harper, 23, of Gibbons st., Alexandria, who was killed when struck by a car as he crossed the highway 3 miles south of Alexandria.

Binford, according to friends, was en route to his wife and their infant son, at her ill mother's house in suburban Richmond. Virginia State police at Culpeper said the accident occurred about 6:30 p. m.

Private Harper, police said, was struck and killed early yesterday when he stepped from the automobile of his brother, Raymond Lee Harper, and attempted to cross Route 1, at Snake Hill, Va. Earl L. Payne, 18, of Occoquan, Va., driver of the automobile that struck him, was charged with reckless driving and released on his personal bond.

The dead soldier was reported to be on 19-day preoverseas leave from Fort Jackson, S. C. Police listed his address as 25 Massey Court, Fairhaven, Fairfax County, but friends there said Harper had been living with his wife and their 2-year-old daughter, Nancy, on Gibbons st., Alexandria.

In Alexandria, a 5-year-old boy suffered a possible skull fracture when an automobile jumped the curb, striking him as he played on the sidewalk near his home.

The boy, Joseph Naylor, 211 N. Moroe st., Alexandria, was admitted to Alexandria Hospital.

Driver of the automobile identified by police as William P. Hurley, 23, who gave no address, and a 17-year-old passenger were held for investigation.

Police said the youth attempted to wrest the wheel from Hurley as the vehice mounted the curb.

Safe Looted In Maryland Postoffice

The Dickerson, Md., postoffice was robbed of $650 in cash and $250 in stamps in a safe cracking job, Montgomery County police reported yesterday.

Postmaster Roy W. Swank said he found the lock on the back door broken, and the safe dials mashed when he opened up yesterday.

The Mercer Jones Hardware Store, adjacent, also was broken into, but no money was reported lost.

Detective Corpl. Jesse Day of the Montgomery County police likened the robbery to several jobs in the same vicinity during the past few months.

Town House Seeks 15 Pct. Rent Hike

A petition to grant a 15 per cent rent increase for the 93 apartments in the Town House, 601 19th st. nw., has been filed with the District Rent Control Office, it was announced yesterday.

The petition was submitted by L. E. Breuninger & Sons, Inc. Proposed rents would be $48.88 for a one and a half room apartment, $100.63 for a three and a half room apartment, compared with present rents of $42.50 and $87.50.

Area News In Brief

For Want of a Heel A Suspect Is Held

A 26-year-old laborer, arrested on a charge of housebreaking after the heel of a shoe was left at the scene of the crime, yesterday was ordered held under $1000 bond for action of the grand jury.

Police said they discovered the heel when they investigated a report by Mrs. Esther Gitlin, 801 4th st. se., that more than $300 in cash had been stolen from her apartment.

The heel was lying near an iron pipe, which stretched up the wall to her bathroom window. The window was open at the time of the theft and there were scuff marks on the pipe, police said.

Police said they went to the home of John I. Johnson, 109 E st. se., who had done some painting for Mrs. Gitlin several weeks previous to the housebreaking. There they said they found a pair of shoes with both heels missing. The heel found in the apartment fitted the right shoe, they added.

Johnson admitted being in the area, but denied entering Mrs. Gitlin's apartment.

'Guard Day' Set Sept. 16

District Commissioners yesterday proclaimed September 16 as "National Guard Day" in the District. The proclamation was in line with President Truman's similar proclamation for the Nation. The Commissioners urged all citizens to support in every way they can the growth of the National Guard.

Group Health Moves

The administrative and business offices of Group Health Association, Inc., will open Tuesday at their new location in the Arlington Building, 1025 Vermont ave. nw., GHA President William E. Warne said yesterday.

The offices were formerly in the Pennsylvania Avenue Health Center. The move, part of an expansion program, is being made in order to provide more accommodations for the medical staff and members of the association.

The association maintains a health center at 1328 I st. nw., and a pediatrics department at 2529 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Boy Thieves Caught

A pair of youthful bandits yesterday attempted a daring daylight raid on an E st. toy store and promptly found themselves in the hands of the police.

According to police, the two boys, 7 and 9, were caught in the act of lifting a baseball game, valued at $1, and several pair of dice from the Garrison Toy & Novelty Co. 1215 E st. nw. Charged with petty larceny, they were left in the custody of their parents pending Juvenile Court action.

Lost Laundry Truck

If Southeast Washington residents are wearing "second day" shirts today, there's a reason.

A truck of the Yale Laundry Co., left the laundry's plant at 437 New York ave. nw. about 6:30 a. m. yesterday but never arrived. The missing truck was reported to police by Louie F. Wingo, route supervisor. Aboard was an estimated $500 worth of laundry, he said. As of late last night, police had found no trace of the truck.

Chilean at American U.

Prof. Eugenio Pereira Salas, professor of American history at the University of Chile, will serve on the faculty of American University during the fall term beginning September 23, President Paul F. Douglass announced yesterday.

Professor Salas, here under an exchange professor program the university has with other countries, will teach courses on the social and political thought of Latin America. His appointment is part of a program in Latin American area studies directed by Prof. Harold Davis.

Sentence Suspended

A Washington man who escaped from the Occoquan workhouse last April 6 yesterday received a suspended two-year sentence in Federal District Court in Richmond.

The man, Eugene Collier, escaped after serving five days of a 180-day sentence for assault, obtaining a drivers permit by Misrepresentation and altering the permit. At the time of his escape police listed his address as 439 10th st. nw.

Collier, who was returned to Occoquan, recently completed his original sentence.

While he was at large, a pile of clothing and personal effects containing Collier's name was found near the end of Sousa Bridge May 13. An incoherent note indicating suicide was also found with the clothing.

Thieves Get $492

Thieves forced a wooden panel in the rear of Shapiro's Farm Market, 3399 Benning rd. ne., early yesterday and fled with $492 in cash and a round of beef valued at $40, Joseph Shapiro, proprietor, reported to police.

Bar Association To Hold Annual Meeting in Seattle

The American Bar Association with hold its seventy-first annual meeting at Seattle, Wash., September 6-10, it has been announced.

Preliminary section meetings will be held at the Olympic Hotel there September 3-5, according to Tappan Gregory of Chicago, president of the association.

Washingtonians who are members of the House of Delegates, policy-setting board of the association, are:

Walter M. Bastian, treasurer of the American Bar Association; John J. Carmody, District of Columbia Bar Association; Henry P. Chandler, director of the administrative office of the United States Court; Attorney General Tom Clark; Wilbur L. Gray, District of Columbia Bar Association; Francis W. Hill, jr., District of Columbia Bar Association; George M. Morris, former president of the American Bar Association; Philip B. Perlman, Solicitor General of the United States; Percy W. Cranford-Plaskett Family Reunion Sept. 12

The thirteenth annual reunion of the Cranford-Plaskett families will be held Sunday, September 12, at the Cranford Memorial Church, Lorton, Va.

After church services at 11:15 a. m., the family will hold a picnic in the church grove, followed by a business meeting and social program.

This Way for Building Permits—All in One Room

The Washington Post

TIME-SAVER—A new bit of streamlining materialized this week in what has been called the District's cumbersome government. It is the Central Permit Bureau, in Room 108 of the District Building, 14th and E sts. nw. It is operating under direction of Superintendent Bernard H. Benson and Assistant Superintendent Denver W. Warnock. Its job: issuing permits for building, plumbing, heating, boiler and elevator work, and other phases of building repair and construction. As an example of its purpose, Warnock pointed out that a plumber can now get in the one room the permit for which he used to have to make several stops in various rooms, ranging from the basement to fourth floor

Marines Back Today After Reserve Camp

Approximately 350 Greater Washington Marine Reservists will return here today from a two-week course having to do with the intricacies of close order drill, guard duty and basic weapons at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

The men are members of the Fifth Infantry Reserve Battalion, made up of units from the District, Maryland and Virginia. They trained under the command of Lieut. Col. John G. Fondahl.

They entrained last night at Camp Lejeune and headed homeward after cleaning barracks and packing their gear.

171st MP Battalion Going to Fort Meade

The 171st Military Police Battalion of the District National Guard will leave Washington Sunday morning for two weeks training at Fort George Gordon Meade, Md.

The outfit, commanded by Lieut. Col. Sylvester Blackwell, is composed of more than 400 enlisted men and 22 officers. They will travel by motor transport and will be accompanied by about 70 men from the 715th Truck and Transport Company.

Training at the camp will include small unit, jujitsu and gas mask drills and the care and handling of basic weapons.

Baby of 6 Weeks Dies in Carriage

A six-weeks-old baby died yesterday while in her carriage outside her home.

The baby, Bonita Coles, was found unconscious by her mother, Mrs. Mary Coles, 25, of 4616 Hanna pl. se., about 5:25 p. m., police said. The baby was pronounced dead at Gallinger Hospital at 6:20 p. m.

An autopsy will be performed today at noon, Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, said.

Surry Boosts Negro School Teacher Pay

Surry, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Surry County is taking the first steps toward equalizing white and Negro school facilities, Superintendent M. B. Joyner of Dendron reported today.

The county school board must report progress that has been made in equalization to Judge Sterling Hutcheson of the United States District Court by September 15. Judge Hutcheson recently ruled that discriminatory practices in the county must be abandoned.

While the county has not yet obtained funds to begin a long-range building program, Joyner said, the initial step toward equalization has been made by boosting the Negro teacher pay one-half of the differential between it and the scale for white teachers. The change goes into effect when schools open Thursday.

Judge Hutcheson had given the board two years in which to eliminate the salary differential, specifying that one-half of the discrepancy in salaries must be abolished by the beginning of the 1948-1949 school term. Joyner said that the board has had such a plan under consideration for some time.

The board is also attempting to equalize library and laboratory facilities in the schools, Joyner declared. He estimated that "several hundred dollars' worth of books" has been ordered for Negro school libraries, and that still more will be obtained from other sources.

The Surry School Board met with the Sussex Board today to discuss consolidation of white and Negro schools in the two counties, as proposed by a survey of the State Department of Education.

Joyner said that no decisions have been made.

Md. De Molay Convention Opens Here Sunday

The twelfth annual Maryland State De Molay convention will open here at 10 a. m. Sunday with registration of delegates at the Hamilton Hotel, 14th and K sts. nw.

Robert de Bruce and Anacostia Chapters of the order here will be hosts to the 500 youths expected to attend.

A special church service will be held at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., at 2:30 p. m. Following the service delegates will meet at Palisades Park for games and a picnic.

Monday morning a business meeting and the election of State officers will take place in the District Building. The annual banquet and dance will be held at the YMCA, 17th and G sts. nw., Monday evening.

'Miss Co-ed' Named

Virginia Beach, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Eighteen-year-old Patty Cotter, a freshman at Louisiana State University, was named "Miss America Co-ed of 1948" tonight.

Sister Burned In Saving Boy From Flames

An 18-year-old Washington girl yesterday suffered burned hands as she tore flaming clothing from her 3-year-old brother whose pants had ignited as he watched an older brother burn trash.

The boy, Darrell Lee Scott, 1305 S. Capitol st., was admitted to Casualty Hospital in "fair" condition with second and third-degree burns of both legs. His sister, Dorothy, was treated for burned hands and released.

The accident happened as the youngster was watching his brother, Daniel, 15, burn trash in the rear of their home.

In another accident yesterday, Evelyn Jane Berger, 11 months old, pulled a coffee percolator cord, spilling boiling coffee over her right side as she sat in a high chair in the kitchen of her home, 1700 Jackson st. ne.

The baby was taken to Children's Hospital by police. Her condition was reported as "good."

Sentman Seated As Commander of Alexandria Post

Comdr. Ralph A. Sentman, USN, retired, was installed last night as post commander of American Legion Post No. 24 in ceremonies at Gadsby's Tavern, Alexandria.

Comdr. Sentman

Sentman, 45, is the first World War II veteran to head the unit. He succeeds James A. Gilfillan.

An Annapolis graduate, class of 1925, Sentman retired from the Navy in 1934, but was called back in 1940. He was attached to the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Navy Department, from 1942 to 1945 where he inaugurated an off-duty educational program which served more than a million men, and also developed plans for the Navy's civilian readjustment program.

Sentman announced last night that the 1949 Virginia American Legion convention would be held in Alexandria, with Post No. 24 as host.

Bigger, Faster Attack Bomber Tested by Navy

A new, bigger and faster attack bomber has passed its first tests for the Navy.

An announcement to this effect yesterday provided few details. But from a comparison with present types, the plane shapes up as the heaviest yet designed for carriers.

It will carry more than 3 tons of bombs "considerably" faster than 350 miles an hour.

A compromise between speed and distance, the new XAJ-1, has two conventional engines for normal operation and one turbo-jet in the tail for sudden bursts of speed.

The plane probably will be assigned to the 45,000-ton Midway class carrier because of its size and weight, although a few 27,000-ton carriers have had their decks strengthened for heavier airplanes.

The XAJ-1 carries a crew of three in a pressurized cockpit, indicating its planned use at high altitudes.

Registration Set For New Pupils

Registration for all new pupils at the Woodlin and Woodside Elementary Schools in Silver Spring, Md., will be held next Thursday and Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. at the schools.

Pupils should bring their birth certificates, plus a doctor's certificate stating they have had a smallpox vaccination and a diphtheria innoculation within the past year, school officials said.

The fall term at both elementary schools will open Monday, September 13, at 9 a. m., except for kindergarten children who should come at 10 a. m. that day.

72-Year-Old Man, Found In Ditch, Dies

A 72-year-old Silver Hill (Md.) man found in a roadside ditch last Monday morning after having spent all day Sunday there under the 97-degree heat, died yesterday at Providence Hospital.

Henry Dressel of Holly Tree rd., who first appeared to have suffered no ill effects from his experience, succumbed at 9:30 a. m. Hospital authorities said the immediate cause of death was thrombosis.

Dressel lived with his son, August H. Dressel. Members of his family said he disappeared from his home around 5 p. m. last Saturday, going for a walk. He was found nearly 38 hours later by a neighbor, who had heard his cries for help. He told members of the family he slipped into the ditch when he stepped out of the path of a bus.

Although he appeared at first to have suffered no serious effect from his ordeal, he was taken to the hospital Tuesday morning on advice of the family doctor. Hospital officials said he had apparently suffered a thrombosis stroke at the time of his fall.

Gerald Portman

London, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Gerald Berkeley Portman, 73, seventh Viscount of Portman, died today at his estate near Great Grimsby in northern England.

A wealthy landholder, Portman owned five London squares, including the one that bears his name. His Lincolnshire estate covers territory in which there are 12 churches and 40 saloons.

He was a veteran of the first World War.

700 to Gather At Congress of Medicine Here

The twenty-sixth annual session of the American Congress of Physical Medicine will open Tuesday at Hotel Statler for five days of clinical and medical report meetings.

An estimated 700 scientists, physicians, surgeons and technicians will attend.

Among papers to be presented are reports on research in microwave diathermy, prevention of postural deformity, rehabilitation of amputees, atomic energy in physical medicine, infantile paralysis and cerebral palsy.

Speakers will include staff members of the Mayo Foundation, the American Medical Association and leading medical schools.

ERP Tobacco Estimate Halved

Agriculture Department officials yesterday estimated tobacco needs of Europe under the Marshall Plan at about one half of the one billion suggested by tobacconists.

Spokesmen for the department's tobacco branch said 15 countries under the Economic Cooperation Administration want 500 million pounds of American tobacco the first year if they can find the dollars for it.

Earlier this week, tobacconists at a conference here estimated twice this amount.

Military Planes At Ocean City

A Naval Air Reserve group from Anacostia will join force with the Army and Marines in an air show at the Maryland State American Legion Convention at Ocean City, Md., September 11.

The Navy group will stage a sham battle. Army jet planes and the 104th Fighter Squadron of the Maryland National Guard will fly over the boardwalk. The air show is expected to draw 30,000 spectators. It will accompany a Legion parade climaxing the State convention at Ocean City from September 8 to 12.

William F. Daggett

Daytona Beach, Fla., Sept. 3 (AP).—William F. Daggett, 83, inventor of ball bearing transmission devices, died Thursday night. He was author of "Seven Steps to Success," "The Folly of Strikes," and "Public Revenue Without Taxation."

A. N. Jones, 80, Dies; Served GPO 42 Years

Albert Nelson Jones, 80, Government Printing Office clerk for 42 years and a resident of Washington since 1897, died Thursday at a nursing home here after a long illness.

Mr. Jones had taught for 46 years in the Sunday schools of various Methodist churches here. He was most active in recent years at the McKendree Methodist Church.

A native of Cedar Grove, Va., he retired from the Government service in 1938 and lived at 4005 Georgia ave. nw.

He was the chaplain of Joppa Lodge, No. 35, FAAM, in Petworth.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. on Sunday at the S. H. Hines Co. funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Interment will be in Catlett, Va.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Melba Harbaugh and Mrs. Miriam H. Edwards of this city; a son, Trenis L. Jones of Silver Spring, Md.; a sister, Mrs. Jenny Rinker of Winchester, Va., and five grandchildren.

Rawlings Rites Set Today in Belmont, Mass.

Funeral services for George B. Rawlings, Boston patent attorney and native of Washington, who died Thursday in Boston, will be held at 11 a. m. today at the Short and Williamson funeral home in Belmont, Mass. Burial will be in Boston.

Mr. Rawlings

Mr. Rawlings was a 1910 graduate of Central High School, and attended the National School of Law here for a year.

Janitor Injured By Portable Saw Dies in Hospital

A janitor at Wyoming Apartments, whose leg was severely cut Thursday by a portable saw he was operating, died yesterday at Emergency Hospital.

The janitor, James Bassett, 38, who had been employed at 2022 Columbia rd. nw., for nearly eight years, was working with the saw in an apartment when the accident occurred.

Dragging himself down a corridor, he collapsed near an elevator, where he was found in an unconscious condition by the elevator operator, Chester Wiggins, 65, of 623 Princeton st. nw.

Bassett, an Army veteran, lived with his family in an apartment in the building.

He is survived by his wife, Emma, and four children, James, jr., Sylvia, Emily and Patricia.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death.

Robert Lawrence Stone

Robert Lawrence Stone, 68, former District resident and retired head of the printing department for the General Electric Co. in Schenectady, N. Y., died there August 31.

He had been suffering from a heart condition for several years.

Mr. Stone was born in Frederick, Md., and attended schools in the District. He moved to New York City in 1902 and to Schenectady in 1906. He married Miss Anna Hagerman of Washington in 1900.

Dr. Nickless was stricken in his quarters at Carroll College. He had been attending the organization's meetings here during the week.

A former Presbyterian minister, Dr. Nickless retired two years ago to devote full time to the NCCJ.

Burrows Wins Crown Again

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Hal Burrows, lanky University of Virginia star from Charlottesville, successfully defended his State tennis championship yetserday by downing Jack Rixey, his University of Virginia teammate from Norfolk, 6—1, 6—4, 6—2, in the finals of the State net tournament.

Burrows then teamed with Rixey to capture the doubles title, defeating Bob Atwood and Bobby Leitch of Richmond, 6—1, 6—0, 6—4.

Mrs. Melton, U. S. Employe 23 Years, Dies

Mrs. Blanche M. Melton, 51, wife of William E. Melton, and a correspondence clerk for the Veterans Administration, died yesterday at Homeopathic Hospital. She had been a patient at the hospital four weeks.

Mrs. Melton, who lived at 5518 Kansas ave. nw., underwent a major operation last January.

She had been employed by the Federal Government for 23 years, having worked for the Department of Agriculture before joining the VA.

As a charter member and past president of the auxiliary to the All American Veterans of Foreign Wars, she took an active part in hospital work for veterans.

Born in Mount Airy, Md., Mrs. Melton came to Washington 30 years ago.

Besides her husband, a salesman for the Colonial Bakery, Silver Spring, Md., Mrs. Melton is survived by her father, Thomas M. Murphy of the Kansas ave. address, and three brothers, Arthur E. Ask Anne: About Painting Peasant Designs

I would like to paint colorful European peasant designs on flowerpots, saucers, glass jars, cardboard boxes, wood, etc. Could you advise me what paint to use, where I would find the patterns and whether it is necessary to glaze the flowerpots and glass? G. W. S.

To apply the designs, use artist's paint which is sold in tubes at stores carrying artists' supplies. Mix the colors with enough clear varnish to make them a consistency which will apply easily. It is not nececsary to apply a glaze to flower pots and glass. But, be sure that the surface to be painted is clean by wiping it with benzine. (Use every precaution against fire as benzine is inflammable.) Also, before painting remove all rough spots and dirt by sanding and then wiping away the dust with a soft cloth. When the painted design is thoroughly dry, you could apply a light coat of good grade spar varnish over it as an added precaution against wearing, but this is not necessary unless the pieces are to have unusually hard wear.

PETUNIA!

Tsk, Petunia! Hang up those belts on their own wooden hanger — like this:

Bishop-Bracken

(published by M. Barrows & Co., Inc., 114 E. 32d St., New York 16) is filled with traceable patterns and decoration ideas. Also, Peter Hunt's "Workbook (published by Ziff-Davis Publishing Co., Chicago-New York) has patterns, ideas, many in color. Both books are available in local book stores and libraries.

How can I remove chocolate ice cream stains from a yellow cotton dress that has been washed with no result? E. L.

Sponge the stain with cold water, sprinkle it with powdered pepsin and let stand half an hour. Brush off the pepsin and rinse the spot well. For best results, be sure the material is rinsed free of soap or other alkali before applying the pepsin. If this doesn't remove it, it will be necessary to use a bleach. Be sure to test the effect of the bleach on an inconspicuous spot before applying it to the stain.

I am planning to give one of my friends a baby shower. I have never been to one before, therefore I know nothing about planning for it. The baby is to be born sometime in October. I would like to know what sort of simple decorations and refreshments I should have? Do you usually have the shower before or after the baby is born? I would also like to know if there is any type of book that can be borrowed from the library or bought on home entertaining on various occasions? E. P. B.

For a simple, but lovely shower party it is not necessary to have special decorations. Arranging an abundance of fall flowers about the rooms and on the tables would be attractive. If you wished, you could use tiny umbrellas with the name of each guest tied to the handle for place cards. Or, if these aren't easily available, any of the baby shower place cards which are available at dime and variety stores would do nicely. At such a party the guests could be invited for dessert at 1 or 1:30 in the afternoon or, if you wish, the refreshments could be served at the close of the afternoon. Individual pumpkin pies with whipped cream and coffee or tea would be nice. To this you could add salted nuts and (or) mints.

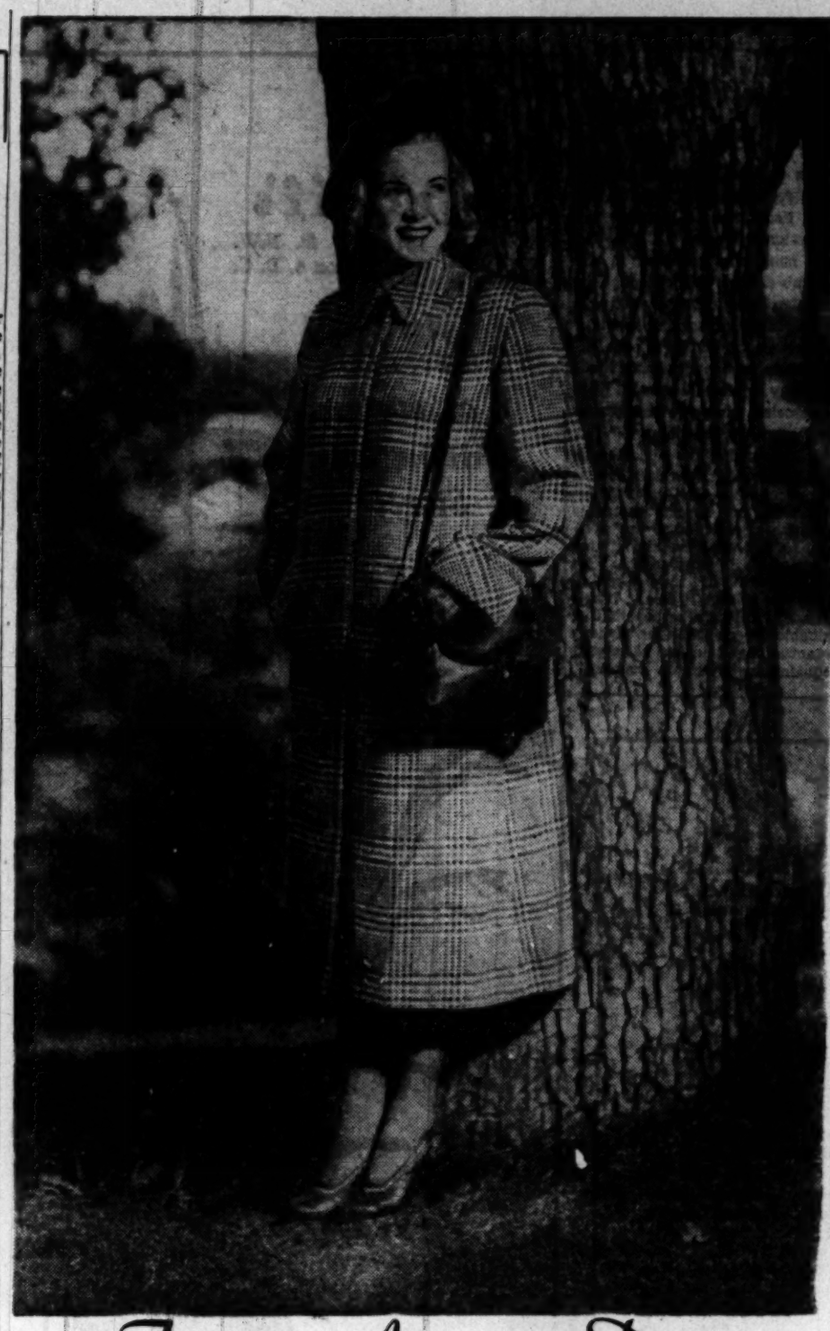
The shower gifts could be arranged under a gaily decorated umbrella on a small table if you wish to carry the umbrella idea through the party. Or, the gifts could be brought in a baby basket or buggy. Cover them with a blanket to resemble a baby. The gifts are usually opened immediately after the refreshments are served.

Whether the shower is held before or after the baby's birth is a matter of individual preference—either is correct. However, there are persons who much prefer that the shower be given after the arrival of the baby is a happily accomplished fact. Also, given after the birth, it is easier for the guests to choose appropriate usable gifts.

"The Cokesbury Shower Book" by Katherine Fite and Garland Clawson Paine (published by Cokesbury Press, New York and Nashville) has suggestions for all sorts of showers and parties. Also, "Entertaining is Fun" by Dorothy Draper (published by Doubleday & Co., Inc., Garden City, N. Y.) is filled with usable ideas for all phases of family entertaining. Both books can be obtained from local book stores and libraries.

I should like some book shelves to fill in the entire wall space between two doors in the living room. The trouble is that my desk is bleached mahogany and must be against that same wall. If I should get two compartments beside the desk and shelves above of pine or birch, finished in the natural wood or of pine painted white, blue or yellow, would the two pieces of furniture swear at each other? I am afraid the bleached mahogany wood would be too expensive. E. T. B.

Many decorators these days are combining painted woods with the blond hardwoods such as mahogany. But to achieve the most pleasing effect, they use contrasting colors rather than try to match the hardwood. For instance, with your bleached mahogany, paint the shelves a strong color such as jade green, turquoise blue, dark brown or rich red. Of course, the color you choose will depend upon the amount of other color in the room. If you already have lots of color in the room, choose a less conspicuous one for the book cases, such as deep brown or a deep blue. Be sure to make the painted color dark enough that there will be a definite contrast between the book cases and the desk.



For an Autumn Day

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

THE ancient pattern of the Glenurquart plaid is used in this handsome casual coat, modeled by Miss Reno Brown, motion picture actress, on the grounds of the Wardman Park Hotel, where she is a guest.

Both her coat and jaunty wool beret are from a new fall collection of British made garments available at Lewis & Thos. Salts. Lightweight and fully lined in crepe, the coat is beautifully tailored in the best London tradition. It features set-in sleeves, with a minimum of shoulder padding, wide cuffs, and snug-fitting collar. Other costumes in the collection vary in design, some having rounded raglan shoulders, swing backs or belts. Fabrics include colorful tweeds, fine cashmeres and many plaids

Stretch Away the Inches

Fall Styles Call for Slim Waists

By Ida Jean Kain

If you put off waist-whittling, rationalizing that small waists were just a passing fancy and would be ruled out on the grounds of health, brace yourself. Fall fashions are even more demanding on the waistline. Last season, belts could be pulled in snugly, giving the effect of slim waists with rounded hips. That ruse is out, for gone are the exaggerated rounded hips.

But don't grumble—a slender waist helps any woman hang onto her figure. And a slim waist goes with suppleness. Here's a waistline check.

Stand with back flattened against the wall, feet an inch or so out, and clasp hands on top of head, elbows out at sides in line with your ears. Pull up with the stomach muscles and stretch through the middle—do this without hunching the shoulders—and then begin, very slowly, to bend directly sideward.

Test for Suppleness

Aim at bringing your elbow down in line with the crest of the hip. As you bend, keep hips anchored against the wall and back flat. The nearer you come to bringing the elbow into line with the crest of the hip, the more supple you are . . . and the slimmer the waist.

You should be able to pass that test without straining. But if you can't, get busy with the stretch-bend exercises that will recondition the midriff muscles. The test itself is a good starter. Take it every day, bending first to one side, then the other.

In all stretch-bends, get into good posture first, and keeps hips stationary and midriff stretched as you go through the movements.

Here's another suppler . . .

Stand with feet wide apart, arms overhead and held against the ears. Slowly bend sideward until the arm is parallel with the floor. Hold for an instant, and slowly straighten up. Relax, and repeat to the other side. If you will exercise before a mirror, you can check for error. It may help to press arms close against the ears. Do not raise the shoulders.

Now for a free-and-easy exercise . . .

Keep the same position of the feet but start with arms limp at sides then fling arms up overhead, twist at the waist until you feel it through the midriff, and bend sideward to touch left hand to right foot. Up again, and repeat to other side. Don't let middle muscles slump, or all is lost.

Once you get some gimp back in the middle muscles, it will be easy to make a habit of pulling up slim . . . and the habit is beautifully slimming.

On the Club Front

Women's Board of Providence Hospital has chosen its delegates to the fiftieth anniversary convention of the American Hospital Association slated for September 20 to 23 at Atlantic City, N. J. They are Mrs. Raymond Raedy, Mrs. James Kane and Mrs. John Calarco. Their alternates are Mrs. Lawrence Drennan, Mrs. Francis O'Bryan and Mrs. Magruder MacDonald.

The next regular meeting of the Providence Board will be held on October 12. New officers to be installed then include Sister Marie, honorary president, Mrs. Raymond Raedy, president; Mrs. Frank R. Shea, first vice president; Mrs. Phillip A. Caulfield, second vice president; Mrs. Vincent J. DiFrancisco, recording secretary; Mrs. John P. Burke, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Josephine Tighe Williams, public relations; Sister Marie Charles, treasurer, and Mrs. John J. Calarco, assistant treasurer.

Gold Star Mothers To Meet September 8

Grace Darling Selbold Chapter of the American Gold Star Mothers will open its autumn season with a meeting on September 8, 7:45 p. m., at the New Colonial Hotel.

Montgomery Shop Reopens Sept. 7

After a two months recess the Montgomery County Thrift Shop, 4715 Hampden Lane, Bethesda, Md., will open on September 7. The shop will be open for business daily from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Fridays from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The commission committee will meet on the first and third Tuesdays of each month to accept articles for sale, including clothing, glass, china and silver. The shop keeps 25 per cent of the sale price.

Participating agencies for the shop are Chevy Chase Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Planned Parenthood League of Montgomery County, the Women's Board of Montgomery County General Hospital and Women's Auxiliary of Suburban Hospital.

Women who wish to volunteer for work at the Thrift Shop may call the manager, Mrs. Katherine Stirling, Wisconsin 9843.

Di-Ma-Va Club To Resume Meetings

The Di-Ma-Va Club will resume its monthly meetings with a luncheon Thursday, September 9, at 1 p. m. in the Colony Room at the Ambassador Hotel. Hostesses will include Mrs. J. H. Gooch and Mrs. Robert Hesser.

Membership of the club is composed of wives and daughters of resident and nonresident members of Washington's Traffic Club, which is one of the country's major organizations of transportation men.

New officers of the club include Mrs. W. E. Gayghe, president; Mrs. L. O. Drumwright, vice president; Mrs. Edward Bilo, secretary, and Mrs. H. F. Brown, treasurer.

Coming Events . . .

Several organizations will reopen their fall seasons after Labor Day. The Robert E. Lee Chapter No. 644, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has scheduled a meeting for Thursday, September 9, 8 p. m., in Confederate Memorial Hall, 1322 Vermont ave. nw. Mrs. Lena Epperly MacDonald, chapter president, will preside. The Current Topics Club of Riverdale, Md., also has slated its opening session for Thursday, September 9, 8 p. m., at the home of its president, Mrs. Earl Beisecker.

Two Win Awards Of Scholarships For Dress Designs

Robert Fischman of 302 E. Glendale ave., Alexandria, Va., and Miriam Wolman of 856 Whittier pl. nw., were announced the winners of scholarships to the Magda School of Dress Design, by the board of judges consisting of Washington's fashion editors and women radio commentators who looked over the multitude of sketches submitted to the scholarship editor at the Capitol Theater this week.

Though only one scholarship originally was intended for the best original design in sketch form, the judging was so difficult that it was decided to give an additional award. Mr. Fischman was awarded a full scholarship and Miss Wolman a one-semester scholarship.

The contest was under the sponsorship of Loew's Capitol Theater in conjunction with the "Going Native Revue."

Feed the Malcontents

World's Good Cooks Can Lead Way to Peace, Says Author

By Dorothy Roe

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—The cooks of the world around a kitchen table could do more for the cause of peace than the diplomats of the world around a conference table.

So says Mary Lasswell, author, globe-trotter and enthusiastic cook, whose new book, "Bread for the Living," follows her best-selling "Suds in Your Eye" and "Mrs. Rasmussen's Book of One-Arm Cookery."

Mrs. Lasswell, a Navy wife, has a twinkle in her eye, a gilt-edged estate in Newport and an endless enthusiasm for good food. She feels that if the world's malcontents were well-fed, they would be much less inclined to stir up wars and revolutions. And if warring nations could just invite each other in for dinner, they probably would decide to call off the shooting.

"When you live next door to an Italian family, you learn to enjoy their spaghetti and ravioli, and in return pass on grandmother's pet recipe for peach shortcake," she says. "It all makes for good international relations."

The blue-eyed, pink-cheeked author-cook thinks that the importance of good food cannot be overestimated. She challenges the statement that love is more important because, as she points out:

"When you're too old for love you can still eat."

As an aid for solving the problems of the United Nations and restoring calm to a shaky world, Mrs. Lasswell suggests that diplomats of each country be required to sample the prize dishes of other countries. And from her gastronomical travels she recommends the following:

AMERICA: Fried Chicken—The crispy kind, which can be cooked only in smoking hot pork lard.

ENGLAND: Steak and Kidney Pie.

FRANCE: Boullabaisse — The fishermen's dish of Marseilles.

GERMANY: Sauerbraten—Sweet-sour pot roast, made by soaking beef overnight in vinegar, seasoning with salt, pepper and sugar, browning in hot fat and cooking long and slowly in the seasoned vinegar. The gravy should be thickened with gingersnaps and the whole served with sour cream and potato pancakes.

RUSSIA: Beef Stroganoff—Silvered sirloin cooked to a puree in butter, mixed with sliced mushrooms and served with sour cream rice and green beans.

CHINA: Shrimp Chow Mein.

ITALY: Veal Scallopini—Thin slices of veal sauteed in butter and cooked with sherry—served always with spinach.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS: Coconut-Banana Ice Cream—Equal parts of coconut cream, (made by mashing the meat of green coconuts) banana and a little lime juice, frozen. Yum!

"That," says Mrs. Lasswell, "is a cook's tour of the world that really would get us somewhere!"

For Small Salads

Use the muffin pans when you want to make a molded salad as a side course. They make just the size required for a small serving and take up less room in the refrigerator than individual molds. They come in particularly handy when serving a great number of guests as we seldom have that many molds alike. Butter the molds before putting in the salad to insure easy transferring from pan to plate.

Mrs. Mary Lasswell shown in her kitchen at Newport, R. I.

Shakespeare Pasties Are Thrifty Dish

THE name of the immortal bard is attached to the following recipe for a thrifty main dish. It's a good deal like those meat pasties the Elizabethans used to lick their chops over.

SHAKESPEARE PASTIES

1 cup ground left-over meat
3 cold cooked potatoes
Salt and pepper

PLAIN PASTRY

Combine meat, bread, potatoes, onions and seasonings lightly but well. Line small muffin pans with the pastry and fill with meat mixture. Top with circles of pastry cut to fit. Pinch at edges to seal. Slash or prick well, and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 25 minutes. This recipe makes six small pies.

Old-Fashioned Caster and Ivy Makes Centerpieces

An old-fashioned revolving caster with bottles resting in separate compartments makes an unusual ivy bowl. Remove the glass stoppers, partly fill each bottle with fresh water and place in it a small branch of ivy or other trailing vine. This makes an attractive centerpiece for your dining table or buffet, tips Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

Hi.
Well I see the great critic, St. John Saintsbury-Wough, liked the show those young actors put on in your barn.
He did?
I brought along a copy of the theatrical sheet he's writing in as a guest essayist. I can't follow all his highbrow stuff—
Gosh.
But the headline's very clear: "Forestburgh Bow Wows Wough" So I guess the play's terrific.
Well, I don't know. I fell asleep at it.

This Is Why the Dough Keeps Rolling In

Mrs. Mary F. Napolitano of 5131 8th st. nw. helps explain how the money for Children's Hospital keeps rolling in.

All summer long, the neighborhood kids came calling for her 1-year-old son, Jackie, each morning, because they liked to put on "acts" for his amusement.

Jackie was a wonderful audience. He'd laugh and clap at the end of each act, and always gurgle the juvenile equivalent of "encore."

One day, Mrs. Napolitano said, "Children, you're wasting your talents on Jackie. Why don't you organize your acts into a real vaudeville show, and raise some money for Children's Hospital?"

You know kids. Especially during vacation. That's all they needed.

No Broadway producer ever put more zing into organizing a new show. And after long days of work and rehearsal, the troupe found itself playing to a corking good "house" (choice seats 10 cents, the remainder 7 cents).

Today we have a check for $11 for the hospital, thanks to Jackie's little pals. Here they are:

Patty Salerno (4), Marilyn (10) and Robert (6) Polinger, Peggy Crezee (6), Anthony Dilullo (10), all of the 5100 block of 8th st. nw.; Helen Wheatley (11) of 722 Hamilton st. nw., and Edward Stephens (9) of 5110 7th st. nw.

Streetcar tokens for the hospital have been received from Metro Valet & Laundry Service, 1919 18th st. nw.; Edna C. Miller, 5434 Taylor st., Bladensburg, Md. (plus cash); John A. Stippick, 6962 Allentown rd. se. (Canadian coins—and the 1937 nickel in the collection is definitely round, and not dodecagonal); and Julia Ann Schaenzer, 4425 S. Four Mile Run dr., Arlington, Va.

And we mustn't forget a check for $3.25 contributed by John M. Hardy (11), Sally A. Hardy (6), Judy Gerber (6), Sandra Zucker (7), Maxine Zucker (8), James Brown (14) and Billy Sinclair (who forgot to tell me his age).

The kids raised the money by giving a play in the Zucker back yard (6435 2d pl. nw.) and the name of the play was most appropriate. It was "Washington Weather."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Whatever happened to the big gambling investigation that was going to wipe out the local numbers racket?

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I recently brought a chorus of girls (8 to 14) to WEAM for a program of songs. Now the girls would like to sing for the kids at Children's Hospital, and for the fellows in our service hospitals.

Can you tell me who to contact to make the arrangements?

Irwin Abell
2505 Q st. se.

Dear Irwin:

At Children's Hospital, contact Mrs. Peyton Hawes Dunn. For the service hospitals, I suggest you get hold of Charlie Cohen (the stamp and coin man) on District 1272.

Charlie has arranged so many benefit performances for our hospitalized veterans that I've lost count; but I'm sure he'll be glad to hear about your young singers, because he's always working on a new show.

Bill.

MISCELLANY

Elaine Charland of 2901 Allison st., Mount Rainier, Md., reports that a sign in the window of the Lucas Paint Store on 15th st. ne. offers: "Death For Sale" . . . And the Good Humor trucks carry a back-end sign which reads, "Pints in All Flavors. Be Careful" . . . The next radio deal here may be the sale of a day-time station in the suburban area . . . Another new gimmick: Frances DeVinney of 2131 G st. nw. offers to send you a pleasant surprise in each day's mail for a week, all for one buck. Included are "entertaining letters, cards, clippings, puzzles, poems, etc." . . . I know that there are easier ways to make a living than writing a column, but I never seem to be able to think of these cute ideas first . . . Here's another courteous cop, this one reported by William M. Owen of 4818 Chevy Chase dr., Chevy Chase, Md. Bill isn't sure of the number, but thinks it was Officer No. 814. Anyhow, he was stationed in front of the Willard and helped a motorist in distress . . . Irene Sanderson of 3901 Connecticut ave. nw. thinks that I once ran a Mail Bag item that explained the origin of the term "Rough Riders." I've got a pretty good memory for my favorite author's output, and I don't recall it. But that's neither here nor there; can some District Liner answer Irene's question about Rough Riders? (No wisecracks about taxi drivers, please).

PERSONAL NOTES

Nancy O. Schell, 3111 Plyers Mill rd., Kensington, Md.: Wish I could help you locate the pup, but it's impossible. Too many things are lost and found in a big city each day to squeeze into this space; and of course if we'd use one, we'd have to use them all. Sorry.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

J. C. Collins of 3563 S. Stafford st., Alexandria, Va., submits a recent advertisement which offered:

"Silver plated bread tray, $12; water pitcher, $30; meat dish, $1800."

"At that rate," quips District Liner Collins, "the dish would cost slightly more than the meat."

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (98.3?).

NEW YORK.—Joe E. Lewis, the nightclub comic, took show-girl Nevada Smith to the Stork Club for dinner. They ordered steak. Miss Smith left some of the steak and told the waiter to wrap it so that she could take it home for her dog . . . "Oh, don't do that now," said Lewis. "We're going to have supper later" . . . "I know that," replied Miss Smith, "but my dog doesn't happen to like Chinese food."

George Jessel, the movie producer, saw a list of the pictures to be made at the 20th Century-Fox studios. He sent a note to Darryl F. Zanuck: "Movie-makers always should remember that this is the audience for whom we make the pictures." He enclosed a photo he had taken from the stage when he worked there last—a photo of children, weary housewives and idling salesmen, who comprised the 2 p. m. audience at Loew's State.

Eddie Dowling, the producer-actor, was discussing the topsy-turvy fortunes of the theater. He told of the St. James Theater which he operated for 16 years. Then, when he no longer could hold on, he surrendered his interests in it. Two days later the Shuberts rented it to the Theater Guild for a musical which seemed shaky in its out-of-town tryout, and made millions out of it—out of the five-year run of "Oklahoma."

CBS has succeeded in raiding one of NBC's oldest and foremost radio shows . . . Ben Bodne, president of the Tournament of Champions—which broke Mike Jacobs' prizefight monopoly—will have a personal announcement to make in a few days . . . Elmer Davis is being mentioned as Donald M. Nelson's successor in the Hollywood job . . . Artie Shaw is about to resume his concert-tour career . . . One of the major banks is trying to check a $40,000 discrepancy in the estate of a famous man who died recently . . . Ludwig Lewisohn wrote the final 10,000 words of his Goethe biography last Saturday, in near-100 temperature, so that he'd complete the manuscript on Goethe's 199th birthday.

George Balanchine, the ballet-director, was at a Hollywood party where a Question Game was played. One of the questions asked was "How many men are on the United States Supreme Court?" A player answered "Seven," and Blanchine corrected him: "Nine. There are nine men on the Supreme Court. I remember it very well" . . . "You've seen the Supreme Court in session?" he was asked . . . "Oh, no," explained Balanchine. "I remember it from the Supreme Court scene in the Kaufman and Hart musical, 'I'd Rather Be Right.'"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Crackdown on Lobbyists Planned

(While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

The Justice Department is preparing to crack down on four prominent unregistered lobbyists who wielded a lot of influence in Congress. One played a leading role in blocking repeal of the Federal tax on oleomargarine... A White House guard detained Supreme Court Justice William Douglas for five minutes when he attempted to leave by a side entrance after a recent visit with the President... Senator Edward Robertson, facing a tough reelection fight, has received no word yet to his appeals that Governor Dewey come to Wyoming to put in a plug for him... Comment on a Truman crony by Joe Borkin, ace former Justice Department official: "Every time that guy opens his mouth, his shoelaces fall out."

Douglas

Politics

The presidential battle will be a family affair. President Truman's wife and daughter will accompany him on his electioneering trips and Mrs. Dewey and a son will tour with the Republican standard-bearer... The Republican National Committee is sending special publicity men to help GOP senatorial candidates in doubtful States. Also, the committee has earmarked $500,000 for these contests... Wallace lieutenants, in candid moments, admits he won't carry a single State... Representative Everett Dirksen, able, hard-working Illinoisan retiring from Congress, is a good bet for Secretary of Agriculture in the Dewey Cabinet—if there is one.

Latest Minnesota poll shows Senator Joe Ball trailing Minneapolis Mayor Hubert Humphrey by an eight-point margin... Dave Beck, potent West Coast teamsters czar, will back the Dewey-Warren ticket. Beck has long been on close terms with Governor Warren... Thomas Emerson, Yale law professor, is continuing to run as the third-party candidate for Governor of Connecticut despite a statement he would withdraw if the Democrats nominated Chester Bowles, former OPA director... Bill McAdams, press aide to Senator Taft during his pre-convention campaign, is staying on in the Capital despite attractive offers elsewhere. "I guess it's Potomac fever," McAdams grins. "It's the same disease Clark Clifford in the White House has."

Around the Circuit

Gen. Lucius Clay has a $150,000-a-year job waiting for him when he retires from the Army... Philip (Moon) Mullen, member of the Mississippi Legislature, is waging a fearless battle against race hatred in his State... One member of the House Un-American Activities Committee comes from Moscow. He is Representative Abe Goff of Moscow, Idaho... Vanguard Press is publishing a different kind of book on life in Washington. It has nothing to do with the official or social worlds. Under the title, "Three to Make Ready," it deals with the problems of raising a family in a Capital suburb... Champion father on Capitol Hill is A. J. Burbon, administrative assistant to Maryland Senator Herbert O'Conor. Burbon has 11 children—six boys and five girls, ranging from 8 to 25 years.

Third Army

The four chief war-time assistants of the late great General Patton are now back in the United States. They are Maj. Gen. Hobart Gay, Chief of Staff, now commander of the Washington Military District; Brig. Gen. Walter J. Muller, G-4, now with the Army field forces; Col. Oscar Koch, G-2, now assistant commandant at Fort Riley, and Col. Halley Maddox, G-3, now holding the same post in the new Hq. Third Army... The Washington AVC Chapter has opened a handsome new clubhouse that is being run on a non-segregation basis... The National Foundation for G. I. Joe, Inc., headed by Col. William G. Nicklas, has launched a drive to raise funds to provide entertainment for hospital-immured veterans.

Col. James E. Kilian, convicted for mistreating soldiers during the war, will make another attempt to get his case reopened if Dewey is elected President... India, which won its independence largely through the efforts of the late, peace-loving Mahatma Gandhi, has embarked on a large military program... Newsmen rate Comdr. W. J. Lederer the ablest military press relations officer in the Capital... According to a Pentagon tabulation based on Chinese Nationalist and Communist claims, each has killed more of their rivals than both have in their armies.

'Communistic'

In one of its campaign publications, the Michigan Republican State Central Committee attacks the great Tennessee Valley Authority as a "Communistic project"... Addressing the International Bar Association at The Hague, former Assistant Attorney General Norman Littell declared that American private enterprise is making European recovery possible... The American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, whose recent national convention was warmly commended by President Truman, is organizing a number of new State departments, including one in Washington.

During his yachting tour President Truman read Dr. C. Ward Crampton's lively and informative booklet, "Live Long and Like It"... Supreme Court Justice Harold Burton was born in Massachusetts, practiced law in Utah and Idaho, and was elected to the Senate from Ohio... Beginning in November, the Air Force's long-secret and mighty B-49 will start rolling from production lines at the rate of one a week. The bomber tops the B-36 and will be the most powerful in the world... The father of Brazilian Ambassador Mauricio Nabuco is the Abraham Lincoln of that country. The elder Nabuco abolished slavery in Brazil in 1888... A favorite vastime of General Eisenhower is cooking... Says the Rev. Peter Marshall, plain-talking Senate chaplain, "There are no politics in prayer, but there should be a lot more prayer in politics."
